

ARCADIA BAND IS TOPS

Arcadia High School was named sweepstakes winner of the 26th All-Western Band Review before a more than capacity audience at Municipal Auditorium Saturday night.

Thousands of participants and their sponsors attempted to enter the Municipal Auditorium only to be caught in a jam at the gates, and then were faced with a lack of seating inside.

Don C. Gill, executive director of the review, said the Concert Hall, directly behind the Convention Hall was opened to help alleviate the congestion, but that it was impossible to seat all who wanted to witness the final ceremonies of the event.

Police and Fire Department officials said that there were an extremely large number of people at the event, but that no particular problems were involved. It was reported that one girl fainted in the entrance crowd.

The hall has a capacity of about 5,500, Gill said, and approximately that number of admission badges were issued.

In the California State Baton Twirling

Championships held in the auditorium 15-year-old Carol Moss of El Centro High School defeated four sister finalists for the honor of representing the state in the 1966-67 National Championships to be held in St. Paul, Minn., in late January.

Carol, who was the second place winner in the junior division last year, succeeds Diane Nakamitsu of San Mateo, who went on to win the National Championships for 1965-1966, and who has just become "Miss Talent USA."

Runner-up in the twirling contest was Christine Doran, San Lorenzo; third was Barbara Schneider, 18, Whittier; fourth was Jill Brunt, 16, Garden Grove; and fifth was Patty Wanger, 17, of Downey.

Petite and pretty Nancy Ridd, 17-year-old reigning Band Review Queen, retained her title by winning first place in the Twirling Drum Majorettes Division. She is a junior at Montclair High School. Runner-up was Terri Kelly of Mt. Miguel High School, Spring Valley, and third place went to Pattie Maletta of Santa Ana High School.

Conditions were ideal for the 1966 version of the All-Western Band Review, with the sky sunny and the temperature at 65 degrees.

Thousands of spectators lined the parade route, which extended along Ocean Boulevard west from Falcon Avenue to Cedar Avenue.

The parade, one of the most spirited and colorful to ever be held on the Pacific Coast, began exactly on schedule at noon and concluded about four hours later.

Other winners in the 26th annual All-Western Band Review announced late Saturday night were grouped in six classifications according to enrollment. Winners in each of the divisions were:

Class AA 2300 and up: First, Pasadena; second, Helix; third, Mt. Miguel; fourth, Grossmont; fifth, Montebello.

Class A 1850 to 2299: First, Anaheim; second, El Cajon Valley; third, Upland; fourth, Mon-

ACTRESS' BOY ATTACKED BY LION

Jayne Mansfield's Son Attacked, Bitten by Lion

THOUSAND OAKS (AP)— The six-year-old son of actress Jayne Mansfield underwent brain surgery Saturday night after being mauled by a movie lion at Jungleland.

Miss Mansfield, who was posing for photographs when the attack occurred, was placed under sedatives at Conejo Valley Community Hospital.

Doctors said the boy,

Zoltan, regained consciousness momentarily. Two neurosurgeons said the boy's condition was satisfactory. They said his brain was bruised but apparently not damaged.

He is the son of Miss Mansfield's former husband, movie strongman Mickey Hargitay. They were divorced last July.

The actress had taken her son to Jungleland to show him the show business animals kept at the private zoo, her attorney said.

MISS MANSFIELD saw the big lion grab her son and roll him on the ground by the neck. She screamed.

Police Seal Off 'Strip,' Curb Teens

Hundreds Pour Into Area, Add to Traffic Jam

By BILL HAZLETT

Police sealed off a whole block of Sunset Strip late Saturday night, holding hundreds of sign-waving youths in check in front of Pandora's Box, scene of two recent weekend outbreaks.

Streams of milling teenagers poured into the area, adding to a massive traffic jam along the once-famous Hollywood entertainment area.

The teen-agers corralled at Pandora's Box were many of those who attended a 9 p.m. rally by the so-called "Right of Assembly and Movement Committee," scheduled to protest alleged mistreatment by law enforcement officers and the 10 p.m. mandatory curfew for those under 18.

Several minor skirmishes broke out and a few of the teen-agers were taken into custody during the fracas. Several of those attending the Sunset Strip protest were seen earlier in the day at a "black power" rally in Will Rogers Memorial Park, 103rd Street and Central Avenue.

The area, which is split between police and county jurisdiction, was patrolled in the West Hollywood sector by scores of sheriff's deputies who established a reserve command post on a hill overlooking the troubled sector.

SELF-RESPECT URGED ON NEGROES Orderly Crowd Hears Carmichael in Watts

By CHARLES SUTTON

A cheering throng of between 3,000 and 4,000 rallied in a Watts park Saturday to hear "black power" advocate Stokely Carmichael urge Negroes to stop trying to fashion their ideals according to white standards and, instead, to start respecting themselves for what they are — "black people."

The militant Negro leader brought the applauding crowd to its feet when he finished his 45-minute speech, and afterward was almost mobbed by admirers as he walked to a waiting car to depart Will Rogers Memorial Park.

Carmichael raised his two fists in the air as he left, in what seemed to be a gesture of solidarity, which some observers interpreted as a black-power salute.

The racially-mixed throng—mostly Negroes—of adults and teen-agers, started gathering shortly after noon in the park at 103rd Street and Central Avenue.

The sheriff's office, which had a score of plainclothes officers planted in the crowd, described the gathering as "peaceful and orderly."

Carloads of additional deputies and Los Angeles police officers cruised the area around the park, but there were no incidents.

On the fringes of the crowd was the usual collection of long-haired tight-panted and booted beatniks, along with pin and pamphlet sellers. Their wares read, "Give 'em hell, Stokely," "Black Power," "Total Equality."

Communist pamphleteers moved through the crowd passing out broadsides—replete with red hammer and sickle emblem—reading, "Oppose Reactionary Violence with Revolutionary Violence," and "Support and Join People's Armed Defense Groups."

The meeting got under way when a spokesman for the Freedom Now Committee of Los Angeles (Black Congress) asked the crowd if the press and television should be allowed front-row positions to cover the rally.

The crowd answered with a shouted "No."

First speaker was F. Daniel Gray, described as a leader in the Watts community. He exhorted the crowd to "fight if necessary" for the "life, liberty and pur-

Reds May Use Lull to End Raids

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)— Saturday's Viet Cong proposal for a Christmas-New Year truce in Viet Nam apparently assures some lull in the fighting. But President Johnson's advisers fear a diplomatic squeeze play to parlay such a cease-fire into a prolonged bombing respite for North Viet Nam.

They view this possibility as dangerous, and are determined to guard against it.

This is the principal reason why several of Johnson's top military advisers have taken the position in the last few days that halting air strikes against the north would create unacceptable opportunities for increased movement of men and supplies to Communist forces fighting in the south.

A secondary reason appears to be a developing debate along the lines of a military-diplomatic split within the government over how tough the United States should be in handling the approach to any possible peace negotiations.

SOME AUTHORITIES believe the Communists are being so badly hurt by the aerial pounding in the north and losses on the ground in the south, that they may be inclined to switch their struggle for South Viet Nam to the conference table next year. Though officials pub-

27 Yanks AT OAKLAND AIRPORT Victims 134 Land Safely Of Crash in Damaged Plane

SAIGON, Sunday (AP)— A U.S. Air Force C-47 transport crashed and exploded shortly after taking off from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport Saturday night, and officials said all 27 Americans aboard were killed.

All victims were U.S. military personnel except one U.S. Defense Department civilian, authorities reported. Names were withheld pending notification of relatives.

The plane crashed one mile from the airport, and its wreckage burned while mired in a rice paddy. Authorities said the crash was caused by a mechanical failure.

In North Viet Nam, American warplanes flew through thunderstorms and heavy clouds Saturday to bomb staging and supply areas, U.S. headquarters reported. The number of strikes was limited by the monsoon season weather.

OAKLAND (AP)— A military charter Boeing 707 jet airliner with a damaged nose-wheel circled Oakland International Airport Saturday for 45 tense minutes, then landed on a foam-covered runway and rolled to a stop with all 134 persons aboard safe.

Aboard the plane were 127 soldiers from Ft. Riley, Kan., and a crew of seven. The first officer aboard the American Airlines flight praised the captain, Elmer C. Weekley of Saratoga, Calif., for doing "a magnificent job" throughout the emergency.

An airline spokesman said the jet was making a normal approach to the airport, after its three-hour, nine-minute flight from Kansas City, when the nose-wheel slammed the ground "too hard" on initial touchdown.

BEAST CHAINED AFTER BITING JAYNE MANSFIELD'S SON

Carmichael Urges Self-Respect Upon Negroes

suit of happiness" guaranteed in the Declaration of Independence.

Gray was followed to the speakers' platform—the flat bed of a large truck—by John Harris, who said he was arrested "and now facing 14 years in prison" for distributing hate literature against the late Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker during the Leonard Deadwyler inquest.

Deadwyler, a Negro motorist, was shot fatally last May 2 by a police officer investigating a traffic incident.

Third speaker was Ron Karenga, militant West Coast director of US, a Black Nationalist group which cosponsored the Carmichael rally.

Karenga, dressed in familiar high-collared green tunic, screamed taunts and insults at the so-called white power and told the crowd Carmichael was a "legitimate spokesman for black people."

Perspiration glistened on Karenga's shaved head as he introduced Carmichael as a man "who has come as a hunter for black souls."

A drunk, who attempted to harass Karenga, was given the "bum's rush" by security guards from the Citizen's Alert Patrol (CAP), Sons of Watts.

THERE WAS little applause when State Senator-elect Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, and Assemblyman-elect Bill Green, D-Los Angeles, were introduced.

But the crowd broke into wild cheering and shouting applause when Carmichael began to speak.

Using humor, mimicry and ridicule, the slender Negro molded the mood of the crowd for nearly 40 minutes.

He lashed out at everything and everyone from President Johnson to Gov.-elect Ronald Reagan, and Negro leaders opposing "black power," to the Viet Nam war. Watts businessmen, the police and Los Angeles County supervisors who tried unsuccessfully to halt the rally.

OFFICERS made no effort to interrupt Carmichael's speech at any time, despite that it sheds its alleged by-earlier implied warnings that he might be yanked off the speakers' platform if he started sounding too incendiary.

Carmichael, despite telling reporters Friday he would not attempt to define black power in his talk, nevertheless appeared to lay down some guideposts to his philosophy.

Preaching a doctrine of "self-love," and self-reliance, he said that, first of all, Negroes must stop taking their cue from whites and blaming themselves for their own condition. "The first thing White America does," he said, "is blame Black America for the position it's in — where, in reality, it is white society that denies us good schools and good homes."

CARMICHAEL seemed to develop the theme that blacks must avoid linking their destiny to white society's at this time. So long as America, he said, is engaged in what he regards as an immoral war abroad while oppressing Negroes at home, blacks should dissociate themselves from the government. He indicated that it is the Negro's mission now to remake America, to see that it sheds its alleged by-poorly for genuinely humane ways.

"Our fight for black power is (a fight) to civilize this country," he declared.

Carmichael urged the Negro "to depend on himself, and not the white man." The head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee urged his audience to support Negro organizations and institutions in Watts. For blacks, "black power," he declared, "means black people coming together and building their own forces."

IN APPARENT reference to separate cityhood for Watts, Carmichael said the Negroes in Watts "have got to control their own community, their own police force and their own school board."

He said the Negro's trouble until now has been that he has "thought more about his country than his own people. We've got to care about us," he declared. "No one else will. We're the only protection we have."

And, in an obvious reference to self-defense, he said that if recent riots have proved anything, they have stages over a 26-month period, "taught the whites that if they're going to play Nazis, per cent in fringe benefits."

black people will not be Jews" — a reference to the fact that most European Jews did not fight back when herded into Hitler's gas ovens.

HITTING hard on the theme of self-esteem as a cornerstone of black power, the Howard University graduate said Negroes have to realize that they "do not have skinny full equality in America. He said Negro defensiveness is demeaning, and indicated it

"We have nappy hair, broad noses and thick lips. We can't be beautiful by white criteria. We've got to say, 'We are black and beautiful.'"

"Black people," he went on, "will define their own beauty." Carmichael said Negroes must stop being defensive and realize their every move to win that they "do not have skinny full equality in America. He said Negro defensiveness is demeaning, and indicated it

Canada Airline Strike Settled

MONTREAL (AP) — Machinists on strike against Air Canada since Nov. 14 Saturday ratified an agreement reached by their representatives and those of the government-owned airline, their union announced.

Work is to be resumed at 4 p.m. local times across the country today. There were 5,200 employees on strike.

The agreement boosts wages by 20 per cent in three years over a 26-month period, and adds another seven per cent in fringe benefits.

reflects the Negro's failure to believe in himself and his cause.

WHEN THE Negroes sought integration, he said, whites raised the specter of miscegenation, and Negroes hastened to ease their fears. Now, he added, the whites are finding excuses to oppose black power. "Well, we don't want to apologize," he declared, "for black power is the power they (the whites) stole from us."

"For once," he added, "black power is ours. For once, we'll define it. The movement is ours, and we must decide where it goes. You ought not worry about what white people say," he declared. "They tell us to be nonviolent, and they beat us over the heads and shoot it up in Viet Nam at the same time."

NO 'POWER' CONCEPT

Children at Rally Heedless of Color

By BILL HAZLETT

They sat on the ground surrounded by a forest of legs. Overhead there were shouts of "black power", "freedom now" and "police brutality."

The legs around them shifted nervously. Some were tense, others slouched with fatigue.

But, on the cool grass, shaded by the leg forest, the youngsters were unmindful of the charged atmosphere. The three—a tiny Negro girl, and two white youngsters, a boy and girl, all about five—played a hand game on the heels of their shoes.

Overhead, and 50 feet away, militant black power advocates paraded to a speakers' stand to stir an already smoldering fire.

The tension, hatred, prejudice were filtered out of the trio's small world.

Color of skin made no difference, only the skill of the hand game.

Questions of "black power," "white power" seemed wholly unimportant in that cool, small, shaded area where tomorrow's generation was developing.

Home Burgled

A thief Saturday took a portable TV set, long-play records, a suitcase, ski clothes and an alarm clock from the home of Allen Dale Evans, 69 Glendora Ave., Long Beach. Officials said the missing items were valued at $440.

Indian Curse or Not, They Need a Bridge

By AL ROGERS
HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI)—The twin Nova Scotia cities of Halifax and Dartmouth, contemplating the building of a second span across this historic harbor, are disregarding the legendary curse of an old Indian chief. According to the story, perhaps improved by years of re-telling, the chief caught his spouse dallying with a sailor. The story goes that the chief, who lived across the harbor from Halifax at a place known as Tuff's Cove, had a beautiful but erring wife who attracted the interests of a British naval officer and with whom she fell in love. In pursuing the illicit courtship, the chief's wife would slip from her wigwam, climb into a canoe and paddle across the water to meet her paramour whose ship was anchored in the channel. ONE NIGHT the chief followed his squaw, caught up to her in mid harbor and slew her on the spot. The injured husband then invoked the wrath of his gods, cursed any connection between the east and west sides of the harbor and prophesied that a bridge would be built three times and lifted the curse, and three times it would fall. Three bridges have been erected—two of them topped into the harbor. The third, built 11 years ago, still stands. Known as the Angus L. MacDonald Bridge, it is the only connecting link between Halifax and Dartmouth. When the MacDonald Bridge was opened in 1955, He says that several days after the 1955 opening of the MacDonald Bridge, another elderly Indian squaw made her way slowly across the span one midnight, murmuring certain incantations and raising the curse placed there by her infuriated fore-bearer. Even if Ktipou is right and there is no longer an Indian curse still on the bridge, there is now a white man's curse: The traffic jam. And that is why—despite the mystic risk, Halifax and Dartmouth want another bridge.

One Quint Dies -- Fear for Three Others

PITTSBURGH (Sunday) (UPI)—Quintuplet girls were born Saturday to a pretty 22-year-old former kindergarten teacher, but one of the infants died today, just minutes short of 24 hours after her birth.

Baby C, third born of the unnamed infants, died at 2:15 a.m. EST in Magee Women's Hospital of complications arising from her 2½ month premature birth.

Doctors feared that up to three of the surviving quintuplets would fall victim to the same respiratory deficiencies.

The death came after a "poor" prognosis Saturday night, capping a day in which the quint's chances for survival swung from peaks to valleys.

The disclosure came after Dr. Thomas Martin, chief pediatrician, told newsmen there was optimism the quintuplets would beat the "one in 10" odds against their survival.

The quintuplets were born at Magee Women's Hospital, 2½ months prematurely, to Mrs. Patti Aranson, a small attractive brunette, within a 10-minute period. They ranged in weight from one pound seven ounces to one pound 12 ounces.

"One is breathing easily, and is not acidotic (acid in blood)," said the obstetrician.

"This one looks best. Two are doing very poorly. They are having trouble breathing and are retracting. They are severely acidotic . . . but are being treated vigorously, intravenously for the difficulty. The other two are having some trouble breathing and are seriously acidotic," he said.

The dark appraisal came at 10:40 p.m. The prognosis remained unchanged at midnight, only six hours after Dr. Martin had expressed hope.

"The fact that they all are alive after 15 hours is optimistic," Martin said. "It is better than what we had expected."

Torrance Man Hurt as Boat Explodes

A 34-year-old Torrance man was burned on the face and left hand Saturday when his 30-foot outboard boat exploded at Los Angeles Harbor.

Police said Gann told them his boat had been locked up for three weeks, and the blast occurred when he crawled out of the cabin with a lighted cigarette.

Harbor Division Police said for three weeks, and the blast occurred when he crawled out of the cabin with a lighted cigarette.

The boat was ruined in the blaze that followed, Sgt. Keith Calm said.

Gann was treated at Wilmington Receiving Hospital for second degree burns on his left hand and first degree burns on his face. Hospital officials refused to disclose his condition.

KAREN KLO JONES
Girl Steeplejack

She Likes To Work High

EASTON, Pa., (AP) — Suspended 97 feet in the air, the steeplejack wielded the paint brush expertly at the top of the flagpole of Patee Hall, on the Lafayette College campus.

There was a major difference between this steeplejack and most others, however — Karen Klo Jones, 23, was doing the painting.

Blonde, five feet 4, weighing 124 pounds, Karen had planned to be a schoolteacher. But her father, Tony Klo, is a steeplejack, and so are two of her brothers, and one weekend when she was home from Mansfield State College, she volunteered to help on a busy Saturday.

Ever since, she's been helping out when things are busy.

"Up there it's absolutely beautiful," says Karen. "No matter how high I have to go, I always take a moment to look around. It is a sight that few others see."

KAREN REPORTS only one close call. "When the ropes broke while she was atop a 147-foot pole. Fortunately she had one hand around the pole and her father, working nearby, was able to send wire up to the top of the pulley. She used this to repair the rope.

Seated in a bosun's chair, Karen begins her ascent up a pole by looping ropes around it, working her way slowly to the top. All the while she sends and receives. The journey up usually takes an hour and a half. She paints while coming down — which takes about as much time as going up.

Russ Call To Foes Of Mao

MOSCOW, Sunday (AP) — The Soviet Communist Party organ Pravda called today upon opponents of Mao Tse-tung inside China to halt his "erroneous course."

The most sweeping attack on Peking made here in recent years charged that Mao's policies have brought "failures in domestic and foreign policy" that caused growing dissatisfaction in China.

The attack, made in an editorial, for the first time clearly lined the Kremlin up with the dissatisfied elements.

"THE INTERESTS of unity of all revolutionary forces in the struggle against imperialism demand that the nationalistic, anti-Soviet policy and attempts to distort Marxism-Leninism and replace it with the ideology and practice of Mao Tse-tungism be overcome."

How this might be overcome was not made clear by Pravda.

But the "demand" was the first Soviet appeal for opposition within China to Mao's "great cultural revolution."

Aden's Politicos Explode a Bomb

ADEN (UPI) — Terrorists set off a bomb in the headquarters of the United National Party Friday night while its secretary, Hussein Bayoumi, was attending the United Nations trusteeship council's Aden debate in New York.

No casualties were reported. The United National Party opposes the South Yemen Liberation Front, Egypt and the Yemen, accusing them of wholesale terrorism, assassinations and intimidation.

Finland Reduces Army Draft Term

HELSINKI (UPI)—Draftees learned Saturday their eight-month tours of duty will be cut to seven in a move by the Finnish government to reduce defense spending.

A bill authorizes draftees an extra month's leave in 1967. The measure excludes officers and non-commissioned officers, whose tour of duty is 11 months.

VINSON MASSIF—16,860 FT.

Americans to Climb Antarctic Peak

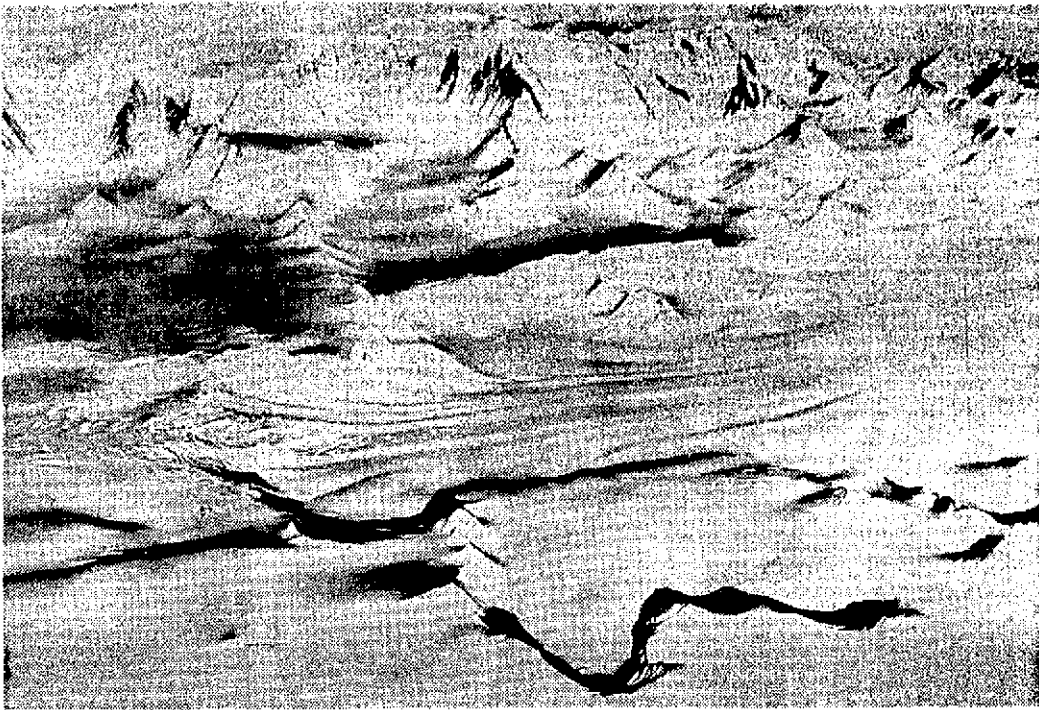

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eleven American mountaineers will attempt next month the first ascent of Vinson Massif, at 16,860 feet the highest peak in Antarctica, the only continent whose loftiest mountains remain unconquered.

CLINCH

This was announced Saturday night by the National Geographic Society and the American Alpine Club are sponsoring the expedition; arrangements were made through the foundation.

"Geological and paleontological research in the Vinson Massif area is of prime interest to the National Geographic Society and the American scientific community," an announcement said. "Promising fossils already have been found there."

YANKS HOPE TO SPEND CHRISTMAS ON THESE ICY PEAKS

The Vinson Massif, largely covered by ice and snow, rises in the sentinel range of the Ellsworth Mountains in west Antarctica, about 1,300 miles from the main U.S. station at McMurdo Sound, and about 1,500 miles from the southern tip of South America.

THE MOUNTAINS were discovered by Lincoln Ellsworth on his 1935 trans-Antarctic flight. However, no party ever saw them from the surface until the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58.

The Vinson Massif was named for former Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., for many years chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

University of Minnesota geologists have made extensive geological investigations of the Ellsworth Mountains and found fossils of ancient sea life, but they have not yet penetrated to the higher reaches of the range, the Geographic Society's statement said.

Leader of the expedition is Nicholas Clinch, a Los Angeles lawyer who led Himalayan expeditions that made the first successful climbs of Mt. Masherbrum and Hidden Peak. Also in the party will be Barry Corbet of Jackson Hole, Wyo., a member of the successful American Mt. Everest expedition.

The expedition will leave Los Angeles on Dec. 3. The U.S. Navy will fly the party from Christchurch, New Zealand, to McMurdo Station on Dec. 6, and on the interior the next day, weather permitting. The schedule calls for the party to be in the region for about six weeks.

THE EXPEDITION will climb without the aid of oxygen equipment. Temperatures are expected to range from 10 degrees above zero to 35 below.

Scientific members of the party are Dr. William E. Long of Alaska Methodist University; John P. Evans, of the University of Minnesota; and Charles D. Hollister of the Lamont Geological Observatory of Columbia University. Long and Evans have had previous Antarctic experience and are expert climbers.

Resides Corbet, the mountaineering members of the expedition are Dr. Julian Ansell, Eiichi Fukushima, and Peter K. Schoening, all of Seattle, Wash.; Brian S. Marts, of Estes Park, Colo., and Seattle; Dr. Samuel C. Silverstein, New York City; and Richard W. Wahlstrom, Edmonds, Wash.

Teens Turn On 17 Hydrants

COLUMBUS, Ind. (UPI)—Four teen-agers were arrested Saturday after 17 fire hydrants were turned on here, wasting a million gallons of water and damaging buildings and lawns.

Several residents reported damaged lawns from the flood, and a home and a factory suffered some seepage.

The youths also admitted they turned on three fire hydrants and sounded a fire alarm at Hope, Ind., Saturday, police said.

Columbus officers who arrested them were not certain what charges would be brought against the four. All were released to the custody of their parents pending the filing of formal charges.

Military-chartered 707 jet liner with 147 persons on board makes landing at Oakland International Airport on foam-covered runway. Red Truce Bid May Be Squeeze licly speak of a much more protracted conflict, the possibility of actual peace moves intensifies the argument over how the U.S. should then seek its objectives.

Thus the precise concern at this point with a Christmas truce and how it should be handled has important implications for the longer future.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military commander in South Viet Nam, said in an interview this week in the magazine U.S. News and World Report that North Vietnamese infiltration into South Viet Nam has climbed to 7,000 men a month, and he argued that bombing the north has been of vital importance in keeping infiltration even to such a high level. He said it is "naive to think we can gain an advantage by discontinuing or reducing the level of the air campaign."

About the same time, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, a White House adviser and a former ambassador in Saigon, urged that the U.S. follow a "hard-nosed" policy in peace maneuvers and not lightly trade away its bombing of the north, which he called a "blue chip" for diplomatic bargaining.

A few days earlier, Pentagon officials warned that in their view any pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam would benefit the Communists.

THE VIET CONG broadcast orders to its forces Saturday to observe a two-day Christmas truce and a separate two-day New Year's truce in Viet Nam.

It made the orders conditional on observance of the cease-fire by the U.S. and its allies.

The truces would be in effect from 7 a.m. Saigon time on Dec. 24 to 7 a.m. on Dec. 26, and from 7 a.m. Saigon time on Dec. 31 to 7 a.m. Jan. 2.

The western New Year corresponds this year with the Buddhist New Year, Tet, which traditionally is a major holiday for the Vietnamese.

In 1965, the Viet Cong proclaimed a truce of 12 hours beginning at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve, and generally are credited with observing it. But they accused the U.S. and its allies of violating Viet Cong terms.

Holy Donder and Blitzen, What Nerve!

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The Snow Princess reported Saturday that a thief crept into the Christmas Castle and stole $10 from her purse.

The purse was rifled in an unlocked dressing room of the castle, a make-believe residence maintained during the pre-Christmas shopping season by Decatur merchants.

way and foam was spread to guard against possible fire, emergency measures were taken aboard the plane.

The soldiers were told to take their boots off. If left on, injuries could result in the event of a crash as legs failed about.

After 45 minutes of circling the airport, Weekley brought the plane down again. The nosewheel strut partly collapsed as the plane rolled through the foam. Smoke was visible, but there was no fire.

"A few sparks flew and there was some smoke but the foam on the runway flew up into the wheel chamber and extinguished the sparks," said Capt. Doran Silvers of the Oakland and fire department. Seven pieces of emergency equipment responded.

As soon as the plane stopped, the soldiers were evacuated through emergency exits. Wearing fatigue clothing and carrying rifles, they slid down canvas chutes and climbed aboard five buses parked nearby.

Other flights were held up for about an hour during the emergency.

For Weekley, it was the second chilling airborne episode in a little over a year. On Nov. 8, 1965, Weekley was a passenger in a crash of a 727 jet as it approached Greater Cincinnati Airport.

Weekley and three others survived, but 58 persons were killed. Weekley spent several days in a hospital, alive only because he was thrown from the aircraft.

Names of the soldiers were not disclosed.

The stewardesses aboard the plane were Judy Clarkson, 22; Melodie Maynard, 21; Lee Reynolds, 21, and Joyce Barnofski. All are based in San Francisco. They declined to give their hometowns.

Flight-deck personnel, besides Weekley, were First Officer Lewis N. Hyatt of San Jose, Calif., and Engineer Ronnie Maricle of Houston, Tex.

Six Convicts Escape Prison

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Six "extremely dangerous" prisoners, armed with zip guns and a revolver, escaped from the Allegheny County jail in a police patrol car Saturday with a city traffic policeman as hostage.

The six were captured less than two hours later, after they had released the hostage a short distance from the jail.

A workhouse guard was shot and wounded while taking part in the capture of the six men.

Three of the escapees had staged a spectacular escape attempt at the Western State Penitentiary here last year, in which they had taken guards as hostages and tossed homemade grenades at guards and state police. Two of the other escapees were convicted arsonists and murderers.

THE WOUNDED guard, Frank Colnell, 22, was reported in "good" condition at Allegheny General Hospital with a gunshot wound of the right arm.

The policeman hostage, John Daniels, whose revolver was taken by the escapees, was not harmed.

The prisoners stole three automobiles in their frustrated flight to freedom, and beat up a man and his wife and daughter while attempting to steal their car. The couple and the girl were treated at a hospital.

The escapees were identified as:

Mock Nuclear Attack to Test Civil Defense

By EARL GRISWOLD

A mock exercise in nuclear warfare will test the efficiency of civil defense agencies across the nation Wednesday. The public will not participate.

In Long Beach, an emergency operating center will go into action in the basement of the Public Safety Building.

Civil defense teams — involving up to 70 city employees and a handful of volunteer amateur radio operators — will reckon with simulated conditions of havoc that would follow nuclear bomb blasts.

IN THE IMAGINARY attacks, several nuclear bombs will be presumed dropped at various target areas in the state. As make-believe fallout clouds drift across the land, civil defense workers will plot radiological information and forecasts.

The exercise, first of its kind since 1960, is aimed at testing coordination of federal, state and local governments in civil defense actions.

Long Beach participation will be directed by City Administrator John R. Mansell. Under the city's Civil Defense Plan, Mansell changes hats, becoming CD director in event of disaster, charged with safeguarding life and property, minimizing the disaster and bringing the community back to normal life. The plan links Long Beach with regional, state and federal CD networks.

MOST OF THE city's advance planning for the exercises falls on the shoulders of Evar Peterson, coordinator of disaster services, who is responsible directly to Mansell.

Ruse Nets $25,000 in Bank Job

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—A well-dressed gunman, posing as a government agent, telephoned a bank official for an appointment, then calmly robbed the bank of $25,000 Saturday and escaped with the bank official as a hostage.

William E. Pierce, 33, senior vice president and cashier of the First National Bank, was released unharmed in a movie theater in Charlotte, some 40 miles east of Shelby, nearly three hours later.

Pierce's secretary, Mrs. Charles Wray, told officers a man telephoned the bank about 12:30 p.m., said he was a government agent, and asked that Pierce remain at the bank about 20 minutes until he arrived.

CLEVELAND County Sheriff Haywood Allen said the bandit, carrying a briefcase, first went to Mrs. Mabel Elliott, a teller, and asked to see Pierce "on government business." Mrs. Elliott referred her to Clarence Mull, another vice president, who took him to Pierce's office.

The Charlotte office of the FBI said the man showed a Georgia Bureau of Investigation card in Pierce's office.

The bandit then pulled a pistol, took the cash and drove away with Pierce.

WHEN THEY arrived in Charlotte, the bank official said, the bandit took him into a theater on busy Tryon Street. He made Pierce sit down and told him not to leave for 30 minutes—that he had a confederate waiting outside who would kill him.

Pierce left the theater within a few minutes and walked to the FBI's Charlotte office, some six blocks away, and reported the robbery.

N.Y. Times to Print Large Type Paper

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The New York Times announced Saturday that it will print a special weekly edition in large type for readers whose vision is impaired. The first issue will be published March 6, 1967.

The weekly will be a 24-page tabloid-size newspaper. It will contain specially edited material from the regular editions of the Times. About half the material will come from the News of the Week In Review section of the Sunday edition of the Times.

preparation that have gone into local civil defense planning.

The exercise helps point up ways to improve disaster fire protection, traffic and crowd control, sanitation and anti-sabotage measures.

"With nuclear warfare, there can be no adequate preparation for all eventualities," Peterson said. "You can only do your best to anticipate possible needs."

But big strides in preparedness have been taken since the city established its Civil Defense department under Peterson nearly five years ago.

Among the gains that can be cited are plans which are ready to be swept from planning boards to reality in event of disaster.

—Hospital facilities could be boosted overnight from 3,000 beds to 10,000 emergency beds, with the number limited by the available doctors and trained medical personnel.

—An emergency welfare program could be put into effect for homeless people streaming into the area, if Long Beach should escape major damage. The city could take care of 100,000 refugees "with relative ease" using the school system. If hard-pressed, another 100,000 persons could be housed in churches, libraries and large public buildings, with cooperation of Red Cross needed to carry out the project.

—A public fallout shelter system is constantly being expanded. At present there are shelters marked and stocked that could house 100,000 people for two weeks. Shelters with another 100,000 spaces have been located, but are not yet marked or stocked.

Maj. Frank R. Fischl, 39, son of Mrs. Helen M. Fischl, 1365 Argonne Ave., has been awarded the Silver Star, the nation's third-highest decoration for gallantry in action.

Gen. Bruce Holloway, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, made the presentation last Sept. 3 to Fischl who is commander of the 433rd Tactical Fighter Squadron in Southeast Asia.

MAJ. FISCHL'S mother is an employe of The Independent, Press-Telegram, and his own safety...and completely destroyed the target."

AS COMMANDER of the 433rd, the major leads one of four squadrons in the 8th tactical Fighter Wing, the leading "ace" wing in Southeast Asia with six MIG kills to its credit. The wing went to Southeast Asia in December 1965 and has flown more than 20,000 combat strikes against Communist forces, nearly half of them at night.

Maj. Fischl has 110 missions to his credit, 55 of them at night. He is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy and a veteran of 15 years military service.

Jet Plant Blast Injures 17 Men

CINCINNATI (AP)—At least 17 men were injured Saturday night in an explosion and fast fire at the huge General Electric Co. plant in suburban Evendale. Three were hospitalized, one in critical condition.

David F. Shaw, vice president and general manager of the jet engine plant, said the explosion occurred during a shift change when many employees were present. He said everyone was accounted for.

A United Auto Workers Union spokesman said it was the second explosion in the same area within a month, and called for a "full scale investigation."

William Barnes, international representative for the union, said he would urge union members not to work in the area until a safety inspection is made by the State of Ohio.

THREE MEN were admitted to Good Samaritan Hospital. Ten others were treated in Jewish Hospital. Four other employees were given first aid treatment at the plant dispensary.

The critically injured man was Jess Walden, 21, of Hamilton, Ohio, who suffered second and third-degree burns. Also hospitalized were LeRoy Brown, 25, of Cincinnati, and William Clerley of Mount Orab. They were listed in serious condition.

A GE spokesman said the explosion, followed by a fire, was in a spraying area where jet engine parts are coated. The cause was not known. Damage was believed to be considerable.

Parents Keep Pupils Home, Face Prison

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)—Twelve men and women were convicted Saturday of violating the New Mexico state constitution by refusing to send their children to school because of a hazardous school bus route.

Sentencing was delayed until next week. They could be sent to jail for three months.

Ten of the 24 children in question were called to the witness stand by Asst. Atty. E. E. Chavez. They all confirmed they had been kept at home because their parents were worried about the road to the school, which the local sheriff called "slick as gum."

THE CONVICTED parents live in and around the tiny town of Canones in northern New Mexico. The Canones school was shut down this year, except for the first three grades, because of a shortage of funds, and youngsters were directed to attend school at Coyote, 14 miles away.

But the road to Coyote is a poor one. Benny Naranjo, the 22-year-old sheriff of Rio Arriba County, testified that during or after rain or snowstorms, the road became a mass of mud.

A MOVIE shown in the courtroom by defense attorney Ed Felder showed a winding, narrow road bordered by sheer drops on one side and mountains on the other.

Dist. Judge Samuel Z. Montoya said he sympathized with the parents.

"You are entitled to a better road," he said, but he said the evidence was not sufficient to permit violation of the constitutional provision.

New Plan Gives Cut To States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican congressional leader spelled out Saturday a plan for the federal government to share up to 5 per cent of the money collected in individual income taxes with state and local governments.

For the current fiscal year, that would funnel about $1.8 billion to the states and local communities, according to Rep. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., author of the plan.

Goodell is chairman of the House GOP Planning and Research Committee. His report is based on a study prepared for the committee by Dr. Richard Nathan, an economist with the Brookings Institution in Washington.

GOODELL'S proposal is the latest—and one of the most specific—of various tax-sharing plans that have been suggested in and out of Congress.

Under Goodell's plan, the states in the first year would get back from the U.S. Treasury 3 per cent of individual income tax revenues. This amount would rise gradually over the next four years until it reached a ceiling of 5 per cent.

The money would be divided this way:

—Fifty per cent would be for use by the state in any way it saw fit.

—Forty-five per cent would be redistributed by the states to local governments as unconditional general aid. The state would determine how this money would be spread among the cities.

—Five per cent would go to the states to strengthen their administrative machinery and practices.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Erhard Facing Early Ouster

BONN, Germany (AP)—West Germany's two major parties—the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats—agreed Saturday to form a new coalition government and replace Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, the Socialist leader, told a reporter he sees no reason to doubt at this point that Erhard's successor will be Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the Christian Democratic candidate.

Brandt shrugged off as unimportant the suggestion that as vice chancellor he would have much less influence, but he did not deny that this was the job he might take.

Brandt pointed out that his party had nearly 40 per cent of the votes in the Bundestag and that there would have to be a partnership in policy matters.

Aussies OK War

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)

—The governments of Australia and New Zealand were swept back into power Saturday in national elections that endorsed their policy of putting fighting men in Viet Nam. This was the main issue in both nations.

Prime Minister Harold E. Holt of Australia pledged support of the U.S. policy in Viet Nam, where 4,500 Australians are fighting, in the campaign to elect a new Parliament.

Labor Party Leader Arthur A. Calwell had said if his party won he would pull the Australians out of South Viet Nam.

In New Zealand's parliamentary election, Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake's National Government Party defeated the Labor Party, which favored withdrawing New Zealand's 150-man artillery battery from Viet Nam.

Jordanians Arm

JERUSALEM (UPI)

—King Hussein of Jordan gave in Saturday to pressure from other Arab nations and rioters in his own country, ordering that arms be supplied to "front-line" villages on the border with Israel.

Tough Arab legionnaires in full battle dress Saturday night patrolled a tense but quiet Jerusalem. There was another brief outburst of trouble in the old walled city earlier but it was quickly quelled without bloodshed.

The legionnaires killed two rioters and wounded others Friday during an anti-Hussein demonstration in the holy city.

Russ Hold 2 Yanks

MOSCOW (AP)

—Two former U.S. Army Lieutenants held in a Lenin-grad jail since Oct. 1 were charged Saturday with currency violations, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

They are Ray Buel Wortham Jr., of North

Little Rock, Ark., and Craddock M. Gilmour Jr., of Salt Lake City, both 25. They will be tried before a Leningrad city court at an unannounced date.

In addition, Wortham was charged with theft of an antique bear from a Leningrad hotel, the original reason given by Soviet authorities for their detention.

The currency charge carries a prison sentence of from three to eight years, the theft charge a maximum of three years.

The U.S. spokesman said the two Americans were requesting release on bail. He said the Embassy will make a similar request at the Soviet Foreign Ministry on Monday.

Previous attempts by the embassy to get Wortham and Gilmour released have been futile.

Smog Pall Lifts

NEW YORK (UPI)—A cold front from the west sliced through the mass of stagnant air blanketing a three-state area of the northeast Saturday and ended, at least temporarily, a three-day air-pollution crisis.

Officials in New York City and New Jersey lifted pollution alerts and Connecticut was expected to follow suit as the amount of potentially deadly fumes in the air dropped below normal.

Women Cons Riot

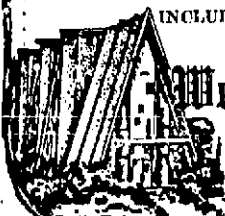

JESSUP, Md. (UPI)

—Inmates rioted at the Maryland Correctional Institute for Women Saturday. One male guard was stabbed, three female guards were held hostage and two inmates escaped before state police put down the insurrection.

More than 50 state police cars rushed to the scene to help quell the riot which was sparked by the alleged beating of a prisoner. The police were pelted with bricks and stones before they could restore order.

GOV.-ELECT Reagan has indicated he will sponsor a move to limit California governors to two successive terms. Let's look at some pertinent information on that potential issue.

If we do it, we'll be following in the steps of nearly half of the states of the union.

Twenty-four states now limit the terms of their governors. In 15 of them, the constitution forbids the governor succeeding himself. In others, the governor is limited to two consecutive terms, as is suggested for California.

Evidently, the states who have tried it like the idea. In a study that goes back to 1880, it has been found that no state, once having imposed limits on re-eligibility of governors, has abandoned such limits. New Jersey modified its limitation in 1947, but kept it.

ANOTHER precedent, of course, is the constitutional limitation on the presidency.

Taking a cue from its first president, the nation meticulously observed the two-term tradition as unwritten law until 1940, when Franklin Roosevelt won a third term. Since then, the two-term limit has been written into the constitution with no serious argument.

NOW SOME may say that if the people want to continue electing an individual to the governorship or presidency until he dies, that should be their prerogative. And this year's defeat of Gov. Brown's third-term bid indicates that we don't need a constitutional amendment to get rid of a governor after eight years.

But there are good arguments on the other side — there must be, because so many states and the nation have adopted limitations on terms of chief executives.

The main purpose of limitation, of course, is to prevent self-perpetuation and political entrenchment on the part of an administration.

California's governorship has vast appointive powers. In eight years, a governor can stamp influences upon the state that will continue for decades. Gov. Brown, for instance, has appointed more than 400 judges of all categories, including five of the State Supreme Court justices. Right now, as a lame duck, he can still make dozens of appointments and is larding the judiciary with appointments of political friends and a relative or two.

Appointments of all sorts made by any California governor are so numerous that it is difficult to keep count. And at each session of the Legislature new commissions and agencies are named, which usually adds to the governor's appointive power.

In eight years, a California governor will have blanketed the state with public servants generally of his philosophy who owe him their loyalty.

AT THE 1964 session of the Legislature, five freshmen Republicans introduced a proposed constitutional amendment carrying the two-term limitation. The sponsors didn't expect immediate headway, but thought it time to open the subject.

The proposal didn't get to the stage of open hearings, but W. Craig Biddle of Riverside, one of the sponsors, tells me that subsequent public discussion of the plan has become increasingly favorable. Reagan's interest gives it extra potential.

"We feel that eight years is long enough for one man to hold the position of governor," said Biddle. He said that the plan was not proposed specifically because of the federal limitation on the presidency, but that "many of the basic reasons apply in both situations."

There are a few facts and comments about a matter that may become an important issue for Californians to ponder before long.

Obsession Can Carry Us Too Far

IN 1840 Alexis De Tocqueville wrote of the "equality of conditions" he saw in the United States. Elsewhere in his long book, "Democracy in America," he commented with discernment on the inequality and prejudices produced by slavery.

His emphasis on equality, therefore, presents an anomaly. Yet even without reference to race in one passage, he went on to reflect on the illusion that underlies the appearance. Some of what he had to say is relevant to the 1960s:

"WHATEVER EFFORTS a people may take, they will never succeed in reducing all the conditions of society to a perfect level . . . However democratic, then, the social state and the political constitution of a people may be, it is certain that every member of the community will always find out several points about him that command his position; and we may foresee that his looks will be doggedly fixed in that direction . . .

"Among democratic nations men easily attain a certain equality of conditions: they can never attain the equality they desire . . . To these causes may be attributed that strange melancholy that oftentimes will haunt the inhabitants of democratic countries in the midst of their abundance, and that disgust at life that sometimes seizes upon them in the midst of calm and easy circumstances."

FOR THE DESCENDANTS of American slaves it took a long time to achieve even a fair degree of equality with their fellow citizens. It took, moreover, a turning away from melancholy to organization, articulation and action.

Having come part of the way, they are not satisfied. Nor should they be. Despite the complaints of some white people that they are tired of reading about "race trouble," inequality based on race persists. In part because of the progress that has been made, black people will continue to protest. These manifestations will make news because they are a part, however troubled, of the current scene. Offended Caucasians will just have to put up with the facts of life.

IF WHITE PEOPLE could learn a lesson from De Tocqueville, so could some of the more vocal of the intellectual Negro extremists. Among the latter are such as Ron Karenga, the Black Nationalist leader who appeared recently in Long Beach. Like Stokely Carmichael and others, he has adopted a tone of alternating reason and frenzy. Though he says he is not anti-white, he finds nothing to commend in white people, from Abraham Lincoln to the late President Kennedy to President Johnson.

"We are obsessed with self-determination," he says.

As De Tocqueville might have said in more elegant language, aren't we all? But whether white or Negro, we had better not let obsession carry us to the point of no return — to race war and the ironic sharing of a mutual defeat to legitimate goals.

flat yes or no?

For most of us life is just not that simple. Sometimes we are relatively at peace with ourselves and the world, sometimes much less so. Everyone who has lived very long — well into adulthood, say — knows this to be true.

And many of us who have reached this age bracket have ceased to ask the question. Dr. Banks himself remarks that today's adult is faced with "frustration after frustration." Trying to answer his first question adds another.

The best most of us can do is to ignore the question and try to find answers, day by day, to another which Dr. Banks assigns lower priority: Can you live with each problem in life as it arises?

'Ins' for the 'Outs'

New Posts Seen for Brown, Douglas

From Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON — As usual after an election, rumors abound here about the futures of office-holders in the nationally "in" party who found themselves "out" after the votes had been counted.

Washington rumor-spreaders are busily looking for a federal court vacancy in which to place Gov. Ed-getting along in years and may well decide to go to pasture.

It is generally presumed that President Johnson will seek to take care of Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, who went down to defeat at the hands of Charles Percy.

Douglas is an old friend of the President and was one of the staunchest supporters of Great Society legislation. He is not a man of great means and he will need a job.

As he is an economist by profession, Douglas might end up on the Council of Economic Advisers or, if Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler resigns, as secretary of the treasury. One way or another, he is more than likely to remain on the Washington scene.

SPEAKING OF Senator-Elect Percy, he wasted no time zeroing in on the Washington scene. The other day he visited a fashionable coed private school in this area to make arrangements for his children when the family moves here.

Percy apparently made quite a hit among the students, particularly among the teenaged girls. Exclaimed one: "My, but he's handsome!"

Watch out, Bobby.

Reagan May Not Be So 'Conservative'

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO—The likely thrust of the Reagan administration has Capitol observers in an ideological lizzy.

However, a few strong indications have been forthcoming from the personnel decisions that already have been made. If these are any guide, Gov.-Elect Reagan won't be as conservative as his Democratic critics pictured. Some of his decisions are likely to be far more moderate than dedicated conservatives would prefer.

A FIRST INDICATION was selection of Sen.-Elect George Deukmejian of Long Beach to put together the framework of his legislative program. Though Deukmejian has waged the primary GOP fight for tougher crime-control laws, he isn't acceptable to some ultra conservatives.

For instance, Los Angeles County Young Republicans two years ago declined to endorse Deukmejian in the primary. They considered him too moderate.

The Deukmejian task force for future Reagan legislation also was balanced carefully between conservatives and moderates. Among those named to it were moderates Sen. John F. McCarthy of Marin County and Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan of Tracy.

JAMES

Philip M. Battaglia, Reagan executive secretary, doesn't carry the tag of an ultra-conservative. Rather, he has been identified closely with Sen. Thomas Kuchel in previous campaigns.

In handling questions at his first post-election press conference in the Capitol, Reagan avoided taking a strictly conservative stance.

He used his press conference as an opportunity to praise moderates McCarthy and Monagan, the two Republican legislative leaders.

And though he ducked any immediate involvement in the issue whether conservative Assemblyman Robert Badham of Newport Beach should replace moderate Monagan as GOP leader, Reagan's praise for Monagan may help him hold onto his leadership reins in the face of the influx of new conservative assemblymen from Southern California.

Spencer-Roberts, the campaign management firm that traditionally handles Sen. Kuchel, also is likely to have some influence on the course of the Reagan administration.

ONE INDICATION: Spencer-Roberts gave a leave of absence to Dick Woodward, onetime Deukmejian administrative assistant, so that Woodward could help prepare the administration for taking over Jan. 2. Woodward was a top Spencer-Roberts man when the firm handled Reagan's successful gubernatorial campaign.

Some Capitol skeptics say that the early job assignments may merely be showcase appointments. The personnel could be named now, then dumped later when the Reagan administration decides which way it wants to move. It can be recalled that there was considerable turnover in the early days of the Brown administration until Gov. Brown's handlers surrounded him with the palace guard they preferred.

And if the pattern of Reagan appointments continue, it will become increasingly obvious that Reagan will attempt to occupy the broad middle base of the political spectrum.

No Doubt of Reds' Intent to 'Take Over'

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The National Conference of Catholic Bishops finds the United States war in Viet Nam morally justified as support for another nation in its struggle against aggression. It was suggested in an earlier article that they might have gone further.

The moral proposition in Viet Nam may be summed up as follows: The North Viet Nam government wants to take over South Viet Nam. It has tried twice before, and if repulsed this time, will still hope to get away with it another time. The North Viet Nam government is Communist. The nature of the government is such that following the 1954 partition, nearly a million people left the North and went South.

FREDERIC

The government has utilized its power to kill countless persons. The domination of the South by Hanoi would extend this kind of government to upwards of 16 million people. There is no reason to suppose a "Titoist" regime would be any more solicitous of the lives and liberties of the 16 million.

MORAL QUESTION: It is morally justifiable to permit this to happen?

The question goes beyond the bishops' support for United States help to South Viet Nam in its struggle against aggression, and the answer goes well beyond Viet Nam. If the answer is that it is not morally justifiable to permit other human beings to suffer the results of Communist expansion, however achieved, then it goes well beyond United States policy and beyond the usual thinking of the American public.

Yet the question sooner or later is going to have to be answered.

There is absolutely no sign on the horizon that the outward pressure of the two great centers of Communist power, the Soviet Union and China, is really diminishing.

During the past week the opinion was voiced by one of the best informed and more realistic observers of Soviet behavior that Kossygin and Brezhnev are just as much persuaded that Communism will one day sweep the world as Stalin and Khrushchev ever were. While there may be tactical adjustments seeming to signal a relaxation, the prospect of real rapprochement is not visible and the hope of a live-and-let-live world is illusory.

THIS IS ONE REASON why moral judgements about the Viet Nam operation must be broadened. This is not a separate war. It is a part of a war which has been going on for two decades and more, one war, indivisible, with occasional pauses but no lapses of intent on the part of the adversary. What seem to be trends toward peace are only manifestations of caution, while signs of weakness in the resistance are constantly awaited.

When all is said and done, it remains true that the resistance the United States has consistently mounted against this kind of expansionism has had almost exclusively a moral basis, which can be simply described as a wish that no more human beings should be subjugated to the oppression which is a hallmark of Communist government.

We have been slow in admitting this to ourselves, perhaps partly out of reluctance to commit ourselves consciously to such a large order. But as of now, it is hard to see how the commitment can be avoided. So, while the bishops are on the subject, it would be helpful if they would define a moral justification applicable to all that lies ahead.

Urban-Rural Division in South Is Handicap in Politics and Education

GEORGIA CURRENTLY is without a governor-elect because of a voter division, roughly rural-urban in makeup. The rural vote went for the more ardent segregationist of the two candidates. So close was the division in a total of almost a million votes that a mere 58,000 write-ins prevented a majority.

A week later Georgia Baptists, in convention assembled, were divided largely among the same rural-urban lines in voting to forbid any of their church-connected schools to apply for, and accept, federal loans, even when no federal subsidy is involved. This action has Southwide, even national, meaning in interpreting things in Dixie.

"I'M NOT for selling our soul, brother," one rural Baptist delegate was quoted as saying.

Still another was on record as saying that sin, and sin only, was the top question before the world — sin and lawlessness on the streets. What is wrong with the world is not ignorance, nor illiteracy, nor the bomb — but sin.

Baptist educators and leading ministers from urban churches and colleges sought to make clear that Baptist-supported campuses are suffering from malnutrition. Science buildings badly are needed in the best of these institutions. The brothers have not provided the money and they won't allow it to be obtained from federal loan funds, even when there is no subsidy involved.

RALPH

This urban-rural division is one not exclusively confined to the South, but it is most widespread and exacerbated in the South. There are many rural pastors, autonomous and defiant, who want the emphasis kept on sin. Speakers warned of increasing apathy about the church among young people. Education is increasingly suffering from malnutrition. But sin is the big problem of today.

Or is it?

Despite the plea by one urban delegate of prestige to recall that the convention has accepted other federal loans, the heavy rural majority, demanding a secret vote, refused to permit any such tainted money for education.

Back of this, of course, is a fear that acceptance of federal funds would require some of the still segregated schools to break the line. The public argument against loans was on the ground of separation of church and state. But such an argument must be placed side by side with the fact that the convention has permitted loans in other areas without protest or raising the church-and-state point.

IN THE SOUTH the majority of Protestant churches still oppose admitting a Negro man or woman to worship with white worshippers. There still are Protestant ministers proclaiming that Christ and God are segregationists. The number of such public proclaimers grows less, but it still exists and is vocal.

It is against this background that the desperate plight of many church-related institutions must be viewed. The past 10 years have seen a number close their doors. The next 10 years will see the phasing out of a still larger number of such colleges.

Nowhere is education in such a squeeze as in those institutions that depend entirely on church contributions. The tragedy is that many of these are needed. They afford at least some education, meager and inadequate though it may be, to eager and ambitious young men and women who lack the means to travel out of their geographic area and who cannot pay the bills at the better colleges and universities.

COMPETITION for teachers—and for education — is on the increase. That opposition exists to doing all that may be done to improve educational institutions is somehow incredible, even in the face of the reality of it.

Some of the more fundamentalist ministers are adverse to giving money for science building at their colleges because of the age-old superstition that "science" is in conflict with, and inimical to, the Bible.

PRESIDENTIAL WIT: From Washington to Johnson. By Bill Adler. McGraw-Hill, $4.95.

Bill Adler, prolific compiler of the witticisms of others, rates Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy as the ablest presidential quipsters; but his anthology of White House humor includes a surprising wealth of quotes from such straitlaced occupants as Thomas Jefferson and Calvin Coolidge.

Abraham Lincoln enjoyed telling stories of his boyhood in Illinois and Lyndon Johnson's favorite subjects are his family and Texas. Woodrow Wilson, good at limericks, once delivered this from a sickbed:

"There was an old man of Khartoum, / Who kept two black sheep in his room, / To remind him, he said, / Of two friends who were dead, / But he never would specify whom."

"Coolidge once remarked, 'I think the American public wants a solemn ass as president and I think I'll go along with them.'"

Lincoln could devastate an opponent with caustic comment and in one of their famous debates Lincoln said Stephen Douglas' argument was "as thin as the homeopathic soup that was made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had been starved to death." Of another lawyer he said, "He can compress the most words into the smallest ideas better than any man I ever met."—MORRY RABIN

L. A. C. SAYS Shrugging Off Graft in Foreign Aid

READERS HAVE BEEN shocked by the stories of graft involving our foreign aid to South Viet Nam. Two Associated Press reporters have given a long list of incidents of how goods we ship there are looted or entirely disappear before reaching the supposed destination. It is nothing new — similar reports have been widespread over all the years we have sent billions of dollars of aid to Laos and the other new nations of that area.

AS WE LOOK OVER the many new African and Asian countries where we have sent many billions of dollars of foreign aid we remember how some of the leaders of these new nations have grown to great wealth. Some of them disappeared and now live in Switzerland or other lands where they had sent their money for safety. All these crooked leaders have grown rich with money paid by the American taxpayers. It is estimated 20 per cent of all we send is lost to the grafters. The losses range from crates of cigarettes to tons of cement and machinery.

In the past when such scandals came to light it has been shrugged off as just something that happens where new governments are formed. But it seems there should be a more realistic method of doing what is supposed to be done with foreign aid goods we send to build good will and help the poor people of these nations.

IT NOT ONLY APPLIES to these low productive nations. It has occurred to some extent in other parts of the world. In most cases the people of a country have little knowledge of what we send to help them. The foreign aid is turned over to the government in power, which passes out aid to the people and takes credit for the benefits so lavishly given — after taking a sizeable cut for itself.

An admiral commander of a ship stationed in South Viet Nam recently returned and spoke to the local Rotary Club. He told of the problems of fighting guerrilla warfare and our objectives in this war. A question from the floor asked about the black markets and corruption we hear about. His reply was to the effect that undoubtedly some of his own men may have taken supplies ashore to sell in black markets—but they were few in number. He did not dwell on the widespread corruption.

IT SEEMED TO ME this was typical of our official attitude of shrugging off problems as something to be expected in warfare and particularly in Asia where it has been accepted as a way of life over past history. We remember the stories of how we paid tribute to bandits when we were sending supplies over the Burma Road at end of World War II.

It also has been pointed out that in our own country we have periods of rampant corruption. We remember the prohibition days and the big city political machines of the past. We are still complacent about great wealth achieved by some politicians who use their positions to get legislation or appointments which verge on corruption. The President's television monopoly in Austin, Tex., has grown into a $15 million fortune. But the people accept it as a normal way of life.

We have come a long way in cleaning up corruption by political machine control of some of our great cities. But we have a long way to go. We have extended this political corruption to many other countries where our foreign aid has been diluted by the graft of leaders of the recipient country. Now the Viet Nam example brings these conditions into greater focus. Unless we take action to control the aid we send to other nations we will fail to make the friends we hope for, because the people we are trying to help have little knowledge of what we are giving. —LAC.

Draft Calls Held Down at M'Namara Insistence

WASHINGTON — A significant secret debate has been taking place backstage in the Pentagon which will affect draft calls throughout the nation. It's between Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and the Joint Chiefs of Staff regarding the number of men to be sent to South Viet Nam.

The Joint Chiefs have been arguing for a total of 750,000 men as necessary to keep the Viet Cong on the run. McNamara has been arguing for an overall total of 475,000. The difference of 275,000 men, plus the 150,000 men who will complete their duty next year and have to be sent back to the United States, makes a total of 425,000 men to be transported across the Pacific. This would mean higher draft calls, more inflation, and a tighter labor market. McNamara is against all three.

There are now 345,000 U.S. troops in South Viet Nam — about one half the amount wanted by the Pentagon. McNamara argues that to double this would be disastrous to the economy of a country as small as South Viet Nam.

On the other hand, the Joint Chiefs argue that 475,000 men won't be enough to hold the countryside after the Communists have been cleared out. They have continued to urge a total of three-quarters of a million men.

UNFORTUNATELY the Joint Chiefs have been wrong on a good many recommendations. They recommended that bombing North Viet Nam would stop the infiltration of troops and supplies south. These have now doubled. They also told McNamara in 1963 that the war could be over in one year. It is now the end of 1966.

The No. 1 military man in the field, however, Gen. William Westmoreland, has been proved right in his most important war tactic, namely sending American troops into the elephant grass to catch the enemy off guard. This has worked. Even during the current rainy season, American forces, instead of being on the defensive, have kept the Viet Cong on the run.

McNamara argues, therefore, that what the United States needs is enough men to continue this type of warfare, and that U.S. troops should not be used to occupy and hold villages after they are taken. This should be done by especially trained South Vietnamese troops.

Secretary McNamara also has pointed out that American troops have done a better job in South Viet Nam than at the start of any other war. At the start of previous wars American troops, being green, made mistakes, suffered defeats. But in the current fighting, troops going into battle for the first time have done well. They have been well trained in advance and quick to adapt themselves to this new type of jungle fighting.

We can now report that McNamara has won the argument, which means that American troops in South Viet Nam will be held to 475,000 men during 1967, not 750,000 as proposed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

IT WAS OBVIOUS that the Conference of Catholic Bishops was not in complete sympathy with Cardinal Spellman of New York when its members gave limited endorsement to the war in Viet Nam.

Cardinal Spellman was far more vigorous in his all-out support of the war. For it was he who, immediately after the 1954 peace treaty called for the French exit, persuaded President Eisenhower to send in U.S. "military advisers" and give the first foreign aid to the South, in order to support Catholic refugees migrating from North Viet Nam to South Viet Nam.

It was Cardinal Spellman who also helped promote President Diem, later assassinated, as the new Catholic ruler of the newly formed nation to the south. Friction between the Buddhist population, which is 80 per cent, and Catholic, which is less than ten per cent, has been a problem ever since.

Many Catholic leaders dislike having the United States involved in a war with religious overtones which could escalate. This was one reason why the majority of the bishops favored a limited endorsement of the war in Viet Nam.

Shopping Problems Aired

EDITOR:

Thanks a lot, Mr. David Shaw, for your timely tips on "How to Cut Your Grocery Bill by 25 per cent." I dare say about 25 per cent of the housewives could profit by your report.

Maybe you could come up with an answer for the rest of us (many of us already aware of the facts revealed in your article) who for many reasons cannot shop under what you seem to consider "normal" circumstances.

Try following your plan with two or three tots and a baby and stand in those lines at two to four stores a week. And don't tell me that anyone can get a sitter or dad can sit once a week, either, because it's not the case for many.

How about the many that have no car at all, or very limited use of an auto? Then there are the elderly and the handicapped who cannot take advantage. Add to that all the working gals who have to dash out at night or weekends between housework, social events and trying to be wives and mothers.

After 5 p.m. and on Sundays, many of those meat and produce counters look pretty bleak and many stores are "out" of sale items. Add to that the fact that a large per cent of us don't have that extra money each week to purchase enough of the sale items to last until they're on sale again. Maybe your wife could add a few more things to my list, and you could go to work on a plan to help all of us save money!

Cars Even Safer Now

EDITOR:

The auto industry has enough problems without them being compounded by sensational and unfair press stories.

During the last few days newspapers have headlined "400,000 new cars found unsafe."

However, they fail to explain to the public that historically factories have found need to make corrections on new cars and this has never been considered news. Now, however, under a new federal law the factories have to notify the government when they find corrections necessary and news stories have magnified the problem.

I wish to assure the public that the automobile manufacturers are not neglecting their safety and that cars now being produced are safer than previous models, due to constant engineering improvements.

Art Linkletter says that "people are funny" and he's right; in fact, sometimes they're downright ridiculous.

Look at these acu-manics. Now they're going to write their own Bible. They are the religious leaders; but the peasants know more than they do. God has said: "Turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein" (Acts 14:15).

God, who owns all by creation, can graciously hear our mutiny because He has shown us, in many ways, His law: "for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall He also reap" (Galatians 6:7).

Cuts Right Wing Mail Just by Answering It!

LIONEL VAN DEERLIN, Democratic congressman from San Diego, (that's a phenomenon, not a misprint) has found an uncanny way to choke off some of his right wing mail. And he insists this is a success he achieved without really trying and, in fact, does not necessarily want.

Van Deerlin's method: He answers it!

The congressman's conclusion about letters from Republican clubs in his San Diego district is that they are mainly a one-bomb effort. When he presses them for detail, he says, they are "notoriously slow in answering." Not only slow, they didn't answer at all in some cases.

A group called Action Republican Women, Federated, of National City, for example, advised him of its support of the so-called Liberty Amendment to repeal the federal income tax and get government out of businesses competing with private enterprise.

Two days later, Van Deerlin responded, pointing out that passage of the bill as written "could mean a 50 per cent cut in defense spending, cancellation of impact school aid, cancellation of flood control, weather forecasting, the FBI and border patrol, medical and space research and all other activities 'not specifically provided for in the Constitution.' All I wanted to know was, in view of the foregoing, did the club's position still hold."

THERE WAS NO REPLY. He repeated his query 12 days later and still no reply.

The Chula Vista Republican Assembly sent him a resolution to get the U.S. out of the United Nations, noting, "Our boys are dying in Viet Nam because of a UN policy which hamstringing our foreign policy."

Van Deerlin answered this twice also, asking in what manner the U.N. was hamstringing us since we were in Viet Nam without U.N. participation. No response.

NEXT CAME identical resolutions from the San Diego County Federation of Republican Women's Clubs and the Sweet Water Republican Assembly putting them on record against open housing and against sections of the then-pending civil rights bill on protection of civil rights workers and fair jury trial.

Van Deerlin quoted them the 1964 GOP Platform for improvement of civil rights statutes and asked their specific recommendations. "I'm still waiting," said the congressman.

EL TORO FLIER

Recalls Viet in '54

By MOLLY BURRELL

If efficiency can win a war, the United States should have it made in Viet Nam, says a veteran of the French-Indo-China conflict.

Marine Lt. Col. John Verdi, 38, El Toro, remembers dropping supplies for beleaguered French forces at Dien Bien Phu 12 years ago.

"It was a matter of luck if the flight was a success because there was a total lack of coordination between French aerial forces and the hired pilots who brought in their supplies."

THAT SAME lack of coordination extended through their other military operations, the Colonel adds. Combined with divided support at home and a chaotic situation resulting from French military leadership embroiled in politics, the lack of coordination ensured French defeat in 1954, he says.

"This much we have learned from the French — one of these three factors are real problems to us today, he says.

Col. Verdi remembers Da Nang as a "flying junkyard" where only French and Vietnamese were, and compact, sparsely lighted at night.

Today, the sprawling complex includes long flight lines and tent cities and well lighted landing fields. One thing remains the same; most of the roads and bridges are still out, he says.

Frequent return trips to Viet Nam are part of Verdi's new job at El Toro. Since 1965 he's been in charge of teaching handling, loading, and delivery of aerial weapons. As part of this assignment, he makes on-the-spot checks at battlefields and then incorporates what he's learned in courses he designs.

PRIOR to this duty, he was a Marine fighter pilot in Korea and a hired pilot for the French in 1954. He jockeyed C-119's from Hai-phong and Tourane twice a day with supplies for Dien Bien Phu.

"We had no helicopters of course, except for two rescue vehicles. C-119's are rightly dubbed box cars—that's how they fly — slow and cumbersome. We really needed fighter protection and ground cover too, but if and when called Tourane where only French and Vietnamese were, nothing like the operation we run today," he says.

Textbook Protest Group Will Hold Meeting in L.B.

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

A public meeting to protest approval of the eighth grade history textbook, "Land of the Free," will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the library of the Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd. There will be no admission charge.

A statewide organization, Parents In Protest, headquartered in Sierra Madre, has been formed to "alert the citizens of California to this book." Mrs. Henry D. Austin, of Arcadia, is president of the organization.

Mrs. Phil Voigt, 933 Terraine Ave., is head of a local group coordinating the Thursday meeting. It will feature a 28-minute film and speaker Ray Risser, retired history professor of Pasadena City College. Risser, an original researcher for the book, will answer audience questions.

Parents in Protest calls the text, approved by the State

Curriculum Commission, "a monstrous deception" using half-truths, bias, distortion, omission which accents American injustices and negativism. It also writes positively and glowingly, say its critics of movements and policies foreign to our heritage.

GOP MEETS BOOKED

State conventions of the California Republican Assembly and the United Republicans of California have been booked for Long Beach next year.

CRA is scheduled here March 31, April 1 and 2. UROC will convene May 5-7. Each convention is expected to attract about 1,500 delegates.

DEMOS TO RECRUIT

Charles Warren, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has called a meeting of the committee's Executive Committee for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Hilton Inn, San Francisco.

Noting loss of an important election, Warren said the party will not lose any time in building an effective and responsive party organization. He said, "Our purpose from now on is to insure that ours be a party of inclusion of all people who believe in the programs sponsored by the Democratic Party."

Reports will be made by Southern California Chairman Alfred Song, Northern California Chairman Robert Coale, Treasurer Barry Sterling and Warren.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown will deliver the keynote address at 10 a.m. Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch will address the committee at luncheon recess. The afternoon session will be devoted to future programs.

Airport Post to Carpenter

Dennis E. Carpenter, 38, an attorney who is chairman of the Orange County Republican Central Committee, has been named a member of the Orange County Airport Commission.

Chairman Alton E. Allen of the county supervisors, who made the nomination of Carpenter, said he will succeed to the post vacated by Harry Campbell of Newport Beach, who bought a ranch in Arizona and then resigned.

Carpenter's home is at 2138 Bonaire Way, Newport Beach.

A former FBI agent, Carpenter has been active in civic affairs since leaving the FBI in 1958. He has his own plane.

In another action, the county supervisors decided to set terms of office for the airport commissioners, the harbor commissioners and the fish and game commission, to coincide with the terms of office of the supervisors who appoint them. That way, the board explained, there will be "no political holdovers."

Graveside Rite for Ralph Allen

RALPH E. ALLEN SR.

Graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Cypress, for a veteran construction supervisor who died Thanksgiving Day in his hometown of Long Beach, with Dilday Family Funeral Directors in charge.

Ralph E. Allen Sr., 58, of 770 Roswell Ave., succumbed in a Long Beach hospital from the effects of injuries received three months ago in an industrial accident while working for the Kuljian Corp. on a powerplant project in the Virgin Islands.

NATIVE OF Miami, Mo., he attended schools in Kansas City and served in the U.S. Navy 1926-30, attending the Naval Academy preparatory class.

For 18 years he was employed in a supervisory capacity by the Betchel Corp., working on such power projects as Grand Coulee Dam, Hoover Dam and overseas sites, including Arabia, India and Hawaii. During World War II he was employed at Calship (California Shipbuilding Co.) in Long Beach.

Known as "Whitey" to his friends and coworkers, Allen was a member of Long Beach Blue Lodge No. 327, F&AM; El Bekal Shrine Temple, and the Commandery of Searchlight Chapter No. 133.

Survivors include his wife, Phyllis J.; sons, Scott R., Rick E., Larry N. and Gary L.; daughter, Mrs. Janice Leske; mother, Mrs. Ina E. Allen; brother, Harold F. Allen; sisters, Mrs. Violet Reid and Mrs. Vivien Byrd, and nine grandchildren.

Probe Set In Plunge Off Pier

A coroner's medical examination was scheduled late Saturday into the death of a 75-year-old Redlands man, whose car plunged off the end of Pier G, onto a barge, and then into 40 feet of water in Long Beach Harbor.

The victim, whose body was recovered shortly before 3 a.m. by divers, was identified as John Thomas Clark, whose relatives had reported him "missing and in a confused state" Friday afternoon. He last had been seen in Redlands about 4:30 p.m. Friday, Long Beach police were informed.

Police Capt. Maurice Wishon said Clark's car was driven around several warning signs and barricades to the end of the pier, and went overboard about 1:15 a.m. Saturday.

The body was recovered by Long Beach Lifeguard Robert N. Neinsohn, 179½ Corona Ave., and a scuba diver, Thomas R. Shinn, 2149 Magnolia Ave., after repeated attempts, and the car later was raised by crane.

Final Rites Set for Navy Paymaster

Final rites will be held this evening and Monday morning for the Long Beach Naval Station paymaster, Chief Warrant Officer Joseph K. Cooper, 48, victim of a pedestrian-automobile accident in front of the station last Tuesday.

Rosary will be at 7:30 to night in Westminster Memorial Park Chapel and Requiem Mass will be at 9 a.m. Monday in St. Columban Church, 10801 Stanford St., Garden Grove. Interment will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

CWO Cooper, veteran of 29 years' naval service, was a native of South Dakota and resided with his family at 1827 Eileen Drive, Anaheim. Survivors include his wife, Amelia; four sons, Gregory, Mark, Paul and Matthew; a sister and a granddaughter.

MICHAEL P. McCONAHAY

Reds Kill Marine From L.B.

Enemy rifle fire killed a Long Beach Marine in the Quang Ngai sector of South Viet Nam Thanksgiving eve, it was learned Saturday.

Pfc. Michael Paul McConahay, 20, 1964 graduate of Millikan High School and student of Long Beach City College in 1965, died of gunshot wounds Nov. 23, his family was informed.

McConahay, who had been a member of the Long Beach Chapter, Order of De Molay, was on patrol when he became a casualty.

Survivors include his wife, Monica A., of 15359 Midcrest Drive, Whittier; father, Leonard A. McConahay, and mother, Mrs. Donnie Slaughters, both of Long Beach. Services are pending at Dilday Family Funeral Directors.

Punch Fatal, Man Arrested

A 23-year-old Whittier man was arrested early Saturday in connection with the death of an Anaheim body and fender repairman, who police said was struck in the face and killed in an Anaheim beer bar Friday night.

Booked on suspicion of murder was Noel Edward Christy. The victim, Robert Leroy Podratz, 42, of 935 N. Siesta St., was playing pool with the suspect in the Country Girl Bar, 226 N. Manchester Ave., according to Anaheim police, when the two became involved in an argument.

WITNESSES told police that Podratz took his shot in the pool game and then walked over to the bar and sat down on a stool. Christy followed him and punched him once in the face, knocking him to the floor, officers said. Police said Christy then left the bar with a female companion.

Christy, an auto-glass man, was arrested later in Whittier and booked at Anaheim police headquarters at 6:10 a.m. Orange County coroner's officers said Podratz apparently died from the effects of the single punch.

Howard Steward, Bus Driver Extraordinary, Set to Retire

By RALPH McCLURG

Thirty-one years as school bus driver and superintendent of transportation without a bus accident is the impressive record of Howard N. Steward, who will retire Wednesday from the ABC Unified School District.

Known throughout the area as "Mr. Transportation" or "Stu" to his friends, Steward began his school bus career with the former Excelsior Union High School District as a part-time bus driver. His starting rate of pay was 65 cents an hour.

Before the end of his first year as bus driver, "Stu" was made a full-time employee and classified as a mechanic. In 1948 he was promoted to transportation supervisor with 13 buses, 11 drivers and a mechanic in his department.

DURING the World War II era, "Stu" supervised "schoolteacher" bus drivers. He has seen many changes in the student transportation programs within the original boundaries of the sprawling Excelsior Union High School District. The students came from a few scattered ranches in the present City of La Mirada on the north, and from homes on the south that are now in Long Beach.

Steward was born in Hartford, Kan., in 1901 and moved with his parents to Long Beach 3 years later. In 1912 the family moved to Bellflower, where he attended grammar school and later was graduated from Long Beach Poly High. Steward has 3 children. They are the Rev. Howard Steward of Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Hazel Stevens of La Mirada, and Mrs. Doris Spilman of Seal Beach.

Outdoorsy Girl Reigns As Sail Queen at Show

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

A girl active in several outdoor sports is reigning as queen of the sailboat section of the Double-Header Boat Show, which opened last Wednesday and runs through next Wednesday, in the Long Beach Arena.

She is Peggy Smithfield, 18, a student at Long Beach City College. She is interested in boating, water-skiing, horseback riding and even plays a fair game of tennis.

Peggy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Smithfield. She does some guide work at the Arena and is one of the models of the fashion show, which is presented twice daily.

When the sailboats are moved out of the Arena Wednesday night and Thursday, the powerboats will be moved in for the second section of the Double-Header Show. Powerboats will be on display from Saturday, Dec. 3, through Dec. 11 in both the Arena and the adjoining Municipal Auditorium (lower level).

F. H. (SKIP) CREGER, producer of the Double-Header and gambling on the whims and fancies of boating enthusiasts, appears to be playing a winning hand, even though the show is staged just before Christmas.

Large crowds Friday and Saturday showed that boaters are just as interested in seeing the 1967 models in November and December as they would be in January or one of the spring months.

The United States Coast Guard has a 60-foot exhibit just a few yards from the show office and Chief Bosun's Mate John Schulz is in charge of the booth. Movies on safe boating are being shown constantly on a small screen.

Schultz added a rather sobering fact yesterday in discussing safe boating. He said that on just his own assignments along the coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego since July 1 of this year the Coast Guard had checked 1,806 boats and had given 1,250 citations, some minor, others major. He said that it might be a good idea for prospective boaters to view the safe-boating film while they are at the show.

Blood Bank Drive Set for Holiday

Special holiday-season blood banks are announced by Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross, scheduled to overcome the season drop in donations when blood needs are greater.

The fifth annual "Save-a-Life" Sunday will be held this year at Pacific Hospital auditorium, 2776 Pacific Ave., from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 18.

Dr. George Wong Jr. is coordinator of a promotion committee working to increase this year's blood donations, which were very low last year. Mrs. David Eagleson is serving as recruitment chairman of donors, assisted by a hospital committee in charge of Mrs. Marie Batcheller, president of the guild.

Mrs. Walter Brock, chairman of blood banks for Catholic churches, announces that bloodmobiles will be at St. Barnabas, 3955 Orange Ave., and at St. Matthews, 672 Temple Ave., from 3:00 to 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 12.

Mrs. Brock announced that non-Catholics may also donate blood at the church banks, and may designate their donations for credit to "Save-a-Life" bank if they find the earlier date more convenient.

PLAN BLOOD BANKS

COMMISSIONED BY CBS

San Pedro Teacher Writing TV Play

By GEORGE ERES

A San Pedro elementary school teacher whose only playwrighting experience has been a course at California State College at Long Beach has been commissioned to write a play for the Columbia Broadcasting System television network.

Luther Whitsett, 33, sixth grade teacher at Barton Hill Elementary school where he also teaches a drama class on Saturdays, said he was informed that he was the only non-professional among 13 playwrights nationally commissioned by CBS to do a play.

LUTHER WHITSETT

WHITSETT SAID he submitted his first play, "The Ebonite" to CBS and while they did not accept it for production, it was on the basis of this play and a story he outlined that he was commissioned to do a new work.

Whitsett now is in his ninth year of teaching. He was graduated from State College, where he also did graduate work.

He took the playwrighting course from the late Dr. W. David Sievers, and appeared in one play, "Othello" at State.

Louis, he wrote to me and discussed my work with me.

His first play, "The Ebonite," deals with the problems of being a member of the Negro race. Theme of "The Ebonite" is the price a Negro pays to achieve personal goals along with his white co-workers.

"The Ebonite," has been scheduled for performance at the Chapel Theater, 4164 Pacific Coast Hwy., Torrance, next February.

Seagulls Shun Nelson's Ship

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — Adm. Lord Nelson's 201-year-old flagship HMS Victory, a drydocked tourist attraction, is shunned by seagulls. They settle all over the nearby ships but never on Victory's masts, rigging or decks, and the present-day Victory skipper, Lt. Cmdr. Dick Whittington, wonders if the ghost of Nelson is anti-seagull. Victory gets the same preservative treatment as any other Nelson era ship, the navy says.

Lord Beswick Heads Delegates

LONDON (AP) — Lord Beswick, Laborite life peer and Parliamentary Undersecretary of State for Commonwealth Affairs, heads the British delegation at the Barbados Independence Celebrations in the West Indies Wednesday.

Menon Future Up to Kamaraj

NEW DELHI (AP) — The parliamentary future of former defense minister V. K. Krishna Menon, widely known as a critic of American ways, has been put in the hands of Congress Party President K. Kamaraj by a deadlocked 13-member local committee. It was unable to decide whether the nomination for Menon's North Bombay constituency, where he had been a landslide winner, should go to him or a challenger, S. G. Bharve, and Independence Celebrations in the election is in February.

HELPING HAND

Mrs. Irene McKay, Travelers Aid volunteer at the Long Beach Greyhound terminal, offers assistance to a mother and child temporarily stranded in Long Beach.

AID SOCIETY ON JOB

Families Stranded; Who'll Help Them?

Organized back in 1923, at the request of the Long Beach City Council, the Travelers Aid Society of Long Beach today offers its helping hand to people on the move.

Whether it's a Navy wife and child temporarily stranded and alone in a strange city or any one of the nearly 10,000 persons who in a year's time request assistance from the volunteer on duty, the Travelers Aid Society lives by its creed of "providing service to moving people, irrespective of race, creed, citizenship, residence or means of travel."

OPERATING from the office at 218 E. First Street or from the volunteer desk at the Long Beach Greyhound terminal, Travelers Aid provides information and direction service as well as case work services. Case work services take many forms from a series of phone calls to locate a misplaced relative, to the complicated procedures involved in affording protection to the elderly, or infirm, making a long and difficult trip—or the professional advice and counseling required to reunite members of a family who have become separated through emotional disturbance or psychological problems.

Depending greatly upon volunteer workers, the Travelers Aid maintains a small permanent staff to provide direction and purpose. Elsie Rogers, the executive director, worries about her charges—the migrant persons and families with whom she is concerned.

"OUR AGENCY," she says, "is one of 87 Travelers Aid societies which form the intercity chain-of-service in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico. Additionally, we can call on nearly a thousand cooperatives in the USA or Canada as a means of contacting family and economic resources for our clients."

"In this day of mass movement we know that people who are moving to better their social and economic conditions, people who are in flight from an intolerable family situation, and those who for any reason have become transients and are unable to care for themselves, those who have simply developed problems as a result of having moved, and those who encounter difficulties while traveling, need a helping hand, a word of advice, and many times even more: temporary protection and financial assistance."

THE VOLUNTEER members of Travelers Aid headed by president Nicolas Dallas, and the staff, headed by Miss Rogers, have a big job on their hands. If you gave to the United Crusade anywhere in the Los Angeles County area you played an active part in supporting Travelers Aid, which is just one of the 250 United Way Agencies and the American Red Cross serving your community.

Romans Brought Certain-Uh Benefits to Olde Englande

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears, for the Romans, who brought Christianity to England, also seem to have brought along several pairs of crooked dice.

"The evidence is inescapable, I'm afraid," said director Norman Cook of the City of London's Guildhall Museum. "Here, see for yourself."

He held forth several pairs of dice dredged up from the Roman ruins on which the City of London stands. The biggest die — which the dictionary says is singular for dice — had a neat hole in the side.

"Definitely a case of plugging," said the director.

In Roman London as now, plugging is one of the easiest ways of doctoring a pair of dice. You ream out a section of the die, insert a small slug of something heavy, like lead, then replace the section.

AS ONE SIDE of the die is now weighted, the lighter side — when the dice are rolled — should come up more often than the heavier side. Gravity sees to that.

"Now, examine this pair," said the museum director.

The second pair, though smaller than the plugged pair, were crooked too. Instead of the sides being of equal size, they definitely were not. The sides with the 6 and the 1 were longer than the other sides.

"Very interesting," said this reporter who, in the back alleys of a small southern town years ago, learned the rudiments of crap shooting, or rolling the bones.

"Watch," said I. Given a conventional shake and roll, the 6 and the 1 came up.

I rolled this pair of Roman dice 14 times. On a smooth piece of Guildhall Museum paper, 6 and 1 came up 11 times.

"Extraordinary," said the director. "Elementary," was the reply.

But — were they really Roman dice?

"THE BIG one was found on the site of the Temple of Mithras which was discovered about 10 years ago," said director Cook. "That's just across the road from here."

"This particular pair of dice was found in a deposit which dates between 100 A.D. and 200 A.D., so that's a pair we can tie down absolutely to a date," he explained.

The others?

"Well, one pair was found in little Bell Abbey in Roman deposits. The others we found in London wall. They're all in excellent condition."

He continued: "These dice were definitely being used throughout the period when Britain was one of the parts of the Roman Empire, and that's from 55 B.C. to 410 A.D."

You see, if you dig a hole anywhere in the city of London, the chances are 10 to 1 that you're going to find some Roman stuff. People have been living and working in the City of London for something like 2,000 years."

THE CITY OF LONDON —now the financial section of greater London—is the real old part, the Roman and pre-Roman part.

"The garbageman, as I believe you call him in the United States," said director Cook, "has been calling round only for about the last 50 years. The Romans, splendid as they were, had no garbagemen."

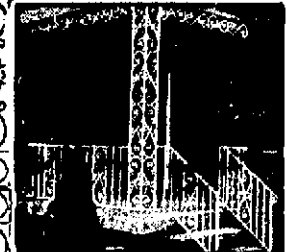

"All the rubbish was just dumped in the back gardens, and it's from this rubbish that we are finding so much really wonderful Roman stuff."

He said that when the Royal Exchange, which houses the Guildhall Museum, was built, thousands of Roman objects were found when the builders dug down to make the foundations.

"Laborers' wives are today walking around wearing Roman brooches," said Cook. "Their husbands dug them up from the area called Walbrook. The mud preserves things marvelously."

LOADED DICE, OLD STORY

The Romans who conquered England in 55 B.C. brought along dice, including some crooked ones. The evidence is preserved in Guildhall, London, where the dice were found in Roman ruins. At the top is a pair of dice with lengthened sides to roll a seven more than average. At the bottom is a large die with a hole for filling it with something heavy and replacing the number. The result is loaded dice. Familiar?

'67 to Bring Big New Demand for Domestic Oil Fuel

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Current trends indicate domestic demand for petroleum products next year will exceed 12 million barrels a day.

Domestic demand the first 10 months of 1966 averaged an estimated 11,590,000 barrels, 4.3 per cent above the comparable period a year ago. American Petroleum Institute officials say the 4.9 per cent increase is equivalent to about 500,000 barrels a day.

Robert G. Dunlop, chairman of the institute, says combined domestic and export demand now exceeds the 12 million mark.

"THIS IS 2.8 million barrels daily more than total demand at the height of the Suez Crisis 10 years ago," Dunlop said at the institute's recent annual meeting.

"The year-to-year gain over this period has averaged 2.7 per cent. More significantly, during the past five years demand has increased at an average rate of 3.7 per cent per year. In my opinion, that record demonstrates pretty conclusively that our industry is still a solid growth industry—that although we have passed our 100th birthday we haven't run out of steam."

Jet fuel requirements, partially as a result of increased military needs, averaged 377,000 barrels a day the first 10 months of the year. This represents a 14.6 per cent increase over 1965.

October requirements for jet fuel climbed to 406,000 barrels a day, some 21.6 per cent over 1965.

A SHARP increase in demand for motor gasoline has continued throughout 1966. The 10-month average of 4,807,000 barrels daily was 4.9 per cent above the same 1965 period.

Dunlop, president of the Sun Oil Co., said the industry has met this record demand level with only a modest increase in prices.

"In fact, gasoline prices today, excluding direct taxes, are essentially at the level of 10 years ago," he said. "The truth is that petroleum products are bargains for consumers because of competition in the petroleum industry. The free interplay of market forces in a competitive enterprise economy always has been, and always will be, the ideal servant of the people in all respects."

Domestic crude production so far this year has averaged 8,298,000 barrels a day and, like demand, the 7.1 per cent gain approximates 500,000 barrels a day.

"THESE FIGURES represent substantial improvement over the industry's average performance during the previous five years," Dunlop said.

There is some concern that well completions continue to run substantially below earlier levels but wildcat or exploratory completions this year are well ahead of the 1965 level.

'Y' Offers Course for Water Safety Aides

A five-week course to train water safety aides—the only course of its kind offered in the Long Beach area—will open at the downtown branch of the YMCA of Greater Long Beach Saturday, Dec. 3.

The class, under the direction of Robert Cassell, will meet from 1 to 4 p.m. for five consecutive Saturdays, finishing Dec. 31.

The course is designed for persons 14 years or older who have taken the Red Cross junior or senior lifesaving and class and want to learn how to teach swimming classes.

Upon completion of the course the students will be certified to assist in the teaching of swimming in classes at public pools. Actual instruction of a class of children will be included in the course.

Although the course is designed for people who want to teach swimming it is open to anyone who wants to improve his swimming ability.

Enrollment or further information may be obtained by contacting Cassell or the front desk of the Downtown Branch YMCA at 600 Long Beach Blvd.

NEW SWIM CLASSES START

YMCA swim instructor Robert Cassell instructs three potential swimming teachers in preview of new class to train water safety aids which will open in the Downtown Branch on Saturday.

Commerce Dept. Readies '68 Car Safety Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department is putting the finishing touches on the interim auto safety standards it must publish for 1968 model cars by Jan. 31.

Dr. William Haddon, administrator of the National Highway Safety Agency, part of the department, said the first draft of the proposed standards will be completed this week.

This, he said, will give the industry and the general public time to study them and suggest possible changes before the rules are put into effect in January.

Agency officials have said the possible defects reported by manufacturers on this year's models will be considered in drafting the interim standards.

Haddon, who declined to discuss any specifics about the standards, said he might outline some of them in Detroit, where he is to speak Tuesday.

CONSUMPTION LESS CONSPICUOUS Younger Stars Shy from Old Hollywood Vulgarisms

By PETER BART
N. Y. Times News Service

HOLLYWOOD — When it comes to conspicuous consumption, Hollywood movie stars have always managed to be more conspicuous than anyone else. The manicured slopes of Beverly Hills are studded with the legendary mansions of the old time screen stars — pink palazzos with Greek columns, tiled-topped Spanish castles with colonial facades and other weirdly rococo architectural specimens.

Recently, however, even Hollywood has crystal chandeliers and ball-begun to pursue more sober room-sized dining rooms. Though the movie stars still live in the grand handsome house in the hills, many have taken refuge in smaller, more modern homes requiring fewer servants and lower upkeep. Many have fled from over-publicized middle of it. James Garner, Beverly Hills, where maps to an advocate of the sporting "movie star homes" are still life, built a new home next hawked. The stars have developed a room, billiards vacy and rusticity of Bel-Air room, but room, projection room and outdoor putting green.

Though avoiding the pompousness of an earlier era, the younger denizens of the movie colony still demand certain perquisites. The swimming pool, of course, is de rigueur. Indeed some Hollywood writers, such as Rod Serling, normally work right next to the pool and dive in when they get stuck on a line. Another requirement is a projection room—the more automated the better. Producer Arthur P. Jacobs often screens films in his cavernous living room: at the press of a single button an oil painting silently descends, revealing the projecting room while a large screen glides down.

from the ceiling and the projector automatically puffs into action.

IF A SUBTLE competition exists over projection equipment, an even subtler one has developed the field of art.

Hollywood homes were once barren of objects d'art, other than a few Rockwells, but today it is considered chic to collect. Kirk Douglas is a leading collector of contemporary works; Rex Harrison's rented mansion is adorned with wall to wall buffets and Natalie Wood has recently installed a new Bonnard and Courbet in her Bel-Air digs.

The bathroom, curiously, has emerged as an important new display area for paintings. Many stars apparently consider it very chic to have a really important original on display in the bathroom along with such standard Hollywood accessories as a speaker phone (usually with seven buttons), a thick carpet, antique magazine rack, jumbo-sized perfume bottles, sculpted theatrical mirrors and gold-and-marble fixtures. Bathroom aficionados rate Polly Bergen near the top of the list—she has perhaps the largest perfume bottles, most elaborate theatrical mirrors, and most buttons on her telephone.

THOUGH many stars now avoid the cavernous man-

EARL WILSON The Girl Who Crashed Bellevue

NEW YORK—The one acting accomplishment for which honey-haired Joanna Pettet is not likely to be remembered—though perhaps she should be—was her facility for getting into Bellevue Hospital as an emergency patient, and getting treatment for even a cold, free.

"I had an apartment at 25th and 1st Av. with a wonderful actress, Beverly Rich, for which we paid $60 a month," Joanna recalled the other afternoon.

We were at the Club 21, where much was being made of Joanna's sudden fame. She's in "Casino Royale"—but then, who isn't?—and was outstanding in "The Group," and Peter O'Toole's favorite gal in "Night of the Generals." All this in just a year and a half.

"We found out that if you lived in that neighborhood, Bellevue had to treat you, free," Joanna said, flitting back to the days of her great privacy.

"At 4 a.m., once my roommate decided she had fallen asleep," Joanna said. "She put on tennis shoes and wrapped scarves around her feet and we went to Bellevue."

"They were very nice. They bathed her feet in boracic acid and gave her elastic bandages, and she walked home. . . . And I was always going in for B-12 shots, or for my bronchial pneumonia."

Cocteau 'Knights' Fail to Satisfy

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

One of the English-speaking world's most enduring legends recalls how when barbarism first overshadowed Europe and Roman legions abandoned Britain to the sea-born pirates, one man — and his queen — stood guard at Camelot.

King Arthur and Guinevere — their epic story echoes across the centuries in many forms from the lips and pens of story-tellers.

Now one of the latest versions, Jean Cocteau's radically different "The Knights of the Round Table," is being staged weekends through Christmas following an unsatisfying Friday night opening at Actor's Circle Theater.

The French playwright has created an Arthur, who under an evil spell, is weak, indecisive and latently homosexual in his relationship with "my little monkey," a demon-turned-knight.

THIS IS NOT THE Arthur of Howard Pyle's childhood favorite nor yet of the more sophisticated Sir Thomas Malory and the modern T. H. White. Not to mention the musical-stage version.

Acting and voice projection were sloppy, particularly in the first two acts. But there could be a reasonable answer. Because of casting difficulties a last-minute script change was made — substituting a sorceress for the very masculine Merlin the Wizard and creating difficulties for other actors.

Linnea Booker was a creditable Kundry the witch, but she worked under quite a handicap — she's not Merlin.

LARRY VERDUGO as Arthur, turned in the evening's finest performance in the closing act. Agony streamed from every pore when he discovered his trusted companion, Sir Launcelot (Paul De Luca) has cuckolded him 18 years with the queen.

Toni Pyner downplays the queen, unleashing her considerable talents only during a scene in which she portrays the demon as he impersonates her. Also doing dual roles of the demon and someone else is Douglas McEwan as Arthur's son Sagramor.

Others in the cast were Dale Verdugo, the Galahad who redeems Camelot; James Christopher, the imprisoned Sir Gawain and Sandy Johnson, the king's daughter Blandine.

It is an ambitious play, with three full set changes. Much of the set moving is done by Kundry's five "bats," Donna Meyer, Michael Weiben, Sandy Marino, Sandy Johnson and Eric Becker.

Aladdin's Genies Swing at New Theater

Going Saturday afternoon to the Long Beach Teen Post drama group's musical version of Aladdin was going to be a bore, I had thought earlier, a duty call expected from a drama critic.

But I was wrong. Perhaps my enjoyment stemmed from a young daughter sitting beside me. She hugely enjoyed the assorted japeries on-stage at the old Brayton Theater — and so did I.

IT COULD NOT BE a professional job-of-work—except in the obvious devotion given by the teenage cast to the task at hand, bring to life director Eleanor Shibley's words and Michael J. Jacobson's songs and lyrics.

Oh, yes, the amended title is "Aladdin and His Swinging Genies" — and the swinging dancing includes excerpts from the frug, watusi and what all.

Six likeable, talented youngsters with training carried the lead roles. Everyone else in the cast, I'm told, was performing publicly for the first time.

Composer-music director Jacobson lead the cast as Aladdin, the poor Arab boy who won his personal war on poverty, via the magic lamp, and gained the hand of the beautiful Princess Badura, Genine Levine.

AN ACTING highlight was turned in by Doug Fairman, whose Phil Silverish magician was a joy. Blustering like a very young Charles Laughton was Ray Hess, the miserly sultan of Baghdad, Mary Walker portrayed Aladdin's mother who — well, you remember what she did!

Among several good songs sung, I especially was partial to magician Fairman's "I'm Not A Greedy Man," complete with cavortings. "I've got Lots to Offer You," a love duet between Aladdin and Badura, was charming.

Stage setting and effects were above average. The genie of the lamp — Gerald Simmons — couldn't materialize out of thin smoke, of course, so he popped from behind a gauzy curtain to the accompaniment of thunder and lightning.

Others in the cast were Amy Moore, Farol Coppom, Roger Barr, Randy Eddins, Sharon Wilson, Dwight Wilson, Roger Parr, Gregg Plunkett.

Aladdin now is scheduled to repeat 2:30 p.m. Saturday matinees only, into January. — R. H. Jr.

RAGGED FAREWELL TO HALL

Lack of Conductor Obvious

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The highly enterprising South Bay Chamber Music Society opened its 1966-67 season Friday night with its final presentation in Redondo Beach High School Auditorium, a 51-year old concertroom still serviceable, but, unfortunately, too small for the Society's rapid growth.

On paper, it was an auspicious way to abandon the old building, the scene and witness of half a century of southland history. From Florence came the 17-member Orchestra Michelangelo di Firenze to play a program of Frescobaldi, J. Christian Bach, Albinoni, Boccherini, Vivaldi, Salieri, and Tschaiikovsky.

It was fascinating to hear the glowing pre-Schubertian lines of J.C. Bach's A minor Sinfonia Concertante for violin, viola, and orchestra; the melodious charms of Vivaldi's G Major Concerto for two violins, two cellos, and strings; and Tschaiikovsky's rather homesick (for Russia, that is) "Souvenir de Florence." Not to mention the masculine cheerfulness of Boccherini's A Major Sinfonia, and the good humor throughout the program.

YET OUR pleasure in the music did not always extend to the way in which it was performed.

Playing without conductor, in itself a commendable idea, the Florentines have not solved all of the problems connected with that practice.

Works involving soloists usually presented the fewest ensemble problems, since everyone can follow the soloist, who is accountable only to his own tastes.

However, here, as everywhere, the crucial points are the cadential ones, wherever they occur.

In a program involving no less than 18 final cadences, and a number of other stopping-places, what a conductorless orchestra chooses to do about this single item may certainly affect its total impression, not to say its eventual reengagements.

THE ORCHESTRA Michelangelo, whose average age would seem to be well under 30, had obviously made no choice, and we heard an evening of ragged endings, abrupt endings, and endings in which single instruments dropped out, one by one.

Even more evident were were recurring patches of sad intonation. We suspect each one of the players was guilty sometime, but the medal goes to the bass player, who managed, somehow, to be, in every moment, where the others were not.

The orchestra's virtues are a large and unforced string tone, a straightforward approach to straightforward music, strong and able soloists, and a respect for details of style sometimes impeded by just plain youthful rushing.

Do they, then, live up to the three names which comprise their title — Orchestra Michelangelo di Firenze? Not just yet.

Tony Curtis recently followed Hamilton's footsteps by moving from a Bel-Air pad to a drafty old mansion in Holmby Hills that formerly belonged to an oil family. "If there's any question about Notre Dame being the No. 1 football team in America today, I guess it's disintegrated with our wonderful victory over USC," roared Ara Parseghian, coach of the Fighting Irish, who left little doubt that he personally was disturbed that one wire service ranked the South Benders behind Michigan State, a team the Irish tied last week.

Ara, who was dripping wet after being dunked in the showers Saturday by his enthusiastic gridders after he had steered them to a stunning 51-0 victory over the Trojans, made it a personal point to let his interrogators know that Notre Dame was THE top college football team in these United States.

Executive Sports Editor

"Most of the country laughed and snickered at us after we played it tight last week and tied Michigan State. Well, I wonder how those smart boys are feeling today," ranted Parseghian. "We had an infirmity full of players in the Michigan State game and I personally considered that we were lucky to get out of that game with a tie. How that one wire service (United Press International) had the gall to replace us as No. 1 with a team that we tied is something I'll never comprehend to my dying day. But I hope those voters saw the light today."

The subject of being No. 1 in the nation was Parseghian's principal topic in the dressing quarters. The man was obsessed with the idea (and rightfully so, in this department's opinion) that no football club in the nation could compare with the Irish.

"There is no question, absolutely no question that we're the greatest," continued Ara. "When you score 51 points against a team of USC's caliber and hold that same team to no points—a team that has given up only seven points average per game the whole year—then, men, you've done something. And we did it today."

 "THE WIRE SERVICE football polls are great, just great, for a team like Notre Dame," said Parseghian. "We will never go to a bowl game, therefore the only thing we have to shoot for is No. 1 ranking through the polls. We're not a member of any conference, so our only goal is to top the nation in the polls. I think in the hearts of all of America's football fans that there's no doubt today that good, old Notre Dame is the best of all. We've played the best and the conditions under which we've played weren't too good most of the time."

"This outstanding victory over USC today was an indication of what determination and character can do.

"It's hard to say if this was our most impressive victory, but it definitely was our most important. This was it for us. We shot for the moon and we hit it."

"I want to say something right now, and I want you fellows to get it straight. We were NOT trying for points to achieve that No. 1 ranking. We simply were trying to win. We steamrollered and nothing could stop us. I dare say that if we had the same momentum against Michigan State one week ago, we would have beaten that club."

Parseghian absolutely refused to compare the Rose Bowl foes, USC and Purdue, which his Fighting Irish had drubbed. "How can I compare the two teams?" screamed Ara. "We played Purdue 10 weeks ago. We went into our opener against Purdue with many unknown quantities and hoped for the best. We were drained after playing Michigan State and approached the USC game relaxed.

"Both USC and we had emotional problems today. We both had been subject to ridicule and had the definite aim to win. I don't mean win in the normal sense, but win with a definite purpose in mind. Our boys happened to be ready and got off on the right foot. That was the key. USC had to play catch-up, but our momentum was just too much and couldn't be stopped."

Parseghian, who was awarded the game ball for the triumph, which happened to be his 100th personal coaching victory, claimed the 1966 Notre Dame team was "by far the best college team I've ever seen."

Ara explained further: "This Notre Dame team has the best balance of any club I can imagine. We lost six offensive starters from our original first unit. Only 38 points have been scored against us all season, and 21 were not scored against our No. 1 defensive team. A fumble, punt runback and blocked punt against our second unit resulted in those 21 points."

THE FIRED-UP Notre Dame coach continued talking like a jaybird. "I couldn't have dreamed of a 51-0 score," he enthused. "I still don't see how it got that lopsided, ST. LOUIS (Special)—A little soul searching went a long way for the Lakers Saturday night.

Super stars Elgin Baylor and Jerry West conducted a pre-game meeting without coach Fred Schaus and it produced a super-charged first quarter, leading to a 133-126 victory over the St. Louis Hawks.

The meeting was confidential. The result was confidence.

The Lakers, disorganized while losing to the fledgling Chicago Bulls 121-117 the night before, raced to a 48-30 lead in the first period. They managed but 53 points in the first half against the Bulls.

West, held to one field goal by the Bulls in the first 36 minutes and 16 points total, came back with a dazzling 17-point display in the first quarter against the Hawks and led the Lakers with 36.

Rudy LaRusso scored 28 and Baylor had 26.

Schaus, who had threatened trades and lineup changes, couldn't believe his eyes. The Lakers, who had averaged 30 ball-control errors per game, played flawlessly for nine minutes and were guilty of but two turnovers in the first quarter.

St. Louis took an 83-82 lead early in the third when Joe Caldwell sank a free throw. With six mipleted. Six of the seven touchdowns and a field goal were scored with either the first offensive or defensive unit on the field. Ara was out to prove his athletes supreme, a mission he certainly must have accomplished. It will be difficult, even for envious coaches on the UPI selection board, to keep from awarding the national championship to the Irish.

USC WAS NOT considered a pushover in pre-game form charts. The Trojans were especially proud of their defense, which had yielded only 63 points in the first nine games, an average of seven for each start.

USC coach John McKay will face difficulties trying to rebuild the confidence of the Trojans after a shattering experience of this nature. And McKay must prepare. For the Rose Bowl game with Purdue without 10 or 11 players who are ineligible for the Pasadena contest because of NCAA regulations governing junior college transfer students.

The only bright lights for the Trojans Saturday were quarterback Toby Page, who completed 16 of 33 passes despite heavy pressure from the Notre Dame line, and end Ron Drake, who caught five of Page's tosses to run his single-season record total to 52. Drake is among those ineligible for the Rose Bowl.

Rod Sherman also caught five passes to get into the USC record book. The five receptions boosted his career total to 83, one more than Hal Bedsole, who was a member of the last Trojan Rose Bowl team in 1963.

WHILE Notre Dame's passing was the most spectacular aspect of its victory, the Irish established other credentials, too. They moved 80 yards in 17 plays with the opening kickoff, displaying a crunching ground game that must have convinced the Trojans they were up against something special. Notre Dame also scored two touchdowns on interceptions, safetyman Tom Schoen racing 40 yards for a first-quarter score and linebacker Dave Martin going 33 yards for the crusher that hit the 50-point mark.

Fullback Larry Conjar, who scored all four touchdowns when the Irish smashed the Trojans at South Bend a year ago, made it five in a row when he led the initial Notre Dame push with the kickoff. Conjar carried the ball 10 times as the Irish moved 80 yards in 17 plays. The hard-running fullback shot up the middle for the final two yards. The first of six successful conversions (one was blocked) by Joe Azarzo made it 7-0 after six minutes and 33 seconds of action.

Notre Dame's quick defenders accounted for the second touchdown when Schoen intercepted a pass hung high by Page and went 40 yards down the sidelines for the score. He was aided by a crushing block of Page by Kevin Hardy, 270-pound tackle. The conversion was made as the first period ended.

MIKE BURGNER'S 16-yard return of a punt put the Irish in position for their third scoring thrust. They drove 17 more yards to the USC 21 from where Azarzo kicked a 38-yard field goal for a 17-0.

O'Brien and Seymour clicked for 53 yards on four passes to highlight a 64-yard march for the third Notre Dame touchdown, Seymour making a miraculous catch of a 13-yard toss for the payoff. He was well-covered by USC's Mike Battle and Pat Cashman, but plucked the ball away from them with a leaping grab. And then the rout was really on.

The Trojans were unable to move the ball after the kickoff and Dick Hough's punt went only 19 yards to give Notre Dame the ball at the USC 39 with 15 seconds remaining in the half.

Everyone in the Coliseum, including the Trojans, knew O'Brien was going to unload to Seymour. And little Coley, who didn't hit Seymour with a single pass against Michigan State, was right on target and there was nothing USC could do to stop it. Seymour cut in front of defenders Nate Shaw and Battle at the goal line and routinely picked off the pass for a 31-0 halftime lead.

EARLY IN the third quarter, O'Brien threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to junior halfback Dan Harshman after the Irish had recovered a USC fumble at the Trojan 41.

It was 44-0 before the third period ended. The Irish went 72 yards in 11 plays, halfback Nick Eddy ramming the final nine yards on a sweep of right end. He cracked through three Trojan defenders at the 3 to go over standing up.

Sophomore Steve Sogge was quarterbacking the Trojans when Notre Dame made its final touchdown. O'Brien was named back of the game and Seymour lineman of the game. Who else?

BALTIMORE—The Rams will try to end Baltimore's hoodoo today when they invade Memorial Stadium. Kickoff is set for 11 a.m. (PST), and the Colts' 20th successive sellout crowd of 60,238 is already assured.

It's an extremely important game for both teams. The Rams have their sights set on second place and a trip to the Runnerup Bowl while the Colts still are snapping at the heels of league-leading Green Bay. The Rams also hope to snap an embarrassing string of 10 successive losses in Baltimore.

Though favored by 8 points, the Colts consider the Rams no pushover because of the invaders' superb defense and improved offense.

The Rams have been able

to maintain ball control in nearly every game this season, but had difficulty in scoring as fumbles and interceptions plagued them. Even against the Colts in an earlier 17-3 loss, George Allen's club controlled the ball but couldn't dent the end zone.

Channel 2, 11 a.m.

Things seemed to turn in their favor with the big 55-14 victory over New York. They scored at will, and now feel many of the breaks that were going against them are with them.

The Rams (6-5) whipped Minnesota, 21-6, last Sunday and will try to make it three in a row today.

The Colts (7-3) are hoping

John Unitas will regain the passing form that has been hampered by a sore shoulder the past two weeks.

Unitas got the hook for the first time in his career last week when he threw 5 interceptions in the Colts' 20-14 loss to Detroit.

However, coach Don Shula is aware of Unitas' track record against the Rams, especially in Baltimore. The Rams have attacked Unitas 10 times in the Chesapeake Bay area and have come away losers on each occasion.

The number of losses have been frustrating since the Rams have played respectable football in Maryland. Last year the Rams led 20-14 at the outset of the fourth quarter before succumbing to Unitas' magic and some untimely penalties.

Bill Munson, a hero in the 1965 defeat, carried the fight to the Colts as a rookie in 1964. He directed the Rams to a 13-7 halftime lead before Unitas triggered a 21-0 third quarter. Then there was the 19-16 defeat in '63, the 30-27 squeaker in '62, the 27-24 heartbreaker in '61, and so it went.

Each game has followed a familiar format. The Rams would get away fast and then Unitas would catch them.

If Unitas isn't doing the job, Gary Cuozzo will be called into action as he was in the second half of last week's loss to the Lions.

PRO-DRAMA: The Rams and San Francisco 49ers have fighting chances at the runnerup spot in the Western Division as long as they don't lose another slip. Remainder of schedule shows the Rams and 49ers have games with Green Bay and the Colts. During the same period the Colts and Packers play each other. The Rams and 49ers have 3 games remaining in Baltimore's 4. That is no item that could help the Colts, but only if they win the odd game. Shula expects to have his club at something nearer full strength than it has been lately. Dan Sullivan, who missed the Lion game, and Alvin Raymond, used only on kick returns, have recovered and are counted ready for the Rams. . . . John Mackey, who pulled a leg muscle at Detroit, also is set to go. He's the chip salesman. Chuck Lamson confronts another. The Colts right end scored two touchdowns in the Coliseum match earlier, leaving Lamson on the losing end each time.

The Rams also are reported at peak manpower. The recovery list includes seven interceptions defensive back Tommy Williams (concussion), halfback Tom Moore (knee) and flanker Johnny McDowell (heel). Bucky Pate also is penciled in for more action today behind McDonald. Rams equipment manager Bill Grayholm will be special scout on the 15-minute pre-game "Rams Warmup" show over KNFZ at 10:55. Grayholm will describe various types of equipment over the past 15 years. According to the Rams, the team uses nearly 53,000 worth of footballs each season.

The Rams' defense has allowed 179 points in 11 games, third lowest figure in the NFL. Only Green Bay (107) and the Colts (108) have given up fewer points. Both have played one less game than the Rams.

Tarkenton, Nofsinger QB Keys in NFL

Chiefs Shoot for Clincher in AFL Associated Press

Scrambling Fran Tarkenton and Terry Nofsinger hold the key to the National Football League race in vital games today.

Green Bay, upset by Tarkenton and the Minnesota Vikings 20-17 on Nov. 6 and upended earlier by rambling George Mira of San Francisco, must handle the Vikings this time to retain its Western lead.

The Packers, 8-2, need a victory at Minnesota, 3-6-1, to be sure of retaining their one-game edge over the Baltimore Colts. Zeke Bratkowski will be waiting in the wings in case Bart Starr's pulled hamstring muscle causes him more trouble.

ST. LOUIS, 7-2-1, comes home to face the Pittsburgh team, 3-6-1, that upset them two weeks ago 30-9. The Cards had a bye last week, giving Nofsinger time to get used to being the No. 1 quarterback. The Steelers gave Terry a rough baptism, intercepting three and sneaking him three times in a charge led by Ben McGee. The Cards cannot afford to slip again.

In today's AFL feature, the Kansas City Chiefs take their high-powered offense into New York's Shea Stadium with a chance to clinch at least a share of the Western Division title.

The Chiefs, boasting the league's top passer in Len Dawson and an offense that averages 33.6 points a game, will be opening a three-game trip and can insure themselves of at least a share of the division crown with a victory over the rebounding Jets.

KANSAS CITY is 8-2-1 going in. A Chiefs victory would eliminate Oakland and clinch at least a tie with San Diego. Oakland is now 7-5 after the 31-10 loss to Buffalo Thanksgiving Day while San Diego is 5-4-1 going into its game with the Broncos at Denver today.

Boston is at Miami in the other AFL game. Houston has a bye.

Buzzie at Bat for the Dodgers

"When I was a youngster I just hated the Yankees, and now that I've been in baseball 25 years I realize why: Because they won all the time. I hope people hate us because of that. The more we win the more enemies we make. I like it." — Buzzie Bavasi, general manager of the Dodgers.

His club has dropped the World Series four straight, the team captain is in hot water with the owner and baseball's best pitcher has just quit on him.

Besides, Buzzie Bavasi's arm hurts as he reaches across a picture of his grandchildren to greet a visitor.

"I don't think I'll be able to pitch," he winces. "It's burstitis. I take a shot about every five months."

However, problems are Bavasi's specialty. He's vice-president in charge of crises.

"It keeps people on their toes around here," he says with the vigor of a man soon to be 51, in the prime of his executive life.

"We've got a lot of dedicated people around here. Somebody said, you call here any time of day and you won't find people on the golf course. You'll find 'em here. You may find ME at the race track, but we have a fine organization and we aren't the ogres a lot of people make us out to be."

THE RETIREMENT of Sandy Koufax puts the burden squarely on Bavasi to make the Dodgers pennant contenders again. The rebuilding program starts Monday when the winter meetings open.

"You don't replace Sandy," he says, "but we've gone through this before. People forget that Don Newcombe won 27 ball games, and we've won six pennants since we lost Don."

"Sandy was honest. He told me in September he was thinking about it. The only thing that disappointed me was he did not wait until Mr. O'Malley came back from Japan. I felt he should show Mr. O'Malley the courtesy of waiting. After all, Mr. O'Malley did make it possible for Sandy to retire at the age of 30."

"As a matter of fact, it's funny you're here today. Today was the day we had the press conference arranged right here, because Walter was supposed to be back. When I read the papers that Sandy said we wanted to wait until after the winter meetings in order to make a deal that was a lie. He and I agreed we would have it the day before Thanksgiving."

"Then Sandy called me last week and said, 'Let's have it Friday; I can't wait any longer.' The boy wants to retire, there's nothing I can do. I have to feel he was doing the right thing. Only Sandy knows how much it hurt him."

IN THE SAME vein, only Maury Wills knows how much his leg hurts, but when he left Japan against O'Malley's orders it became a different matter.

"Something will be done," Bavasi says. "An apology to the people in Japan I don't agree with because he was being paid. He wasn't a guest. But this is a slap at Mr. O'Malley and I told Maury that he has to pay the penalty. I hope it's not too rash. I don't want to lose him."

Bavasi doubts that O'Malley will want to trade Wills. "That would just hurt the club. Maury's gonna get paid no matter where he plays, and it's difficult to come up with a good shortstop. I have never been so mad at a ballplayer that I'd trade him. I'd no sooner get rid of Fairly or Willie Davis because I was mad at them than I'd get rid of my mother."

HOWEVER, TRADER Bavasi will be out to swap a few hides when he heads East. He explains his philosophy on trading players:

"A lot of people in baseball who make a deal think about what they're doing for the other club. Well, this is a bad system. When you make a deal, the hell with the other club. If you help them, fine, as long as you're helping yourself."

"This has been our attitude here. Let's help the other club, as long as we help ourselves, because if we're helping them they'll make another deal with us. But if they're not helped they'll never talk to you again."

Bavasi doesn't expect to find any unwanted .300 hitters lying around, but he's looking.

"I'm afraid we've seen the last of the Frank Robinsons," he sighs, without condemning Cincinnati g.m. Bill DeWitt.

"He figured he had enough power without Robinson, and he thought, 'If I can come up a 20-game winner I'm home free.' And I think if (Milt) Pappas had won 20 games the way he was supposed to, they'd be playing Baltimore."

BAVASI'S long-standing position between O'Malley as the owner and Walter Alston as the field manager is a model of sensible employee relationship based on a minimum of interference in the other guy's department.

"Mr. O'Malley has let me run the club since I've been here," Buzzie says, "and I've let Walter (Alston) run the team. I see Walter in spring training, I see him April 13 and then about three times during the year."

"We think alike. Going back over the past 18 years Walter's worked for me—because I had him at Nashua, New Hampshire, and I had him at Montreal—I don't remember ever having a serious argument with him about anything."

"He knows I second-guess him. I sit up in my little box and I'm gonna second-guess the world. But, of course, if there are other people around I don't do it."

"As a matter of fact, I've called him up the next morning and asked him why he did something and he'd give me a logical reason for it. Not that it makes any difference, because if I tell him to do something he's gonna do what he wants, anyway."

E PLURIBUS UNUM, TO COIN A PHRASE

No Doubt Now — N.D. No. 1

By ROSS NEWHAN
USC didn't have a prayer Saturday. Notre Dame did, and it was displayed by two card-carrying leprechauns at halftime:
"Hail Mary, Full of Grace
"Notre Dame is in First Place."

A crowd of 88,520 offered amen after the Irish shilled the Trojans, 51-0, to satisfy their own aspirations for the national championship.

"We're No. 1, we're No. 1," they shouted while throwing Ara Parseghian, South Bend's favorite Presbyterian, into the showers.

"Michigan who?" yelled Larry Conjar. "Go tell it to UPI."

United Press International's board of coaches ranked the Irish second following the inglorious, 10-10 tie with Michigan State and thereby provided Notre Dame with the crux of its crusade Saturday.

With nine of September's first-stringers injured and on the sidelines, Notre Dame silenced critics of its performance in East Lansing while awakening echoes of her great teams of the past.

"WHEN YOU PLAY football at Notre Dame, winning the national championship is the only thing that matters," said fullback Conjar. "The 10 weeks of the season are an ordeal. We couldn't care less about a bowl. We just want to be No. 1. And now we've got to be No. 1 in everyone's eyes."

The Irish cast a unanimous ballot supporting Conjar, although some denied there was a conscientious effort to bury the Pacific Eight's most representative team under an avalanche of points.

"We had to pile up the score to prove to the coaches we're No. 1," insisted Conjar, who scored the first of the seven touchdowns. "Hell, we must have broken Michigan State's heart today—not to mention USC's."

Coley O'Brien, who overcame a severe mid-week cold to become the second string quarterback in two Saturdays to beat the Trojans, argued with Conjar's semantics.

"The national championship was the only thing on our mind," agreed O'Brien. "But we didn't pile it on the Trojans. I still believe USC is a good football team. There was simply no way to stop our momentum."

O'Brien's batterymate, the sensational soph, Jim Seymour, said softly, "We had no intention of running up the score. It didn't figure to be that type of game. I had no idea of what to expect, but I thought they were capable of cutting off the bomb. They weren't . . . and the result was 51 points."

ONLY OBJECT Picked in Nick of Time

Notre Dame halfback Nick Eddy is one of the country's few seniors not affected by the merger of the professional football leagues.

Drafted as a future by Detroit and Denver last season, a reliable source confided that (1) Eddy's bonus will be in the neighborhood $225,000 and (2) he is leaning toward the Lions.

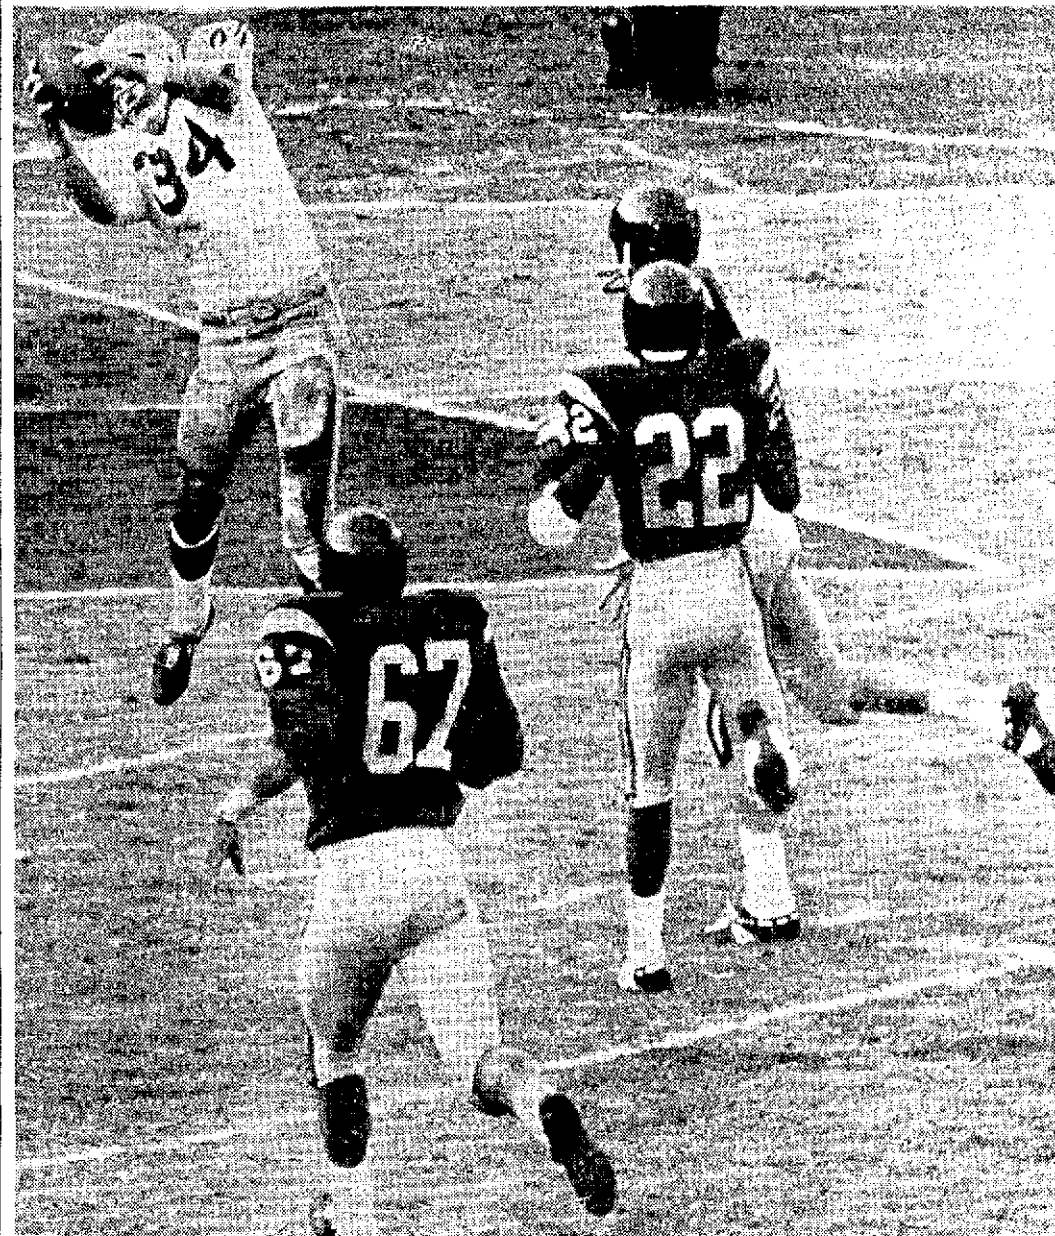

"Money is my only object," Eddy told the Independent Press-Telegram.

"I have a family to worry about and I will play for the team which presents the best offer. However, I am in no hurry to sign. And if they would give me my way, I would like to stay at Notre Dame for about 10 more years."

Detroit and Denver scouts were in the Notre Dame dressing room, but Eddy evaded their red dog. So, too, did defensive tackle Pete Duranko, drafted as a future by Denver and Cleveland.

"I will listen to every offer from Mexico to Canada," Duranko said. "The merger destroyed all the fun for the guys graduating now. I'm going to make the most of my opportunity."

RAY MAY, BUT DOESN'T

Notre Dame's Dan Harshman grabs touchdown pass in third quarter, out-running Trojan's Ray May (67), Earl McCullouch (22) and Bill Jaroneyk into end zone. For USC, it may have seemed more like the Twilight Zone.

BATTLE ALSO INELIGIBLE JAN. 2

Trojans Groom Rose Bowl Subs for Ron Drake

Flanker backs Rod Sherman and Jim Lawrence will be tested as split end replacements for Ron Drake when USC begins preparations for its Jan. 2 Rose Bowl game with Purdue, The Independent Press-Telegram learned Saturday.

Drake, who broke USC's single-season reception record by the seventh game is among 10 Trojan players definitely ineligible for the Rose Bowl under National Collegiate Athletic Assn. regulations requiring first-year junior transfers to have 24 credit hours and a 3.0 average, and second-year transfers 48 credit hours and a 2.0 average.

Both Sherman and Lawrence possess greater speed than Drake, but do not have the moves that have shaken the former Long Beach City College star loose for 47 receptions, 555 yards and four touchdowns.

Senior Ray Cahill also will be available at the split end position.

Safetyman Mike Battle, another former Long Beach City College player, is the only other USC regular affected by eligibility requirements of the NCAA, which sponsors the Rose Bowl and other year-end football classics.

Battle missed posting a 3.0 grade average by one-tenth of a point in his one year at Long Beach City College.

Three other former Long Beach City players—safetyman Earl McCullouch, line-backer Steve Swanson and halfback Mary Motley—are among those ineligible for Rose Bowl competition. Of the three, only Swanson has seen much action.

Other ineligible players are tackles Mike Taylor and Dennis Born, fullback Dan Scott, quarterback-punter Dick Hough and split end Rich Leon. The latter sustained a broken leg in the Miami game and would not have been available for the Rose Bowl anyway. There's also a possibility center Bill Adams will be ruled out.

The loss of Battle will force adjustments in the defensive secondary. Bill Jaroneyk, who has been playing a cornerback position since the injury to Phil Lee at Miami, probably will be moved to safety, with rover

Pat Cashman going to a cornerback spot.

Speculation on the identity of those ineligible for the Rose Bowl has reached such a ridiculous stage that one newspaper included a Santa Ana Junior College guard on its list. It can be confirmed that the remainder of the Santa Ana team also is ineligible.

USC will release an official list of ineligible players on Monday.

The result, as far as Notre Dame is concerned, should be first place in EVERY poll, including Gallup.

"If this doesn't prove we're No. 1 then I don't know what would," said defensive end Alan Page, who spent more time in the USC backfield than did Toby Page.

"EVERYTHING we did was right," said defensive tackle Kevin Hardy. "We've got to be No. 1."

The feeling exists, however, that the Irish had a chance to prove it unequivocally against the Spartans and chose a conservative course.

"That criticism is unjust, and you're damn right we had it on our mind today," halfback Nick Eddy said.

"We had three second stringers at key positions against Michigan State and we still came back to tie after being down by 10 points."

"We simply couldn't have passed during the final minute. The Spartans had more pass receivers on defense than we could have sent out."

Seymour, who riddled the Trojans for 11 receptions, 150 yards and two touchdowns, agreed.

"We were smart not to pass," said Seymour. "MSU was in a prevent defense. They had seven guys deep. They had double teamed me for 59 minutes and I wasn't able to do anything. I wasn't about to solve it in the last minute."

"You must not forget that Coley was thrust into that game cold. This time he practiced for a full week with the first-string receivers. It made a great deal of difference."

Cool Coley, the diabetic who needed the Trojans for 174 yards passing, seconded Seymour's sentiments.

"Practicing with the first string gave me a great deal of confidence," O'Brien said, "although 51-0 is very hard to believe. It's pretty easy to pass, however, when you get the type protection I did. USC tried to blitz, but we simply picked them off."

MEASURING his sudden success against nine weeks as a second stringer, O'Brien was asked if he had known discouragement serving as Terry Hanratty's caddy.

"There is no shame in being second string at Notre Dame," he said. "I suspect I might be first string anywhere else. I simply attempted to improve myself so that I would be more of a challenge to Terry."

Having routed Purdue and USC, Notre Dame sits in an excellent position to appraise the Rose Bowl, sometimes called the Avis Bowl.

The Irish displayed great compassion, generalizing in most cases as did Seymour that it would be a "good game between two evenly matched teams."

Conjar, however, made the best suggestion.

"Since we have beaten both USC and Purdue why don't they cancel the game and declare us Rose Bowl champions?"

emerged from the lopsided battle the only unbeaten, untied major football team in the nation.

Stabler, from nearby Foley, Ala., fired TD passes of 55, 25 and 1 yard to pick up what was the nation's top defensive team apart going into the game.

The victory was the ninth this season for the Crimson Tide. Alabama finishes its regular season Saturday against traditional cross-state rival Auburn. It also extended the nation's longest unbeaten string to 18 games and it was the Tide's 15th consecutive victory.

the start of the decade when Johnny Vaught's Ole Miss team ruled the nation.

The tragi-comedy, written and directed by Vaught and rifle-passer Bruce Newell and a pair of octopus-armed receivers, gave State a 2-8 record, its worst since a hapless State team lost all eight games in 1949.

NAVY PUT TO ROUT

102,000 See Army Prevail, 20-7

By ARTHUR DALEY
New York Times Service

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—A gray wave of Cadets cascaded out of the stands at the game's end, engulfing the Army football team in happy inundation.

Army had just beaten Navy in convincing fashion, 20-7, with a two two-touchdown barrage in the last quarter and joy will be unconfined at West Point and at every Army base throughout the world.

For some peculiar reason—it had to be an oversight

—no fuss was made over Tom Cahill, the rookie coach who took over the team at the last minute and performed something of a gridiron miracle with an outstanding season. Square-jawed Tom walked across the field in solitary dignity and shook hands with his opposite number, Bill Elias of Navy.

Steve Lindell, a sophomore quarterback, broke the game apart with a 42-yard forward pass worthy of Johnny Unitas. The cool kid pumped his arm as he picked out a target, Terry Young alone near the goal line. Five minutes later he did it again with Carl Woessner, a 23-yarder that sealed Navy's fate.

It was not a particularly exciting or sensationally played game but Army-

Navy carries a built-in spectacle of its own. Few in the gathering of 102,000 had any cause for complaint.

According to modern strategic dictates, the team that wins the toss of the coin almost always elects to receive the kickoff. But if the wind has any force, it usually becomes more advantageous to take the alternate choice and pick the side of the gridiron with the favoring wind.

That's why Navy yielded possession of the ball at the very start and kicked off to Army. Thereupon the Black Knights rode into the breeze for seven handsome points. The glum brigade of Midshipmen had to regard this as being as contemptuous of accepted practice as spitting into the wind.

Although no properly trained sailor would dare do that himself, the future admirals seemed to sense that the future generals, land-lubbers though they be, might have the right idea, after all.

So as soon as they traded field positions for the second quarter, Navy also went highailing into the wind with spinners billowing and also scored seven handsome points.

And both teams completed more passes into the wind than against it. Logical? Not necessarily. But this traditional series has been defying logic ever since its inception.

Georgia Wrecks Clean Tech Season, Rambles by 23-14

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Once-beaten Georgia, ignited by Kent Lawrence's 71-yard scoring sprint, spoiled Georgia Tech's bid for a perfect season Saturday by whipping the Yellow Jackets, 23-14, in their traditional football finale.

Bobby Etter, who missed his first extra point of the year after Lawrence's run, booted three field goals to provide the cushion needed by the seventh-ranked Bulldogs, whose defense was led by tackles George Patton and Bill Stanfill.

Patton, closing out a brilliant career, recovered a fumble, tipped a pass into the hands of a teammate and intercepted another pass which he legged to the Tech 22 in the closing minutes.

Georgia Tech, losing for the first time this year, generated only one scoring drive until the closing minutes, with Stanfill repeatedly throwing quarterback Kim King for big losses.

The fifth-ranked Yellow Jackets, who will play Florida in the Orange Bowl, drove 96 yards in 18 plays early in the second quarter for a 7-6 lead which was quickly erased by the Bulldogs.

Quarterback Kirby Moore hit on passes of 11 and 23 yards and ran 16 yards to set up Georgia's go-ahead touchdown, scored by Brad Johnson on a two-yard plunge.

Etter kicked his first field goal, a 27-yarder, after a pass interception by Larry Kohn which the rangy Georgia end carried to the Tech 13.

It was tipped to him by Patton.

and won the Southwest Conference football championship and host spot in the Cotton Bowl.

A crowd of 30,757 watched the Methodists win their first conference title since 1948 and advance to the Cotton Bowl for the first time since 1949.

Southern Methodist finished with an 8-2 record and 6-1 in the conference and meets Georgia in the Dallas football classic Dec. 31.

Southern Methodist called on its strong defense to halt three desperate Horned Frog drives, twice with intercepted passes.

TCU got to the SMU eight before George Wilmot deflected a pass from Larry Peal and it bounced into the hands of Billy Bob Stewart.

TCU later moved to the Southern Methodist four but Ronny Medlin threw P. D. Shabay for a two-yard loss and from the six, on fourth down, Shabay's pass to Allen Brown in the end zone was low.

Neely, the 69-year-old grand old man of college football, was a coach for 40 years and the head man at Rice for 27.

Southall passed for two touchdowns and set up the third with long bombs and precise bullets.

SPURRIER INFERIOR, 21-16

Miami Upsets Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Miami used a powerful offense to jump ahead of Florida Saturday and then held to hold on for a shaky 21-16 victory over the ninth-ranked Gators.

Trailing 21-3 midway the third quarter, Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier found the range and began leading his team back. The Gators scored twice and were threatening on Miami's 30 when the gun sounded.

Miami quarterback Bill Miller was the sparkplug as the Hurricanes finished the regular season with a 7-2-1 record and a Liberty Bowl berth. Florida (8-2), plays Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl.

The victory gave Miami decisions over Orange, Rose and Cotton Bowl teams, as well as highly ranked Southern California.

Miller beat Spurrier at his own game. He ran 40 yards for one touchdown, passed 10 yards to Steve Smith for another and pitched out to fullback Doug McGee for the third Miami touchdown.

Miller gained 159 rushing and passed for 52 for a total 271-yard output.

Clemson Wears Down Crippled So. Carolina

A crowd of 46,000—the biggest football gathering ever in South Carolina—watched tobacco-chewing Frank Howard's Tigers come from behind late in the first half and then totally dominate play in the second half.

Clemson came up with two touchdowns on short runs by tailback Jack Jackson in the first two periods to take a 14-10 halftime lead. Jimmy Addison, a 147-pound quarterback, stretched the Tiger lead with a perfect 49-yard touchdown toss to flanker Phil Rogers.

Bucs, Chisox May Hatch 5-Man Swap

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A five-player swap, conceived during the World Series and kept warm the past seven weeks, could be finally hatched between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox anytime after Monday's opening of baseball's winter meetings.

And if it is, the Pirates, who made such a strong run for this year's National League pennant, will be fortified by the addition of Joe Horlen, John Romano and Hoyt Wilhelm for next season while Donn Clendenon and Manny Mota will move over to the White Sox.

Although the meetings do not officially open until 11 a.m. (EST) Monday when commissioner William Eckert presides over the annual major league draft, there is plenty of trade talk among the early-birds gathered here.

PRACTICALLY everyone wants pitchers, and that includes the Dodgers, suddenly stripped by Sandy Koufax' retirement, and the champion Orioles, who are said to have the most excess talent.

"We're looking for more pitching ourselves," pointed out Baltimore's Harry Dalton. "We're in the market for another dependable starter and we're after some help in our bullpen also."

To get what they are after, the Orioles would have to give up Curt Blefary or rookies Mike Epstein and Mark Belanger, but Baltimore already has let it be known that Epstein and Belanger are not available.

That isn't discouraging the other clubs, however.

The Tigers, Twins, Reds and Dodgers are only a few who are interested in pitching while the Indians are hot after second baseman Ron Hunt of the Mets and the White Sox, also working on another front, are hoping to land Houston's Bob Aspromonte for Pete Ward and Juan Pizarro or John Buzhardt.

"I doubt there will be many trades," snapped one veteran major league official, who is already disgusted. "Everyone's sparring around and talking silly. Oh sure, they'll give you a couple of donkeys for your best ballplayer, but whenever you ask about one of their good ones all you get is a blank look."

were indications of some action because the inter-league trading period now is officially on, the Dodgers must do something now that they no longer have Koufax and the Yankees can't afford to stand still either after finishing last in the American League.

Since most clubs already have full rosters, Monday's draft could result in the selection of no more than a dozen or so players from the minor league ranks. Each experienced draftee costs $25,000; any first-year choice $8,000.

With pitchers of any kind being in such short supply and great demand, former major leaguers like Art Mahaffey, John Tsitouris, Ted Abernathy, Tracy Stallard, Darrell Sutherland and even Bo Belinsky all have a chance to be picked.

Outfielders Dave Nicholson, sent down by Houston, and Jack Warner, dropped by California, are two other possible choices.

The International, Pacific Coast and Southern Leagues all are scheduled for preliminary meetings today and after Monday's draft, officials will work on legislation.

Chief item on the agenda is the four-year college rule, which carried the endorsement of Eckert and the 20 major league general managers, and which undoubtedly will be passed.

Under the present rule, collegians may be signed after their sophomore year, but under the new proposal the majors will not be able to sign college players until the day after their team plays its final game in their senior year.

AMONG THE other business which will be considered is extending a player's time on the disabled list from 15 days to 21 days, and ratification of the so-called Japanese agreement.

According to the agreement, which already has the support of Eckert and the Japanese baseball commissioner, a "top quality" major league team will be sent to Japan every two years for a post-season tour. No team may make two trips within six years and no league may be represented twice in succession. The Dodgers went to Japan this year and the Orioles are pencilled in to make the trip in 1968.

After the minors conclude their phase of the meetings Wednesday, the major leaguers will hold their sessions in Pittsburgh Thursday.

Rockets Play for Double or Nothing Now

By CHUCK MEDICK

Jim Strickland, former Lakewood High pitching ace, may get the starting assignment for the Dodger Rookies as they face the undefeated Long Beach Rockets in a Winter League semi-pro game at Blair Field, 1:30 today.

Many of the young Dodger hopefuls who normally perform for the rookies will not be in today because they have just finished their stint in the Arizona instructional school and are taking a brief respite.

However, manager Kenny Myers will be doubly interested in a victory as this game will count for two in the standings. This is explained by a Southern California Baseball Assn. rule that states if a game is not played in the first half of the season the second-half contest would count for two games. The Rockets did not have a home field available at the scheduled time of the Dodger Rookie contest.

GAMES TODAY
Winter League—Dodger Rookies vs. Long Beach Rockets, Blair Field, 1:30 p.m.; Arizona White Sox at Huntington Park, L.A. Eagles at Ontario, Giant Rookies vs. Paramount Angels at San Diego, L.A. Phillies vs. Valley Dodge at Van Nuys, Westwood Bruin vs. Montebello Red Sox at Montebello.

Scout League—L. Mets vs. Norwalk Stars at Cerritos, Northridge at Inglewood.

SCBA League—El Rey Chorizo vs. La Fonda at El Medano, L.A. Hawks vs. Mary Star at Peck Park.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Pheasant Bags Hard to Gather

Ask any pheasant hunter how he did, or how he's doing now, and you'll get all kinds of answers. Such as: "Lousy!" "I never saw a bird." "I got my limit in two hours." "I traveled 1,200 miles to kill one bird."

The Southern California season is producing a variety of incidents, and the nimrods are not just about to give up their punning until Dec. 4 when the season closes. Even then, the season in Imperial and eastern Riverside Counties continues until 4:30 p.m. Jan. 2.

Speaking of Riverside, hunters tramping about in that area should be extremely careful because many sections of the western part of the county have been closed to all hunting. Numerous citations have been issued for hunting in the areas. Any DFG warden can tell you about the closed and open sections.

The DFG had scheduled the release of 3,380 ring-necks in Imperial Valley yesterday, but a higher-than-expected production at the DFG Chino game farm caused wardens to increase that figure to 5,100.

Imperial Valley already had received a stocking of 10,640 birds, but most of those were taken in the first two days of shooting. Wardens are hoping Saturday's releases will be widely scattered in order to give other hunters the opportunity of at least seeing a pheasant.

BARD AND PALO VERDE VALLEYS received 2,200 pheasants before the opener, but 80 per cent of those birds were taken in the first two days by a record turnout of hunters. The hunters were so thick several reported they had been sprinkled with stray shotgun pellets.

Inasmuch as no more plants are scheduled for that Colorado River area, it looks like slim pickings the remainder of the season.

Owens Valley got 3,280 pheasants prior to the opening and shooters in the Big Pine area had remarkable success. Once again, most of the birds were harvested. However, the Bishop Rainbow Club released 1,900 privately purchased birds in open fields around Bishop.

If you had a neighbor who came home with a half-dozen birds, he either shot those illegally, or he stopped at some pheasant club on the way home and paid an average of $5 per bird. It seems to this writer the best plan still remains a trip to a private club where banded birds are released on a daily basis. If you stop at the right club, you'll find those privately reared birds just as wild as the ones in the rice fields of Sacramento Valley.

If you are a good shooter and have enough green material in your wallet, you may kill just about as many birds as you wish in all Zone B clubs, where only privately reared birds are planted. In Zone A clubs, the situation is different because wild birds are mixed with the so-called tamer ring-necks.

THANKSGIVING DAY came and most of us were content to gorge ourselves with turkey and the trimmings, plus some rich pie, then yowl we had eaten too much. But not so with three or four hundred anglers who showed up at the Long Beach Landings and others from Newport Beach to San Pedro; they wanted fish, and they got plenty of the bottom variety—rockfish, plus a few halibut, bonito, some bass and even a scattering of barracuda.

Even 42 fishermen went to Fred Austin's harge, the Islander, and caught 200 bonito, plus a few other species.

I spent a part of Thanksgiving afternoon at the Double-Header Boat Show, just to see what kind of a crowd producer Skip Greger was drawing on one of our greatest national holidays. Oddly enough, there were too many persons to be counted, even as early as 1 p.m. Later in the afternoon and in the evening, the crowds increased. And guess what most of them were eating—hot dogs, sandwiches and candy bars.

For the most part, they were highly contented spectators, going from one sailboat to another and inspecting each one thoroughly. The sailboat part of the Double-Header continues through Wednesday; the powerboat section starts Saturday for eight days.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—A storm that posed the possibility of making "good duck weather" passed through Southern California with only a few sprinkles and many fleecy clouds, so the waterfowl hunting isn't any better than it was a week ago and that was about a 1.1 bird average per hunter at the Imperial Waterfowl Management Area.

The International Oceanographic Foundation, which publishes Sea Frontiers and Sea Secrets, comes up with some fishing gems nearly every month. A recent story in Sea Secrets intrigued me. It read as follows:

Ten-year-old Bobby Cunningham, of Belfast, Maine, caught a 9½-inch brook trout that had lodged itself firmly inside the center hold of a 45-rpm phonograph record.

"Apparently the fish had been carrying its burden for some time and it had grown considerably since becoming trapped. Unable to swim except at a very slow pace, it was scooped up easily by the boy."

"Although the record's label had been washed away, its song, 'Baby, It's Cold Outside,' was still playable."

Remember that story the next time you toss overboard a beer or soft drink can. Small fish have been known to become wedged in cans with even such small openings.

Alcindor-ella Year Forecast for Bruins

Combined News Services

The heralded arrival of 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor and his prized sophomore playmates has made UCLA the overwhelming pre-season choice as the top major college basketball team, according to pre-season polls by AP and UPI.

Although UCLA did not even finish among the top 270 teams in the nation last season, the new-look Bruins were selected No. 1 by 30 of the 35-man UPI board. Three first-place votes went to NCAA champion Texas Western and one each was awarded Duke and Louisville.

UCLA, which recorded an 18-8 record last year after capturing two successive NCAA titles, received 339 points for a wide margin over runnerup Texas Western, which earned 288 points.

DEFENDING national champion Kentucky, a physical dwarf in relation to the towering Bruins, was third with 250 points.

The choice of coach Johnny Wooden's Bruins is hardly a surprise. Ever since Alcindor, a New York City high school star, enrolled at the Los Angeles school, followers of the Bruins have been eagerly awaiting his varsity debut. That will come on Saturday against Southern California.

Alcindor, the most publicized soph since Jerry Lucas crashed the national picture at Ohio State seven years ago, has almost singlehandedly made UCLA the most feared team in the land.

The 19-year-old New Yorker averaged 33.1 points and 21 rebounds per game as the freshman team swept laughingly through a 21-0 season, which included a victory over the varsity.

THERE WILL be a lot more than Alcindor on the Bruins, however. There were three other brilliant graduates from that freshman club and at least one of them, 6-2 Lu Allen, will start. Lynn Shackelford, a 6-4 sharpshooter, and 6-3 Kenny Heitz add reserve strength to a team whose two leading scorers from a year ago, 6-7 Mike Lynn and 5-10 Mike Warren, have returned.

Texas Western is as rugged as ever. The Miners return five of their top seven players, including sparkplug Bobby Joe Hill and massive 240-pound rebounding ace David Lattin, and coach Don Haskins' clawing man-to-man defense will harass any team.

Kentucky will be hard to dethrone since all-Americas Pat Riley and Lou Dampier both return along with 6-5 strongtboy Thad Jaracz.

OFFICER IN U.S. ARMY

Real Life James Bond Takes Terrific Ribbings in Stride

By ADAM SPIEGEL
BALTIMORE (AP) — Bond was preparing for bed. He had spent the day shooting doves with his custom model P38 Walther pistol and now, as fatigue clouded his mind and weighted his eyelids, he slipped between the sheets of his Morris-Pollack bed. Brrrring. . . Brrring. Beside his nighttable a jangling, insistent telephone stirred him from sleep. "Hello, Captain James Bond here," he said thickly. "Why, hello sweetie-pie," came back the honeyed female voice. "I'd just love to meet you somewhere interesting real, real soon. How 'bout it?" Bond was puzzled. He was more than puzzled; he was intrigued. "Do you mind telling me who is speaking?" "This is Pussy Galore. My measurements are 42-26-38. My address is 4122 Goethe Drive. I'd like to see you some time."

Bond strained at the earphone. Behind the velvety female voice he could hear giggles. Then there were more giggles, then outright laughter. Bond understood immediately.

JAMES (HARRASSED) BOND

His name is James Bond. He works in military intelligence—but he's NOT a famous film spy. Capt. Bond is seen against the cover of one of the Ian Fleming thrillers.

"YOU'RE VERY nice to call, but let's drop the joke so I can get some sleep." It was not the first prank on Capt. James H. Bond, an intelligence officer at Ft. Holabird in Baltimore, and chances were it wouldn't be the last. In fact, to the 32-year-old Army man it was just another in a fantastic series of episodes that began when James (007) Bond—the irresistible but fictional British security agent—burst upon the American scene three years ago. Since then, Capt. Bond, who lives with his wife, Loretta, and four children in suburban Essex, has been averaging two telephone calls a week from persons identifying themselves as Dr. No, Goldfinger, Kissy Suzukl or Miss Galore. Hardly a week goes by without some prankster, having stumbled across his name in the telephone book, threatening him with instant violent death or a nameless torture. His life at Ft. Holabird is made hilarious and sometimes tiresome by colleagues who pun or joke on his name. One secretary, evidently impressed by Bonds 007 credentials, sighs "oooh, oooh, seven" whenever he passes.

IN GROCERY stores or at banks, his signature on a check is sure to bring wide-eyed stares and an inevitable, "you've got to be kidding." "It's reached the point where I now sign James Harold Bond just to avoid a scene," says the crew-cut Army man. At parties women ogle him, to his wife's consternation and his . . . well, bewildered amusement. Capt. James Bond does resemble Ian Fleming's million-dollar creation, at least superficially. Both have an avid interest in guns. In addition to his P38 pistol, Capt. Bond boasts a .22 caliber bolt-action rifle and a .16 gauge double-barreled shotgun. The difference, of course, is that the captain hunts squirrels, dove and rabbits, whereas the British security agent is licensed to hunt people. Both have jobs that are so secret even their closest associates are kept ignorant of the details. In Capt. Bond's case, this means his wife. With 007, it is his parade of lovers. At their jobs both are involved in military intelligence. The Essex resident teaches combat intelligence and imagery interpretation (such as aerial photographs); his British counterpart usually is assigned to steal such information.

BOTH HAVE a propensity for being where the action is, and both suffer for it. Capt. Bond was in a hotel in South Viet Nam when the Viet Cong stashed 200 pounds of explosives under it.

The resulting explosion killed two men and threw Capt. Bond out of his fourth floor chair, causing deep cuts on his face, neck and arms. For his pains he received a Purple Heart. Just about here, however, the similarity stops. How does Capt. James H. Bond regard James Bond of her majesty's service? "He intrigues me as a man, with the exception that he drinks too much and lacks self-discipline." When the captain talks about self-discipline, he conjures up images of rows of straight-backed soldiers with their chins tucked somewhere behind their Adam's apple. "In my family," he explains, "we don't drink, we don't dance, we don't stay out late. We demand strict discipline from our four children and we get it." His wife nods a silent "yes, sir."

CAPT. JAMES BOND admires 007's devotion to his superiors, but he views many of Bond's exploits as gross exaggerations of a none-too-glamorous business.

"I have read all the Bond books and generally I find them interesting," he says. "But I have to take them with a grain of salt because being in intelligence I know that a great deal of what he does is impossible. I also know that intelligence work is not romantic."

One thing he likes about Bond is his name. Strangers can establish instant rapport with the captain by playing the name's-the-same game, he says.

One quick joke breaks the ice, and the rest comes easily. This is particularly useful in teaching situations where younger students may be nervous, the captain says.

On the other side of the coin, however, are those midnight telephone calls.

NOT TOO LONG ago his wife took a call at 1 a.m. asking if Mr. Bond would drop everything and join the female caller for a drink at Joe's place.

Intent upon catching the would-be playmate, Mrs. Bond identified herself as the babysitter. She said the Bonds were out but asked if she could take a name and telephone number.

"Holy Christmas!" said the voice on the other end. "If he's married and old enough to have children, I'm not interested." She abruptly hung up.

Gently, Mrs. Bond laid down the receiver and, without waking her husband, fell into a pleasant sleep.

YOUNGEST EVER IN 'WORLD SERIES'

Boy, 15, Fights for Life and for Bridge Points

By GLORIA WOLFORD

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Fifteen-year-old Billy Gough is a born fighter who wants to win in life and at the bridge table.

He's ahead in both games. Billy was the youngest player to ever qualify for the American Contract Bridge League's Blue Ribbon Pairs—the World Series of bridge.

He plays calmly, with no trace of emotion, in the midst of the world's best bridge players, smartly dressed international stars at home in the chandelier hung ballroom in which the league's 40th annual fall tournament is being held. Play ends Monday.

Dressed in a gray sweater with red stripes, Billy looked younger than his 15 years. Doctors once told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon S. Gough of Philadelphia, that Billy would not live to the age of 10.

HE IS THE victim of a congenital disease, muscular atrophy, which claimed the lives of two other Gough children, one in infancy and one at age 2.

By winning a regional open pairs championship in October, Billy actually had qualified for next year's national tournament. The league officials permitted him to play this year because doctors feared he might not be able to play next year.

Incredibly, however, "Billy is getting stronger," said Leon Gough as he watched his son play difficult games of bridge for eight hours.

"I HAVE A knack for bridge," Billy said. "It's a real challenge. You never know what's going to happen. You never know what the machine will give you."

Billy began to play duplicate bridge in 1964. Early in 1966 he and his father won a novice pairs championship at a weekend sectional tournament in Philadelphia.

In that tournament he met Mrs. Kenneth Fillingham of Niagara Falls, N.Y., a slight blonde woman who became his partner. They played together last October in a regional tournament at Harrisburg, Pa.

OTHER BRIDGE buffs, noting a young boy playing with a woman, figured they would pick up some extra points in an easy match. That was not how it worked out. Billy and Mrs. Fillingham won the open pairs championship.

Billy and Mrs. Fillingham were eliminated in the semifinals of the Blue Ribbon Pairs—along with Garozzo and Shariff, Samuyl Kehela of Toronto, a member of the North American Team, and many other stars.

"We could have made it," Billy said in disgust. "But I made a few mistakes and my partner made a few and in this competition, all you can afford is two."

As Billy's strength grows, his parents' hopes soar. Leon Gough talks of careers for Billy. "You can't make a living playing bridge," Gough, a manufacturer's agent for seven companies in the paint industry, said with assurance.

What Were YOU Doing

... when the people at Douglas MSSD ran the 30-day test, with a 5-man crew, in the space cabin simulator? Whatever you were doing — we'll be willing to bet it wasn't, or isn't, as exciting as our manned spacecraft programs will be.

If you are a structural engineer, your duties will consist of primary structural layouts and design analysis of composite and integral aluminum structure. Your activities in support of this effort will also consist of extensive coordination with other interfacing design and design support sections as well as with the tooling and manufacturing departments.

There are also challenges waiting for mechanical, electronic propulsion and computing engineers in the far reaching technologies demanded for manned space programs. Get in the know now. Send in this coupon and we will get in touch with you to discuss a particular position at Douglas MSSD where a LOT OF TOMORROW IS HAPPENING TODAY.

RYAN WILL BE INTERVIEWING IN LONG BEACH

For Aeronautical & Electronic Engineers
Friday, December 2, and Saturday, December 3
Edgewater Inn 8 A.M. to 8 P.M.

For Personal Interview CALL JOHN DOREN (213) 434-8451

Your future will move faster at Ryan because Ryan is FIRST in Target Drones, FIRST in Space Electronics and FIRST in V/STOL. If you're an engineer with tomorrow in your mind, we need you on the FIRST TEAM. Engineers who will tackle new requirements for Firebee jet target systems; and design, build, and flight test the new supersonic Firebee II for the Navy. Challenging? You bet! And how about working with the FIRST TEAM in lunar landing radar systems and other space and earth-oriented electronics? The team that built the landing radar that cushioned the Surveyor's landing on the moon? Keep going!

We also need imaginative minds that can look to new tactical applications of Ryan's world-leading high performance Vertifan V/STOL capabilities. We have the programs, the engineering challenges and the rewards at Ryan. With our Program Manager concept, you work closely with men at the top getting recognition along with increased knowledge and experience. You grow with the fantastic growth that has doubled Ryan's employment in the past year; you work with the best engineering minds and the best engineering tools in the industry, including computers and simulation laboratories. Our job is to stay in FIRST PLACE. Your place is on our FIRST TEAM. Visit Ryan. Discuss our programs; talk with our people. You can't afford not to accept this challenge. To arrange a personal interview in Long Beach next week, send your resume in confidence to John Doren, Ryan Aeronautical Company, 2702 Harbor Drive, San Diego, Calif. 92112. You'll hear from us right away.

WEEK IN REVIEW

THE NATION

Controversy grew last week over the most-discussed, and probably least-read, investigative report ever compiled. As the third anniversary of the assassination in Dallas of President John F. Kennedy passed, the voluminous Warren Commission Report was attacked and defended.

Most Americans knew the report's primary conclusion—that Lee Harvey Oswald, alone, shot and killed the President.

But since that day in Dallas, and particularly this year, a spate of books, articles, symposia, statements and public forums have harped on the subject that Oswald was not the only marksman, and that he was part of a conspiracy whose other members have not yet been exposed.

Last week the crescendo reached a roar when Life magazine said there was "reasonable—and disturbing—doubt" that Oswald had acted alone. This was based on a statement by Gov. John B. Connally Jr. of Texas, who was riding in the car with Kennedy, that he was still convinced he had not been wounded by the same shot that killed Kennedy. This seemed to support the theory of the critics that if there were more than one shot, then Oswald was not the only one firing, since he had time for only one shot.

With the critics in full cry, Connally called a news conference to say that he was fully satisfied with the Warren Report and a new investigation was "neither warranted, justified or desirable." He also said he was shocked that "journalistic scavengers" were attempting to impugn the Warren Report.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, also came to the defense of the Warren Report. "Not one shred of evidence has been developed to link any other person in a conspiracy with Oswald to assassinate President Kennedy," he said. As to the critics, Hoover said they had "ignored certain facts, misinterpreted others and expressed pure speculation as truth."

While the war of words raged, two persons took no official notice of it—President Johnson and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

On the grave of Oswald, someone placed a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and a note—"... he has left all the world confused."

LAST JUNE, James H. Meredith started a "March Against Fear" south from Memphis. On the second day, just after he had entered Mississippi on U.S. 51, he was shot in the back from ambush.

On Monday, Aubrey James Norvell, 40, a one-time hardware salesman, stood in court at Hernando, Miss., and pleaded guilty to shooting Meredith. Norvell was sentenced to five years in prison, with three years suspended.

In New York, Meredith said he had been promised action on the case and "this shows Southern people mean what they say."

A CONGRESSMAN BECAME a fugitive from justice at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. That was when Rep. Adam Clayton Powell failed to surrender at the U.S. Court House in New York City to begin a 30-day jail sentence for criminal contempt of court. He now is liable to arrest if he sets foot in New York State.

This was another step in the long case of Rep. Powell. It began in April 1963, when Powell lost a $164,000 libel judgment to Esther James, 68, a Harlem widow. Powell had called her a graft collector for the police. He has been fighting the judgment ever since, in a variety of legal jurisdictions.

RAIN AND WIND Friday night and Saturday finally flushed away a blanket of health-periling smog that had enveloped New York-New Jersey-Connecticut since Wednesday. No deaths were attributed to the foul air, but there were hundreds of complaints of respiratory ailments and distress.

The Friday night rain, followed by a cold front bringing 10-knot winds, resulted in the cancellation of smog alerts in the three states and brought sighs of relief from millions of once-again clear-eyed Easterners.

THE WORLD

The Middle East was again in turmoil. The latest crisis began Nov. 13 when a strong Israeli force crossed into Jordan and sacked three villages killing some 20 Jordanians.

The Israelis said they were tired of raids from Syria, but it was not clear why they chose to make a reprisal against Jordan, the most pro-West of the Arab states.

In the ensuing uproar, Israel was denounced by the United States, normally a staunch friend, and strongly censured by the United Nations Security Council. The vote there was 14-0, including the United States.

Meantime, riots broke out in Jordan, seeking to press King Hussein into strong retaliation against Israel. On Saturday, Hussein ordered arms given to Jordanian villagers on the border with Israel.

MOUNTING CONCERN was expressed last week by West German leaders as the neo-Nazi National Democratic Party (NDP) scored new successes in a popular election. Drawing strong support in a region that was the springboard of Adolf Hitler's rise to power, the NDP polled 7.4 per cent in elections Sunday in which the 204 seats in the landtag (legislature) of the State of Bavaria were at stake.

A 12.2 per cent showing in rural central Franconia—in and around the City of Nuernberg—was instrumental in winning 15 landtag seats for the NDP in Bavaria system of proportional representation.

After winning only 2 per cent of the vote in federal parliamentary elections in September 1965, the NDP took 7.9 per cent of the vote two weeks ago in the State of Hesse and won eight of 96 seats in the landtag there. Last week's Bavarian elections was a repeat performance. The NDP had centered its campaign efforts in the Franconia area where Hitler's Nazis first put down their roots in the 1920s and where as fuhrer he promulgated anti-Jewish laws at annual mass rallies.

Over-all winner in the elections was the Christian Social Union, led by former Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss. The party drew 48.2 per cent of the vote, enough to take 110 seats in the new landtag and retain its majority. Second was West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Social Democratic Party, which received 35.8 per cent of the vote and seated 79 members.

Throughout West Germany, the NDP's showing created the biggest stir and observers said the party had built its strength by mobilizing grumblers, nags and the disenfranchised—real and imagined. The party platform is essentially a negative one. It proposes protection for German workers against competition by foreigners, withdrawal of all foreign troops from the country and opposes compensation to relatives of Jewish victims of Hitler's concentration camps.

Fear of the resurgence of Nazism was pointed up Thursday night in Cologne where 2,000 persons marched to a monument to Nazi victims in a protest against the NDP. The demonstrators carried signs, one of which said, "A thousand years was enough," a reference to the Third Reich, which Hitler said would last 1,000 years. Other signs said, "Nazis out," "NDP means once more dictatorship" and "never again war, fascism and concentration camps."

POLITICAL UNREST PLAGUED the tiny, infant Republic of Togo in West Africa following an attempted coup by dissident army elements early in the week. The bloodless rebellion was short-lived with President Nicolas Grunitzky claiming it crushed three hours after it began.

Grunitzky, who came to power in a 1963 army coup went on the radio to tell the 1.5 million Togolese that "troublemakers" had tried to seize the government but that "energetic measures" had been taken and the uprising put to an end. There was no official explanation of how the coup was crushed.

The attempted coup was the second in Togo's six years of independence. Grunitzky rode into power following the first in 1963. During that uprising, Togo's first president, Sylvanus Olympio, was assassinated.

Togo, a former French colony, about the size of West Virginia is sandwiched between Ghana and Dahomey, on the Gulf of Guinea, on the steamy West African coast.

SPAIN WILL HAVE a king again, but that's about all that is certain now. Who he will be, when he will assume power and how much power he will have is uncertain.

Confusion best describes reaction to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's proposals last week to put Spain on the road to a limited democratic monarchy. Some critics charged the 73-year-old dictator's proposals were merely a subtle means to assure continuation of his regime. Others look forward to a liberalization in government after 27 years of dictatorship.

Leading contenders for the throne are Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 28, grandson of the last king, considered Franco's choice, and the prince's father, Don Juan, 54, who is living in exile in Portugal.

Franco made his proposals Tuesday in a long-awaited address to a special session of the Cortes (Parliament), which immediately approved them by acclamation. They will be submitted to a national vote—Spain's second in 30 years—Dec. 14. Approval is considered certain.

Cortes members applauded and cheered repeatedly as Franco outlined his plans, including stripping himself of some of his autocratic powers. The major, anticipated relaxation of power was not forthcoming, however, as Franco continued the ban on organization of activities of formal political parties.

A BULGARIAN AIRLINER, on a flight from Sofia to East Berlin, safely made a forced landing at Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Thursday in bad weather. A few hours later, as the plane attempted to resume its flight, it crashed on takeoff. All 84 persons aboard were killed. The Soviet-made Ilyushin 18 turboprop plane was the fourth large aircraft to go down worldwide this month. The four crashes claimed 181 lives.

A holiday timeout in the fighting in Viet Nam was proposed by Vietnamese Communists Saturday. They broadcast by the clandestine National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) radio that they would observe 48-hour cease-fires on both Christmas and New Year.

throughout South Viet Nam, to stop military attacks during the truce periods.

The broadcast proposed that the first truce run from 7 a.m. (Saigon time), Dec. 24, to the same time Dec. 26, and the second run from the same times on Dec. 30 to Jan. 2.

In Washington, it was announced by the Defense Department that U.S. and South Vietnamese officials were considering the proposal.

AMERICAN FORCES Saturday were winding up Operation Attleboro in War Zone C, northwest of Saigon, near the Cambodian border. It had been the biggest U.S. action of the war in Viet Nam.

A 25,000-man American force had mauled the Viet Cong 9th Division, reporting more than 1100 Reds killed. U.S. losses were regarded generally as "light."

Farther to the north, in the central highlands of South Viet Nam, a 21-man platoon from the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division was surrounded by a North Viet Nam battalion of 400 men. The platoon stood off the Communists for four hours, but were finally overrun. Only three Americans survived and they by playing dead.

On Thanksgiving Day, as turkey was somehow served up to most of the Americans in Viet Nam, it was announced that American deaths in the war have now topped 6,000. The weekly casualty report from Saigon listed 100 Americans killed and 749 wounded for the week of Nov. 13-19.

MILITARY MANPOWER needs are expected to be about one-third less in 1967 than in 1966, it was announced by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. He reduced the January draft call from a projected 27,600 men to 15,600.

A Defense Department spokesman also announced that U.S. armed forces increased by 64,109 men in October, bringing the nation's military might to 3,293,318, the highest in more than 12 years. Over all, the Defense Department's newest manpower survey indicates that the armed forces have expanded by 607,000 men in the 14 months since President Johnson ordered the big buildup for the Viet Nam war.

WHAT MAKES AN AUTO DEFECTIVE?

Manufacturers' Recalls of Cars Are Nothing New

DETROIT (UPI)—What markable machines used to tenths of 1 per cent of all makes an automobile defective fabricate them, and the skill and why does it happen?

This question troubles the men who design and build the cars, but it is also the question of the American drivers and, in sum, total of the imperfections, the federal governments of all three.

Since 1960, American auto-makers have recalled more than 9 million cars because evidence indicated that some parts might be defective and need repair or replacement. That's more than 9 million out of a total of about 50 million cars in the United States—a ratio of close to 20 per cent. On the face of it, that's a poor record, but not necessarily. The fact is that the vast majority of those 9 million cars recalled did not have any defective part, but because a defect had been discovered in a part in one or more other cars, or in a part before it was put into a car, thousands of those parts became suspect and had to be checked.

A materials defect cost Ford more than $130,000 last spring. Steels for a steering arm control assembly had been mislabeled. It had been intended for a plant making guardrails. Under heat of fabrication, this steel became brittle.

Ford made 14,000 of the parts before the defect was discovered. Some of the parts had gone to Lincoln and Thunderbird plants. Although none of the cars checked, that had gone to Lincoln and Thunderbird plants. Although none of the cars checked, that had gone to Lincoln and Thunderbird plants.

DONALD FREY, vice president of Ford Motor Company, said, "The materials and general manager of Ford Division, figures that if one machine that fabricate the materials are not perfect. And turned up with an actual defect, it would be a bad record. In fact, he said, a part that is actually defective turns out in only 2 per cent or fewer of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked."

"We live in a world that is something less than perfect," he said. "The materials and general manager of Ford Division, figures that if one machine that fabricate the materials are not perfect. And turned up with an actual defect, it would be a bad record. In fact, he said, a part that is actually defective turns out in only 2 per cent or fewer of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked. That, he said, is the perfection of the cars checked."

"An automobile is the sum of the parts. If one part is defective, the whole car is defective. That's why we have to check every part of every car. That's why we have to check every part of every car. That's why we have to check every part of every car."

Deputy, Shot by Lunatic, Has Surgery

PAINTSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A sheriff's deputy was reported in fair condition Saturday after being shot by Jim Ward, 33, who took his own life after killing Johnson County Sheriff Walter Meek, and engaging in a 60-minute gun battle with state and county troopers.

The deputy, Curtis DeLong, was one of a small army of officers who tried to take the crazed Ward alive. Surgery was performed on DeLong.

MECK, 28, the youngest sheriff ever elected to the post in Kentucky, approached the front door of Ward's home to serve Ward with a lunacy warrant.

When the door opened, Meek was shot to death.

In the ensuing siege, police poured rounds of tear gas and bullets into the house, which fronts on a hill in the outskirts of the city, with its back on the edge of a cliff.

OFFICERS SHOUTED requests for Ward to surrender, and also shouted warnings at a throng of spectators who parked cars and stood within firing range of the house.

After an hour of intermittent gunfire, Ward ended the bizarre chain of events by putting his shotgun to his forehead, police reported.

HANOI HANNAH WOOS GI'S VIA AIRWAVES

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SAIGON (AP)—Hard-hearted Hanoi Hannah, a radio voice of Communist North Viet Nam, just doesn't have it.

Perhaps she's trying too hard. Even the more unsophisticated GIs find Hannah's heavy dose of propaganda on the dull side. And her music is not tops in pops.

Hanoi Hannah follows in the footsteps of World War II's Tokyo Rose and Axis Sally. They too tried to attract listeners and win influence among American troops.

THE BROADCASTING formula seems simple: Get a girl with a sexy voice and a batch of American records likely to appeal to lonely servicemen, intersperse legitimate news items with subtle anti-U.S. propaganda, and sit back while grumbling and dissension spread among the enemy.

Hannah fails on at least two counts. Her voice isn't sexy and the propaganda pitch isn't subtle.

Axis Sally and Tokyo Rose often addressed their dulcet tones to specific American units. They told individual soldiers and sailors that their wives were being unfaithful while their men faced death.

Hannah is less specific and more political. Her half-hour show is broadcast on the short-wave band daily, starting at 9 p.m. on 11840 and 9835 kilocycles.

Friday's program was fairly typical. Hannah introduced "a special broadcast to American servicemen in South Viet Nam."

A ricky-tick jazz number came next. It was sort of like the Moscow Rhythm Boys trying to imitate vintage Benny Goodman.

Hannah then spent five minutes quoting "western news agencies" on American battle losses.

THIS WAS FOLLOWED by anti-war items apparently gleaned from U.S. newspapers. Hannah reported student demonstrations, peace picketing and rallies. She quoted one draft-age youth as telling the Chicago Daily News that "I'd rather be dead than drafted."

Next came a rock 'n' roll tune titled "Glad All Over" and the show's feature attraction, a talk on "President Johnson's insomnia."

Hannah contended LBJ was tossing and turning, unable to sleep because of "lengthier and lengthier" U.S. losses in Viet Nam and worldwide protests against the war.

Her theme was that the President was "too full of care to sleep, and when sleep finally did come, it was filled with nightmares."

Hannah appealed to GIs "as clear-minded men, don't let yourself be strung along in Johnson's nightmare."

The show usually ends with Hannah reciting the names, ranks and branches of the service of Americans killed in Viet Nam. These are released by the Defense Department in Washington. A schmaltzy version of "To Each His Own" signed off Friday's program.

The basic pitch to Americans is: "Go home, you are not wanted here."

HANNAH has been on the air since the buildup of U.S. troops started in 1965. Her name is not actually Hannah—this being a tag given her by GI listeners—but something that sounds phonetically like "Hung Tu."

Linguists in Saigon guess she learned her English in East Europe. It is precise and rather studied, not colloquial.

Hannah is about to get some competition for GI listeners from a blonde, husky-voiced Hollywood starlet, Chris Noel.

The onetime baton twirling champion from Palm Beach, Fla., will make tape recordings to be flown to Viet Nam for broadcast on the Armed Forces Network.

"It's going to be a gas," she told the Associated Press in Hollywood recently. "I'm picking the records myself and saying just whatever comes into my head."

NOT TOO REMOTE
College Drop-Out Is Newest Worry

New York Times Service
"Boy! . . . Drop out of school now and that is what they will be calling you for the rest of your working life."

That advertising message is being hammered home in a public-service campaign to encourage children to remain in high school. With the ever-increasing emphasis being put on higher education, the possibility may not be too remote that a similar campaign may soon be aimed at the potential college drop-out.

Most people, particularly parents, accept the argument education beyond high school is an economic necessity.

But relatively few people can accept — or cope with — the spiraling costs of that education. What will the price be when junior is ready for college, and how can it be met?

The assumption is that the readiness of a child for college is measured in terms of his academic preparation, aptitudes and interests.

On the other hand, many children are apparently better qualified for vocational training. But the cost of that training, too, is on the rise.

Last year, in recognition of individual and family problems in meeting education costs, Congress created two programs aimed at encouraging lenders to make education loans by insuring the lenders against loss.

The Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will conduct the programs, one of which is for higher education and the other for vocational education.

These plans were designed to encourage and help broaden state and private education loan plans. Other federal loan or assistance programs include the National Defense Student Loan Program, educational assistance for the children of armed forces veterans who died or are totally and permanently disabled as the result of service, stipends or full education subsidy to some participants in the Reserve Officers Training Corps, subsidized work-study programs under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 and loans under the Nurses Training Act of 1964.

Information about public and private education loan and assistance programs may be obtained from schools and colleges, education departments and other governmental agencies and from lending institutions.

A useful reference is the Student Assistance Handbook (publication 48-105), which may be obtained for 60 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

It generally is recommended that education loans be sought as a last resort, because they put a sometimes oppressive long-term burden on the parents, the student or both.

However, without them, it is said, many children would be deprived of further education.

U.S. Urged to Bar Gold-Hungry Nations from Capital Market

New York Times Service
NEW YORK—If the world's leading monetary powers fail to agree on a new international reserve currency to supplement gold and the dollar, the United States should consider barring from its capital market nations that insist on converting dollars to gold, a former Treasury official has proposed.

Merlyn N. Trued, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for International Affairs, said in a privately circulated paper his plan would involve creation of a "dollar bloc." He explained:

"Essentially, this would mean those countries willing to hold dollars without demanding gold in exchange would have access to the U. S. capital market while agreeing to work cooperatively with all members of the bloc in limiting to a sustainable total flows going outside the bloc."

TRUED RESIGNED from the Treasury earlier this year to become senior vice president of the Central National Bank of Cleveland. He conceded there would be continuing problems in making such a concept work appropriately and effectively, but he said a loose confederation of members could do the job. He added:

"This approach would mean the U. S. would then not have isolated itself but rather have moved to a sharing of responsibility while making use of its most potent economic tool—its vast capital market."

The former Treasury official said there was no need to suggest who would be included—or, by implication, excluded—from such a bloc, but that in all likelihood membership would comprise the bulk of the Western nations. France has been the principal Western nation to adopt a policy of cashing in for gold all dollar additions to its reserves.

"CLEARLY," HE continued, "this is not an alternative which one grasps enthusiastically as preferable to more widespread cooperative action. But it is much to be preferred, given the situation, over any resort to heavier layers of controls and restrictions and disruptions of the free-market economy."

Trued said it was doubtful that any dependable estimate could be made of the effects of the Viet Nam war on the U. S. balance of payments. While it was possible to assay the direct costs of the war, he said, the indirect impact of increased government spending at home was another matter.

An overheated domestic economy, he said, had diverted potential exports to satisfy home demand and brought heavy demand for foreign goods, swelling imports.

Score: Baghouse 1; Pollution 0

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Progress Editor

In one of the earliest air pollution "violations" ever recorded, King Edward I of England is said to have had a man beheaded for burning sooty coal instead of oak.

The incident was quickly forgotten — and so was the pollution menace.

At the height of the American industrial revolution, smoke billowing from row upon row of factory smokestacks was considered a necessary evil—even a sign of progress.

Smoke meant paychecks in the pockets of the workers and prosperity for the community.

THE REVOLUTION still goes on, and so does pollution. It was estimated that last year 133 million tons of pollutants were poured into our atmosphere.

One major steel company, with a plant in Los Angeles, has moved to the front of the fight against pollution. It is Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Said Edmund F. Martin, Bethlehem's chairman and chief executive officer, recently:

"Many of us neglected that part of a growing problem over which we had a measure of direct control. This put us in a serious situation."

"Having failed to accept our responsibility in the past, we encouraged government to move in on us."

"YET SOLVING pollution problems is clearly a job for a partnership. Control of pollution can be accomplished at reasonable cost and without undue delay only if business and government work together as partners."

Bethlehem's officialdom did more than talk about the problem.

In attacking the problem of air and water pollution throughout its nationwide complex of mills and mines, Bethlehem has spent more than $90 million in the past 15 years.

Most important to Southlanders was the installation of a $2 million "baghouse" dust — collecting system at its Vernon plant.

BUILT TO CAPTURE the smoke generated by three electric furnaces and other equipment, the "baghouse" replaces electrostatic smoke-control equipment used since the early 1950s.

The "baghouse" is 130 feet long, 68 feet wide and nine stories high.

The new system works like a giant vacuum cleaner, with the "baghouse" serving the same function as an ordinary vacuum cleaner bag — to trap dust.

The "baghouse" is designed to remove even submicron (smaller than one thousandth of a millimeter) particulate matter from the smoke, allowing only clean air to escape into the atmosphere.

SUCTION IS provided by two huge fans, each powered by a 1,250-hp electric motor.

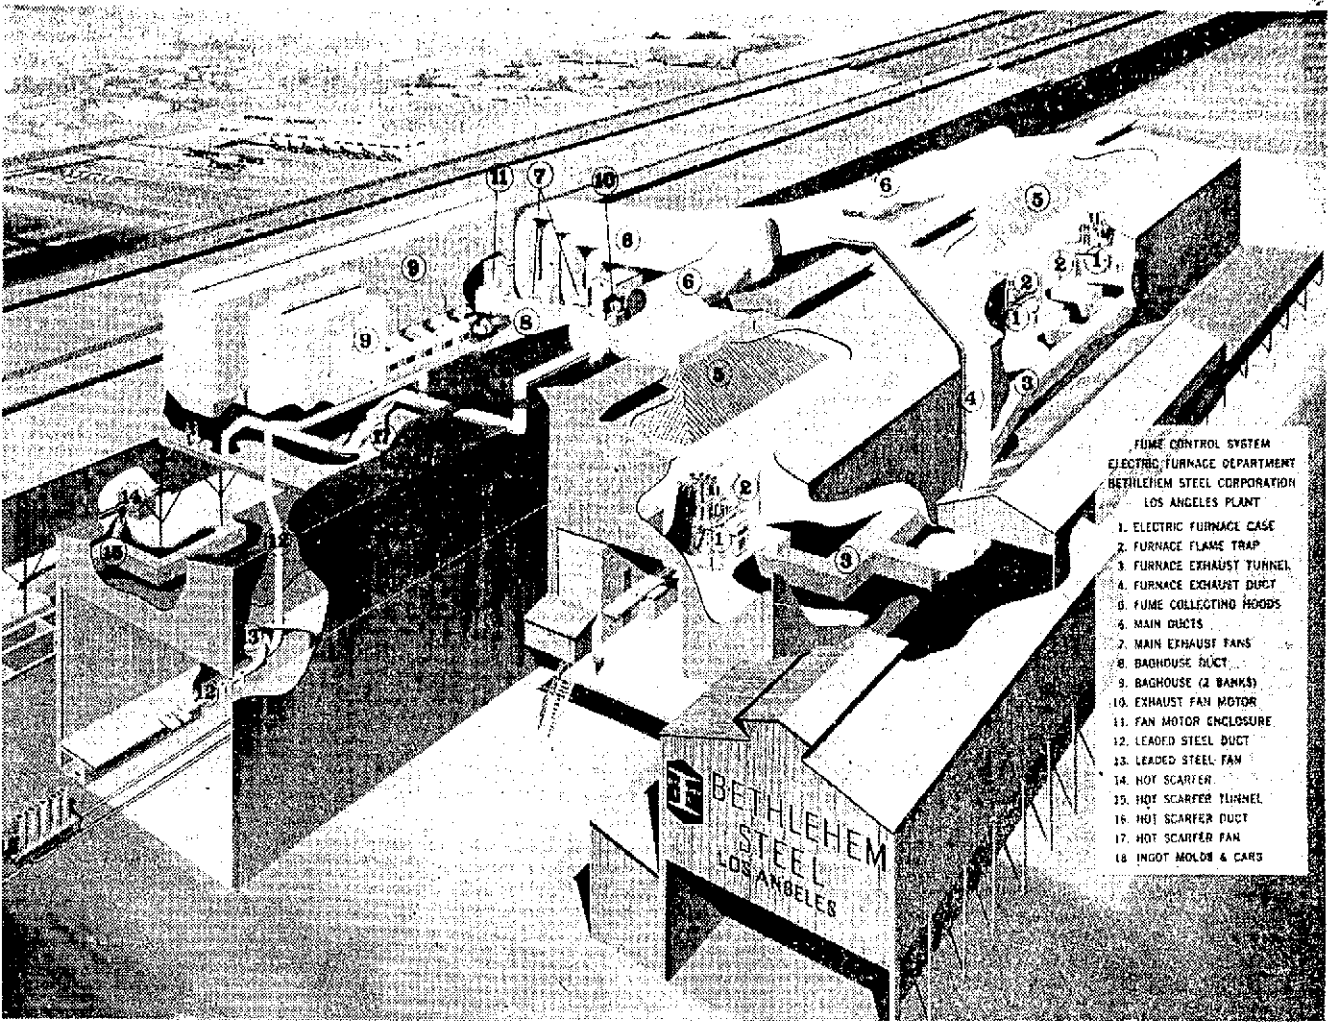

The dust-laden air—produced during the furnace charging (loading) and melting and ingot-pouring operations — is carried into the massive "baghouse" which contains 3,120 individual bags, each one foot in diameter and 30 feet long.

MADE OF silicone-treated fiber glass, the bags can withstand temperatures up to 500 degrees.

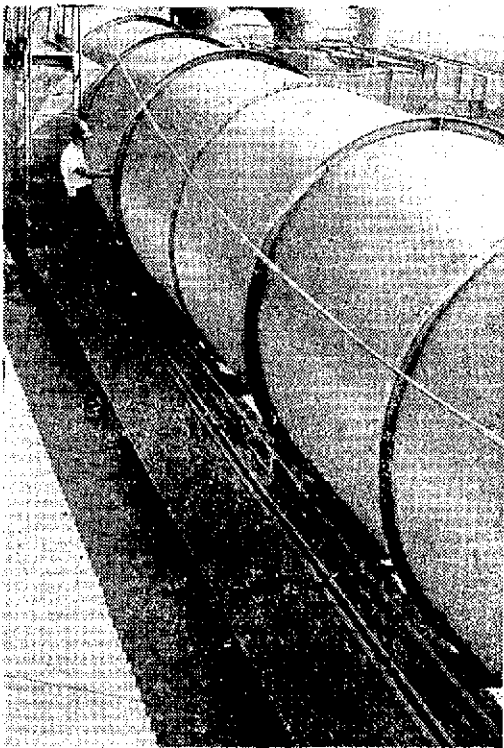

They are emptied automatically by a reverse blast of air which collapses the bags and causes the dust to fall into a collecting hopper above waiting railroad cars.

Every week, two railroad carloads of steel-making dust, weighing more than 60 tons each, are collected by the "baghouse."

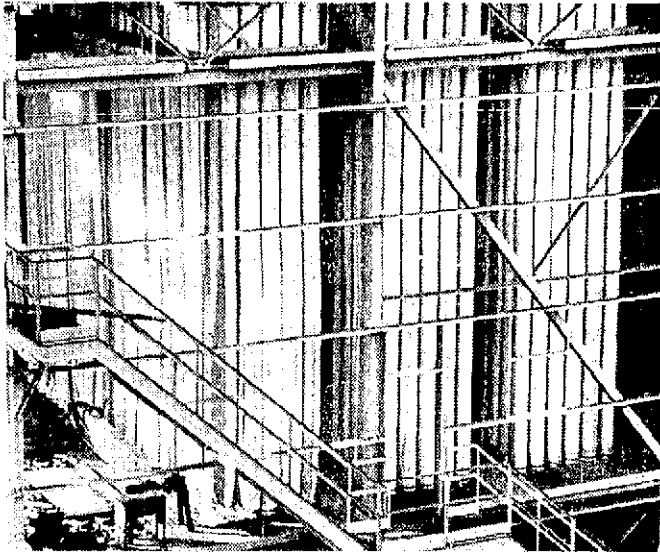

That's about 125 tons of dust that did not fall on the Southland.

Long Beach Car Dealer Optimistic About Future

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

It is hats off to Jim Crooker, the genial president of Beach City Chevrolet, 3001 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. In the face of many adversities confronting the automobile industry, Beach City next week will open virtually entire new facilities marking the completion of a $500,000 expansion program.

Crooker, long regarded as one of the city's leading civic workers and booster, isn't the least concerned about future business. He has expanded the service department into one of the finest in Southern California where automation and well trained mechanics will be combined.

Time-saving and efficiency will build customer satisfaction, he feels. And his salesmen in new and used cars are well indoctrinated in the old school of selling and practice a people-pleasing policy that brings repeat business.

When Beach City holds its open house next weekend it will be well worth seeing the new facilities, especially the big new service center.

AS THE AUTO INDUSTRY goes so will go our nation's economy! That was a prediction made here early in August. And if conditions continue to harass automobile sales as they have been in the past four weeks, the economy is bound to take it on the chin.

Tight money and tightening of credit first moved to slow down the sales. And now because auto makers have called in new cars to make some safety changes great prominence was made of it which certainly will check many sales.

The calling in of new models to make some changes is nothing new. New car dealers have done this for years when notified by the factory that an improvement could be made.

But this year Washington made a big thing of it until the public, in general, is scared.

JUST THINK WHAT A SLOWDOWN in auto sales can mean to the economy. Thousands of workers in assembly plants will be out of work, steel and other processing plants for car bodies will quickly feel the pinch, aluminum mills, parts suppliers and transportation will face a big slowdown. The national economy will quickly go on a downward trend.

Disrupting new car sales will be a greater blow to the economy than the pinch new housing has felt all year.

And an oddity is that automobile dealers may not suffer as much as the manufacturers. When new car sales slow, the dealers note an upswing in business in their service departments. Owners decide to overhaul the family car and make it do another season. And good used cars will be in demand.

ACTION BY THE FHA the past week, permitting carpeting to be included as part of the FHA insured mortgage on a home, may prove a triumph for the home buyer.

Until now the home owner had to pay for expensive hardwood flooring or tile flooring in an FHA financed home, even though most buyers have been covering the flooring with wall-to-wall carpeting.

Now the purchaser of a new home under FHA financing can have his carpeting financed as part of his 6 per cent FHA mortgage and expensive flooring is not needed. Furthermore the buyer is assured of good quality carpeting which must be acceptable to the FHA.

Michael L. Tenzer, director of marketing for Larwin Company, one of the nation's top builders, says this will save the buyer at least $500, and his floor covering will be included in the total mortgage.

Construction is progressing on the $576,000 Lobster House restaurant on Marina del Rey. . . . A 47,000 square foot plant in Whittier is nearly completed for Catalina Inc., manufacturers of swim suits, sweaters and sportswear. It is at Washington Boulevard at Sorenson Street. . . . THE TIME HAS ARRIVED for Californians to accept apartment living in the same way New Yorkers accepted it 50 years ago, believes Bart Lytton, president of Lytton Financial Corp.

The next boom will be in medium to high-rise multiple units of all types—condominium, private and organization-sponsored cooperatives and conventional apartment complexes—in the urban areas of California, declares Lytton.

"We've pushed the peripheries of distance to the limit in establishing our bedroom communities. It is now socially acceptable even for people of great means and prominence to live in apartments. And apartment living is more appealing and economically feasible for the increasingly large segment of our population who do not have small children, including young adults, and adult couples whose children are grown as well as the livelier senior citizens," he adds.

During the tight money situation with new home construction bogged down, many families moved into apartments to wait for home. Surprisingly these temporary renters have found that apartment living can be enjoyable, even fun, releasing them from burdens of individual property management.

Land is one of the few natural commodities that man cannot effectively reproduce. So with continued housing growth needed that growth must point skyward. High-rise apartments is the only solution.

THOSE PAPER CLOTHES that some women may be wearing seem just a fad now, but not to the paper industry. They expect to sell $10 million worth of paper cloth the coming year.

Paper dresses might prove to be a fad after a few months and leaders of the industry are focusing one eye on this market and keeping the other eye watching for new markets for tomorrow. It is possible a more stable market is shaping up in convenience products such as cosmetic capes, aprons, children's wear and disposable seat cushions for stadium use.

They see a potential market of $500 million just for hospitals where surgical drapery in delivery and operating rooms, sheets, gowns for doctors and nurses, garments for patients and infants and towels may be adopting the disposable materials soon.

There's one big problem. How will they dispose of disposables? Incinerators will replace laundries but in some areas you can't have incinerators. And even if you could have an incinerator, how do you burn-up materials that are fire-proofed?

Auto Production Dip Reflected

Reflecting the dip in auto production schedules, the index this week retreated from last week's peak. Steel and paperboard output, as well as railroad carloadings and intercity truck tonnage, all eased as the chart resumed its level of the past several weeks.

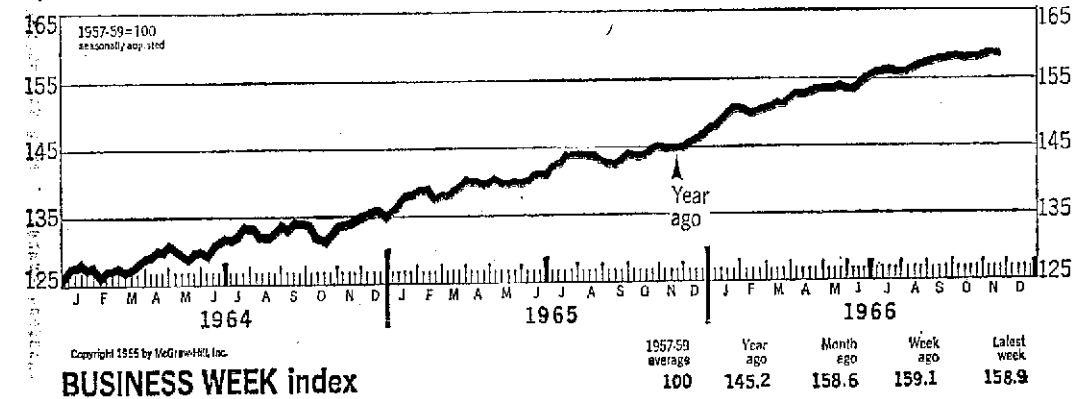

With November sales softening slightly and dealer stocks on the increase, the auto industry is cutting approximately 60,000 cars from the month's production schedule.

November output may still be second only to the record level of November, 1965 — but the signs are nonetheless clear that automakers are trimming factory activity to match a somewhat slower sales tempo.

The surface shipment components — carloadings and truck tonnage — both were slowed down by holiday shipping schedules, as Election Day and scattered Veteran's Day observances occurred in the same week.

On the other hand, the energy components — electric power output and crude oil refinery runs — both edged higher for the week.

Edison, Other Utilities Sign Historic Water Use Contract

Special to the Progress Section

Southern California Edison Company has joined three other major California electric utilities in signing historic contracts which will provide low-cost electricity to meet pumping requirements of the State Water Project.

The contracts represent the largest single electrical load ever carried by the participating utility systems. Net power deliveries to the state aqueduct are expected to reach an ultimate 9 billion kilowatt-hours annually, according to Jack K. Horton, Edison president.

This is roughly the amount of electricity needed to serve a city of over 2 million population, or five cities the size of Long Beach, he pointed out.

HORTON SIGNED documents with chief executives of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, Pacific Gas & Electric and San Diego Gas & Electric companies and William E. Warne, director of the State Department of Water Resources, in formalizing the agreement. The ceremony took place in San Francisco's State Building.

Horton called the event "one of significant benefit and importance to all Southern Californians."

"By making use of the utilities' existing transmission line network and power generating sources during periods of off-peak demand," he added, "the anticipated cost of delivering water to the Southland can now be reduced substantially."

"This, of course, means lower water rates for the project's ultimate users—the people of Southern California."

UNDER THE agreement, the utilities will supply off-peak steam-generated power through their interconnected systems at a rate of 3 mills per kilowatt-hour. Sales under the contract may reach an ultimate $30 million annually, Horton said.

Most of the power will be needed to boost the project water over the Tehachapi Mountains on its way to the Southland. From the floor of the San Joaquin Valley, a total lift of 2,875 feet will require the work of 42 separate pumping units with an aggregate capacity of 1,720,000 horsepower.

Under terms of an agreement among the suppliers, also signed today, Edison will furnish approximately 36 per cent of the power to be provided by the four utilities; PG&E will supply 43 per cent; the Department of Water and Power, 15 per cent; and San Diego Gas & Electric, 6 per cent.

HORTON SAID today's signing makes an economical supply of pumping energy available to the water project and, at the same time, makes it unnecessary for the state to construct a steam-generating plant and transmission lines, which would duplicate those of the utilities.

Scientific Computation Center Now Open in Long Beach

Milgo Electronic Corporation announces the opening of a Scientific Computation Center at 3450 E. Spring St. Long Beach.

The center will be operated by Control Technology, Inc., a Milgo subsidiary. The software firm, which has relocated to the new building, specializes in computer programming. A Milgo 4010 large scale general purpose analog computer will be used for simulation and scientific computation at the center.

Milgo has moved their Western Regional Office to the Spring Street building along with Control Technology, Inc. The move provides larger quarters for both firms. Control Technology, Inc., is headed by Dr. Albert S. Jackson and John Jipp, western regional sales manager, heads the Milgo office.

CHARLES J. MARSH, Milgo vice president-marketing, said "this move provides a computation center to serve the nearby aerospace industry, and will centralize all Milgo West Coast operations."

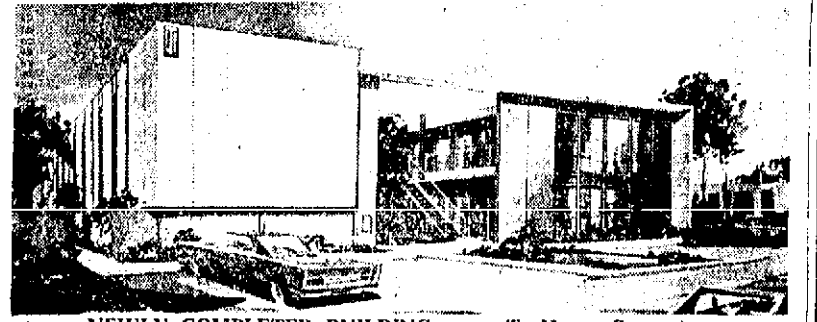

Milgo Electronic is one of the top 500 contractors to the Department of Defense.

The Miami firm manufactures a wide range of data transmission, receiving, and buffering equipment; digital and analog data display equipment; large scale general purpose analog computers; and a growing list of commercial products.

Milgo has been involved in such aerospace programs as Discoverer, Ranger, Surveyor, Mercury, Gemini and Apollo.

Lockheed's Famed F-104 Starfighter Made Even Hotter

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

"hot" one even "hotter." The company's famous F-104 Starfighter, flown now by 14 free world nations, will soon be coming out with vast increased performance through development of General Electric's latest version of its J-79 jet engine.

The advanced Starfighter will be powered by the J-79/J1Q engine, which produces 17,900 pounds of thrust, an increase of 2,100 pounds over the engine currently used.

TEST PILOTS at Lockheed's Palmdale facility say the new super Starfighter has reduced takeoff distance, improved acceleration to supersonic speed and a lengthened mission radius because of lower specific fuel consumption.

HOWEVER, PLANS have not been finalized and no starting date for construction has been picked. There is now a general store, market, beauty shop and equestrian supply store on the property. Socaland is presently building 54 homes on the Peninsula. The project, Bahia Verde, is on Lockenna Lane at Hawthorne Blvd. The company also developed Palos Verdes Riviera near Forrestal Drive a community of 161 homes.

PORTS O' PROGRESS

Union Pacific Could Benefit Both Ports

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Officials of the Ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles will watch with interest—because it may mean more traffic through the two ports—the efforts of the Union Pacific Railroad to capture more of the Japanese import-export business by opening an office in Tokyo.

With the opening of the office in January the rail line will become the first American railroad to establish an overseas office.

The rail line has a selfish motive in attempting to route more of the inbound-outbound cargo through either of the two local ports. The line has long-line trackage between both ports and the Midwest and thus would get all of the revenue from freight moving in or out of either port.

The railroad must share its revenue with the Southern Pacific Railroad for freight moving through the Port of San Francisco and must split revenue with the Santa Fe Railroad for freight shipped in or out of the Port of San Diego.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE Long Beach Board of Harbor Commissioners this week asked the harbor department staff to undertake a comparative study of the cost for building restrooms.

H. F. (Bud) Ridings Jr. said he could not understand why it would cost $78,400, or $20 per square foot, to build a 2,000-square-foot restroom for office workers and longshoremen on Pier J.

Ridings may find that by comparison the $20-per-square-foot cost is extremely low. The Los Angeles Harbor Department recently authorized the construction of a similar type comfort station at a cost of $184 per square foot.

New Watt Home Well Insulated

Ray Watt's newest Gold Medallion fine home development in Southern California — Lakewood Park — carries the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Comfort Conditioning concept of insulation," notes the sales director, Ernie Parker.

"It's one more example of the outstanding quality of these newest and most exciting Ray Watt homes."

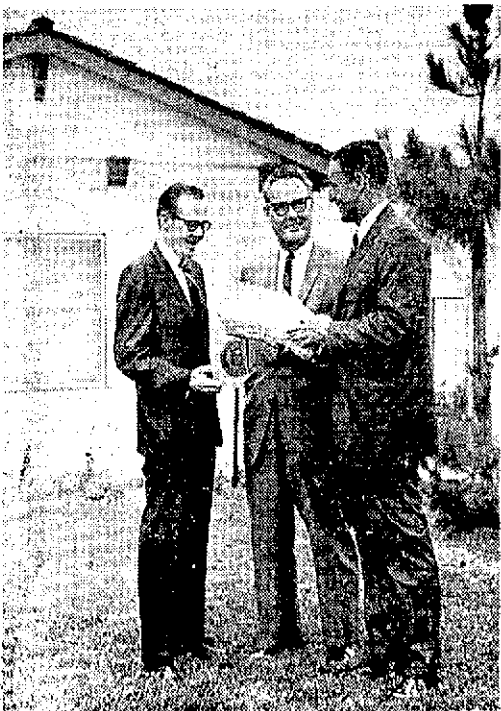

Under the Comfort Conditioning program, three inches of full Fiberglas insulation are placed in the ceilings, and two inches in the sidewalls of homes where air conditioning is not provided.

TO THE HOMEBUYER this means lower heating and cooling bills, more even room temperatures and a home that is practically draft-free and restfully quiet.

Watt is one of the first major Southern California builders to put this Owens-Corning program into extensive use.

Lakewood Park is located only minutes away from the Santa Ana, San Diego and Long Beach Freeways. The newly-opened San Gabriel River Freeway is just one-half mile from the development.

The Lakewood Park sales office is located at Allington and Carpintero Avenues in Lakewood. The furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. 'til 8 p.m.

Sea Water Conversion Near for Southland

By The Associated Press

Ever-thirsty Southern California is nurturing atomic plans these days for using the sea to water the land.

The plans, hatched by the giant Metropolitan Water District (MWD), two federal agencies and three electric utility firms, envision building the world's largest plant for making seawater drinkable—at a cost of $444 million.

"But the water," a district spokesman explained, "would only cost about 27 cents per 1,000 gallons, and the plant would produce 150 million gallons of fresh water a day eventually—enough to supply a good-size city."

That compares, he said, with other seawater conversion plants that supply pure water for about $1 per 1,000 gallons. Cheaper yet, of course, at about 10 cents per 1,000 gallons, is the water delivered to Southern California by the district's Colorado River Aqueduct. But the river cannot supply enough water to meet future needs.

How, then, can they hope to desalt seawater so cheaply? The key is in size and power—atomic power.

"This plant will prove the economics of seawater conversion," said Frank C. Di Luzio, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, adding: "The cost of energy, atomic energy, will be pulled down because of the plant's size."

Di Luzio's agency, specifically the office of saline water, and the Atomic Energy Commission, are the federal bodies involved.

The utility firms participating—Southern California Edison Co., the San Diego Gas and Electric Co., and the Los Angeles Department of Light and Power—will finance and build two huge, nuclear-fueled steam generators.

A third generator, to be built and operated by the water district, will supply the steam for water conversion. The district, and the electric agencies, will share the cost of nuclear fuel.

Power output from the complex, officials said, will be 1,800 megawatts—more electric power than Hoover Dam produces.

The whole complex—the nuclear reactor, steam turbines, generators and steam condensation equipment—engineers said, will be built on a manmade island about 2,800 feet offshore from Bolsa Chica State Beach.

The prospect of such an island, and the desalting plant, isn't altogether welcomed by residents of the area, however, because a strong opposition at two other proposed sites further south, closer to the huge Irvine Ranch, which is being developed as a planned community.

Di Luzio said "the plant may not actually achieve its goals in the first year or so of operation. "It's possible there will be an inability to achieve the estimated cost of water."

Although the water from the plant—50 million gallons daily at first, 150 million eventually—will be welcome, a water district official said, it isn't really needed yet. But in 1990, it will be.

In the meantime, he said, the "atomic plant will provide a supplemental source of water in case of any disruptions of other supplies."

Those other supplies, he added, include the Owens River Aqueduct that delivers water to Los Angeles, the Colorado River Aqueduct that supplies most of Southern California, and the still under construction State Water Project, which should deliver water from Northern California by 1972.

Each of these vital water lines, he explained, crosses the San Andreas Earthquake Fault at some point, meaning that a serious earthquake could shut off the water from outside areas.

"In that case," he said, "we'd still have water from the atomic plant to work with."

That water, according to current plans, will be pumped 22 miles inland to Yorba Linda, where the water district already has its big Robert B. Diemer filtration plant processing Colorado River water.

There, according to proposals, distilled water from the atomic plant will be mixed with water from other sources, then distributed through the district's vast system. The mixing is necessary, officials said, because the distilled water will be rather flat and unpalatable.

Congress has yet to approve the entire project.

The task of studying the island's design in relation to the power and height of ocean waves was given to the California Institute of Technology. After the tests, engineers were confident their island will be able to withstand the heaviest waves ever seen in the area.

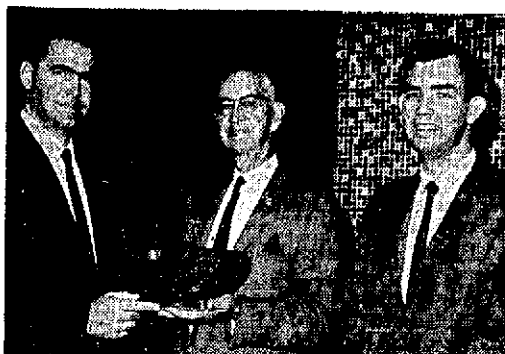

To simulate conditions at the proposed site, with the island in place, Caltech's Dr. Vito Vanoni, professor of hydraulics, and Dr. Frederic Raichelen, assistant professor of civil engineering, built an 8-foot by 10-foot model of the 40-acre island and placed it in a shallow pond.

Then they began making waves, watching how the swells hit and broke on the island's stone wave barriers. The waves, they said, were equal in scale to the 28-foot waves recorded during the rare hurricane that hit Southern California in September, 1939.

Despite varied and exhaustive studies, the same question hanging over every nuclear-fueled plant persists, especially in the minds of nearby residents. The question: atomic safety.

Di Luzio answered it this way: "Of all the technologies man has developed over the ages, he knows more about the evils, the potential destructiveness of the atom, than any other. We have a great understanding of its bad features, and we have learned to deal with them."

"Actually, we know more about the problems of the atom than we know about pesticides."

TWA Sees Necessity for More Flights

Four daily round-the-world flights, increased air services between the U.S. mainland, Hawaii and Asia, and a $995 global excursion fare, have been proposed by Trans World Airlines.

In documents filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board at Washington, the airline proposed adding 36 new over-ocean flights daily to its schedules, 10 of which would be flown with the giant Boeing 747 "aerial luxury liners" recently ordered for delivery in 1970.

In Los Angeles, area vice president-sales Clyde S. Fullerton commented that proposed Pacific route service would include a daily Los Angeles-Tokyo nonstop flight with the Boeing 747, five daily non-stops to Honolulu, and westbound round-the-world service via Tokyo and Hong Kong.

Americans Bit Comfort Happy

PHILADELPHIA—Too much comfort is bad for people, says New York architect and designer George Nelson, who describes Americans as "Comfort Happy."

"You might say that comfort in excessive doses tends to dull awareness, eliminate experiences. People become dull, and dull people are the ones who, when they travel, go from one Hilton to another. But they miss the experience of having been around the world."

Interviewed for an article in the Architectural & Engineering News, Nelson outlined the "comfort syndrome."

Sitting is easier than standing, so we take a nice straight backed wooden chair. Then we put a pad on it, and soon we have soft upholstery. But no chair can compare with a bed for comfort. The only thing more comfortable than a bed is a time you don't need to stretch out and move around."

It's a fact. You can buy just the house and not the land. What's more, it's the popular way to buy a home. The big advantage in buying just the house is that you get more house for the money—you pay only for the house, not the land, too.

And as for the land; you have the option to buy your land 24 years from now at today's prices. And this option only costs $25 per month. That's less than the 6% you'd pay if you bought the land now.

That's why so many of the young executives on the way up are taking advantage of this exciting Deferred Land Purchase Plan by buying one of Glen Mar's NEW Shore Series homes. They know they're getting their money's worth.

Glen Mar offers a choice of floor plans in one and two-story homes with 3, 4, or 5 bedrooms and two baths. And included in the purchase price are all these deluxe custom features: luxurious carpeting ■ landscaped front yard with underground sprinklers ■ side and rear yard fencing with gate ■ decorator tile entry ■ modern balanced power kitchens with up-to-date built-in appliances ■ underground utilities ■ shake roofs ■ fireplace.

All this outstanding value can be yours for a low, low down payment with 30-year financing at only 6¼% interest. Glen Mar homes are priced from $19,950 to $23,950.

Model homes are on view from 10 A.M. to dusk. Buy your new home in Glen Mar now...then buy the land later. Take the Santa Ana freeway to Brookhurst...then drive south on Brookhurst to the corner of Brookhurst and Adams in Huntington Beach. You'll see the signs.

Delta Asks CAB for Several New Flights

Delta Air Lines has proposed 84 through flights between U.S. mainland points and Honolulu, and one-plane service beyond Hawaii to major cities in the Far East, in schedules filed with a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner at Washington.

This major new route proposal is incorporated in the CAB's Transpacific Route Investigation, scheduled for public hearings early in 1967.

DELTA's proposal would link its present southern and Caribbean route systems with through-plane service to Hawaii, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong and the Philippines.

The proposed Pacific service would include 35 weekly flights from both Los Angeles and San Francisco; seven from from Atlanta and three non-stops from Dallas.

Delta is the only carrier with an application in the case whose route structure already links the Caribbean, the South and the Southwest with California.

Bellflower Realtor Post is Vacated

At a special meeting of the directors of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, two new officers were elected for 1967.

Wayne Van Waveren, vice president-elect, resigned and Newton Minks was elected to replace him.

By being elevated to the office of vice president, Minks left the office of secretary-treasurer open and Grover C. Crisp was elected to fill that vacancy.

Elected to the board of directors to fill the vacancy left by the resignation was Dan Keulen, who will serve until the next election.

Macco Co. Development Announced

Approximately 300 acres within the city of Santa Ana have been acquired by Macco Realty Company, Carl C. Gregory, president, announced.

The property, on south Main Street, has been previously unavailable for development, being part of the Irvine Ranch.

"Macco Realty Company believes that this area will be extremely attractive to Santa Ana residents seeking a new home as well as people who have long wanted to live in Orange County's most cosmopolitan city," Gregory said.

"THE PROPERTY is ideally located for an imaginatively masterplanned community of quality homes and apartments, recreational parks, schools, churches and commercial centers."

Three blocks from the Newport freeway and one mile from the San Diego freeway, the area is within one hour of the entire metropolitan population of Los Angeles. The Orange County airport, with its fast-growing industrial district, is only three miles distant, and the University of California, Irvine, is five minutes away.

MACCO REALTY Company is well known for having developed a number of communities in Orange County. Macco Leadership Homes are currently available in Capistrano Highlands in Laguna Hills, Glenbrook/Brea and Glen Mar in Huntington Beach.

The 4,928 acre "Canada Oaks" in southern Orange County is being masterplanned for full-scale future development.

Rossmoor Buyer Can Save Now

"A Rossmoor Townhouse is still the best buy available," said a recent purchaser at the $4 million community immediately adjacent to the Rossmoor Shopping and Business Center. The general consensus of Rossmoor residents is that they got the best buy with the biggest return—location, elegance, facilities, price and financing, a spokesman said.

"When you stop to think that our buyers really save almost $4,000 when they come here, it becomes an important factor in our successful sales program," said William M. Ballon, president of Jaymar Co. Ballon added that purchasers still buy at the original price of $22,950, with only $495 down. Low 6 per cent financing available at Rossmoor Townhouses enables purchasers to save $3,966 which is the difference in payments over the life of the loan between a 7 per cent loan (the prevailing rate in Southern California today) and 6 per cent.

EVERY LICK A PROMISE

The stampede begins

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Director, Women's News

Some Christmas shoppers have a lot of stick-to-itiveness.

With a lick and a promise, they paste up stamps 365 days a year to help lick the battle of the Christmas budget.

Then, come the holiday season, they stampede in droves to trading stamp redemption stores to wait in line, thumb through catalogs, shuffle books and proudly gather up their loot.

They like it that way. As one stamp collector put it: "It's the next best thing to Las Vegas."

And the stamp-happy addicts don't mind if nothing's gift wrapped.

The only wrapping is done by early morning arrivals who, waiting for the doors to open, form a ribbon of humanity that trails along sidewalks, wraps around corners and ties up traffic.

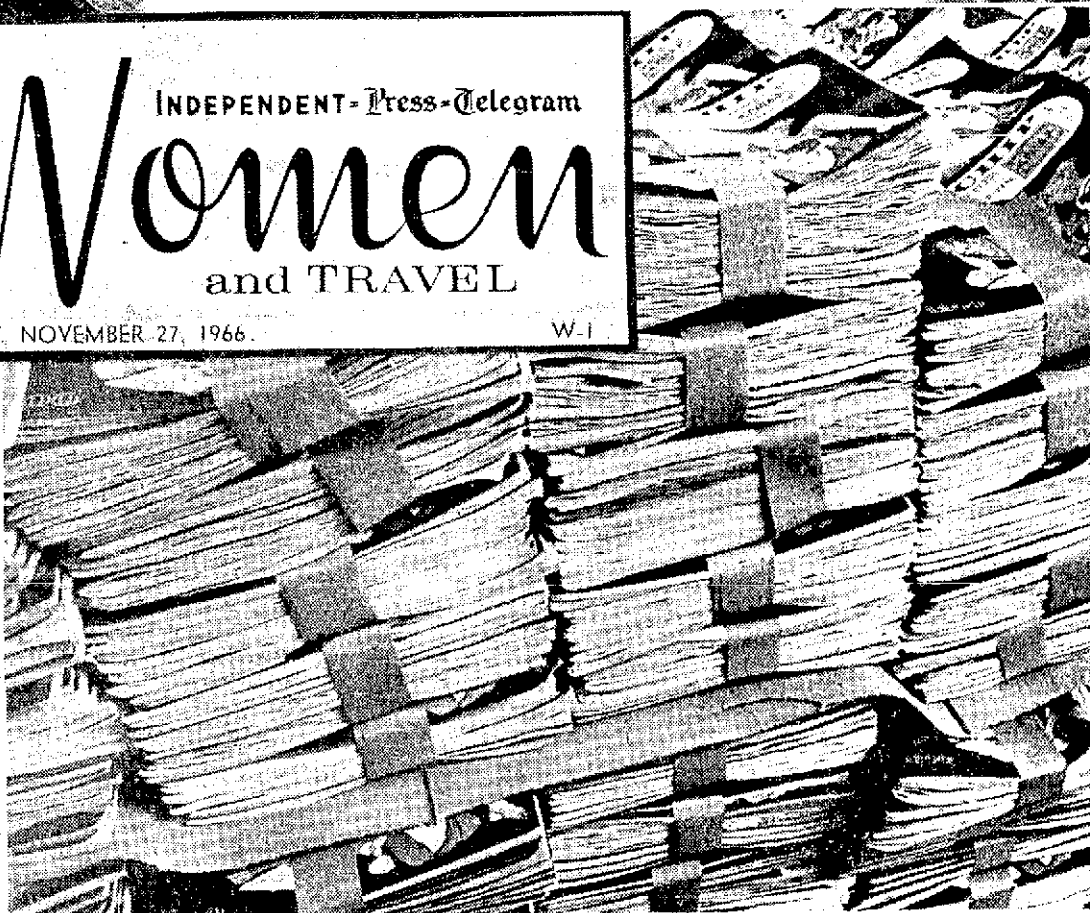

That's the way things have been shaping up almost every morning these days at 1130 Redondo Ave., Blue Chip Stamp's newest premium dispenser.

ANDREW DEMARIA, manager, notes that this year's stampede started earlier than in past seasons and that volume is heavier.

He believes, to some extent, that the accelerated activity stems from "the rash of unfounded rumors" that redemption centers may close their doors . . . and that, were that to happen, unredeemed stamps would become worthless.

"Nothing could be further from fact," he em-

When a girl weds a jazz musician . . .

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Most wives would do more than lift an eyebrow if their husbands:

- Occasionally brought home the Woody Herman or Duke Ellington bands and wailed throughout the night
- Had a habit of defrosting the kitchen refrigerator with a garden hose
- Took down all doors in the house and painted mammoth abstracts on them
- Carried them across the threshold on their wedding day, then picked up a sledge hammer and began to demolish the dining room wall.

But a slender blonde Garden Grove housewife has learned to take these eccentricities for granted—even to take part in them—since her Aug. 14 marriage to jazz trombonist Frank Rosolino.

A longtime jazz enthusiast, the former Leslie Ann Bashore met her husband in July, 1965, when he was performing at Disneyland.

AFTER HER graduation last June from California State College at Fullerton, she became engaged to the musician-singer-composer and they launched a remodeling project on the four-bedroom home in which Rosolino lived as a bachelor for several years.

After the walls came tumbling down on their wedding day, Rosolino spent three months building a room addition of hand-carved wood and floor-to-ceiling windows.

"The neighbors did wonder a bit when they saw Frank in the backyard giving the lumber a distressed effect," smiled Mrs. Rosolino. "Before he carved it, he beat the wood with chains and hacked at it with an ax and hammer."

MEDITERRANEAN in design, the home is complemented by a large swimming pool flanked by Italian statuary and a Florentine fountain.

The home also is distinguished by being one of the few, if not only, in Garden Grove with a kitchen painted in a vivid chartreuse. This was the result of a nightlong project which began at 9 p.m. after Rosolino returned from a Hollywood recording session.

"Frank painted while I sewed the bright floral print drapes," Mrs. Rosolino said. "It took us a bit longer than one night to stain the cabinets an antique green."

A noticeable absence of doors also sets the Rosolino home apart. Even closet doors have been confiscated by the musician who uses them as a base for 6-foot-long oil paintings.

A professional touch keys the works which are executed in house paint. He achieves a three-dimensional effect by placing large clots of paint on the door surface and imbedding bolts, rags and small boxes in them.

A PARTICULARLY aesthetic painting which hangs in the living room was created in the media of

NO, HIS REFRIGERATOR isn't on fire . . . it's just the way musician Frank Rosolino defrosts, but his bride is trying to discourage him from the garden hose method of melting ice in freezer.

WILD WAVES

Was fine week for 'Sailing'

LOCAL CITIZENS have found it no trouble at all this week to set sail for the Golden Sails Inn and Restaurant, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Highway, to participate in week-long grand opening festivities of this newest of gourmet spots among Long Beach's distinguished restaurants.

Opened by John and Helen Apostle, they've been kept working double time greeting civic and social leaders. Although I had never met Helen before this week, she and I are old telephone "friends" from the years she was so active in Rossmore Woman's Club.

Anyway, a few of those they've greeted this week include George and Juanita Heinrich (of Captain's Inn, there to wish Golden Sails skippers the best) plus such City Hall well-knowns as Mayor Ed and Mary Wade, Bill and Baba Graham, John Mansell, Bud and Donna Ridings, Bob and Helen Crow, Harry and Lorraine Fulton.

Also Assistant Police Chief Bill and Frances Kummer, Dana and Myrna Brown, "Hap" Applegate and Rosie Nicholson. Don Davis, Win and Leah Hanssen, John and Carol Richards, LB Marina chief Larry McDowell and wife, Vera, Jackie and Norman Novack, host John's brother and sister-in-law, Tony and Matina Apostle, Wayne and Dorothy Bryant, Tom and Helen Thorley and, — well, chances are they were there, too!

AMPHIBIOUS FLEET of the Long Beach Power Squadron members joined other squadrons of District 13 for annual Thanksgiving trek to Lake Mead. Just about exclusively for skippers of trailering size boats (up to 26-footers), Marv and Veronica Tischer headed up the LB area contingent this year.

Also on jaunt are Kit and Paul Staley, Jack and Shirley Merrill, Ralph and Dorothy Poore, the Lee Joneses (of Garden Grove) and the Miles Chatfields (of Westminster).

Most went Wednesday, will return today. They put their boats in at Vegas Wash then go 90 miles by water (pausing at Temple Bar to refuel) to stay at Sandy Point. Mostly people live aboard their boats but some camp ashore. They explore caves, fish, water ski, have big camp fire get-togethers ashore. And, oh, yes. They eat a lot.

WHEN Rose and Eldred Northup, members of both Virginia Country Club and Fallbrook CC, were playing at Fallbrook the other day with friends, Rose figured she'd really hit a bad one off the 11th tee because she hadn't been able to see, or had the others, where her ball went.

She'd hit a copper alright. A bona fide hole-in-one on the 150-yard 11th hole. This is Rose's third such hole-in-one in her life. Several years ago she had one of these right-on-target shots at Virginia and still another bulls'-eye on a course in San Luis Obispo.

HOUSEGUESTING with Cecile and Lloyd Perry is long time friend, but not often seen, Marge (Mrs. Alec) Warr of Capetown, South Africa. Marge and Alec attended a convention in Rome and the temptation not to hop on over here was too great, so she did. She's dividing her time between Perrys, daughter and son-in-law, Ann and Dave Snary, Tustin, and seeing lots of bachelor-engineer son, Michael, who lives aboard a boat at Henry's Landing, Terminal Island.

Being boaters netted the Perrys the opportunity of becoming good friends with the Warrs. Seven years ago Alec and Marge sailed from Capetown to California aboard their 85-foot trawler and moored at Henry's right next to where the Perrys then kept their yacht.

The Warrs lived aboard the trawler, then known as the Muriel Stevens, for quite some time and many the seaside good times they had with Cecile and Lloyd. When they decided to return to Capetown they sold the trawler, which they had purchased in England

Vows are sealed in Methodist rite

Two hundred guests gathered in Los Altos Methodist Church at 8 p.m. Wednesday to witness the exchange of vows between Carol L. Anderson and William E. Hipp.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean A. Anderson, 6732 Rosebay St., wore a formal gown of Chantilly lace over satin. A chapel train of lace cascaded from the shoulderline. A crown of pearls and crystals held her veil of silk illusion.

PRECEDING the bride in the stately procession to the altar was Pamela Hartnell, maid of honor. Others in the bride's entourage were her cousins, Sandra and Karen Oslin and Mrs. Richard Caron.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Hipp, 3079 Knoxville Ave., was attended by Michael Millette, best man.

Ushers were Michael An-

Members will meet at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 6 in First Christian Church, San Pedro, to hear Marcia Brittain, home economist for Southern Counties Gas Co., talk on holiday cooking, decorating and entertaining.

Fashions for seasonal parties will be shown at a Dec. 7 meeting in the YWCA, 437 W. Ninth St., San Pedro. The public is invited to both events.

THE NEWLYWEDS are graduates of Millikan High School. He attends California State College, Long Beach; she is a student at Long Beach City College.

and had outfitted as a yacht. It still is around but has been renamed the Te Amo.

Marge will be here until Dec. 6 when she'll fly home to Africa in time for Christmas.

WITH A "sit-in demonstration for more fun" theme, Betty and Doc Newton entertained at a zany, merry party in their Huntington Beach home for old University Club members.

Everyone was required to bring their own pillow, for more comfort during the sit-in, plus a picket sign, advocating or denouncing whatever they wanted. Dr. Mack Scott, there with wife, Clair, won for his sign which was emblazoned, not with one but a score, of pros and cons.

For his trouble, veterinarian Mack got a stuffed teddy bear, of all things. That he's fond of animals of all kinds is for sure but that prize was like carrying coals to Newcastle, going to him.

Cocktails and a lunch-pail type supper were served to such happy "agitators" as Bea and Mal Johnson, Pat and Connie DeRosa, Chuck and Billie Litschke, Bob and Nila Brier and Bob and Joy Axtell.

JUST HEARD that Aggie and Johnny Miller, the sandwich tycoons have taken a casa at Alamos, Sonora, Mex., for three months. Took it sight unseen, matter of fact, but houseguest, Helen Perkins, said it is turning out just great.

Alamos, being restored as an historical monument area, is near Navajao and about 35 miles inland from the Gulf of California. The Millers trailed their 16-foot outboard down and are enjoying fabulous fishing in the gulf.

ARE THERE any teen-agers (high school variety) looking for a fourth at bridge? Bob and Katie Bailey's American Field Service student-son for his year, Mats Olsson, 17, from Sweden misses, most of all, a lively game with people of his own age.

Young people here these days, just don't play bridge. Least he can't find any who do. In Sweden bridge and chess are played in lieu of other games when the winter is heavy on the land—can even be substituted for certain physical education courses where outdoor sports are impossible!

Actually, Mats, a charming young man, would fit in nicely as a fourth when some of you bridge clubbers need a sub. I'll put you in touch, if you want.

phasized. "Facilities are being expanded—not curtailed."

"Further, every outstanding stamp carries the insurance of redemption—either in merchandise or cash."

Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, top executive Donald A. Koepfel reviewed briefly the results of Blue Chip's three-year bout with the U. S. Justice Department:

"Pledged to continue the issuance and redemption of Blue Chip stamps until 1969, the company that year will transfer its complete operation to a successor company which will honor all outstanding Blue Chip stamps in combination with its own trading stamp."

"By creating a successor company, this will insure availability of a good stamp program for all merchants and stamp savers who want one."

JUDGING FROM statistics to say nothing of the Christmas free-for-alls at both the Blue Chip store and S & H Green Stamps' merchandise headquarters at 3838 Atlantic Ave. lots of people want one.

Trade sources say 84% of the country's households (that's 45,864,000 families!) are saving up and pasting up one kind of coupon or another.

No age group or economic level escapes.

As one young mother told me: "It's like a narcotic addiction. Once you start, you can't stop."

Said another: "We don't seem to be able to save any money these days. So we save stamps."

DEMARIA estimates redemption volume doubles during the Christmas rush.

Currently a couple thousand customers a day cash in Blue Chips for everything from ash trays to power saws.

To take care of the holiday crowds, both the Blue Chip and S & H redemption centers will be open Monday through Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., to handle traffic. Ordinarily both are closed Sundays and Mondays.

About those Christmas presents.

It's not uncommon, says Demaria, for a housewife and/or husband to trudge in with 100, 200, even 300 filled books.

How do they transport such a bulk of wealth?

"In anything and everything," says Demaria.

"We've had overnight bags, suitcases, plastic bags, paper sacks and cardboard boxes. Everything but a wheelbarrow. But probably someone will think of that, too."

And what do most of these stamp-wealthy aristocrats walk out with?

"Most often a color TV," answered Demaria.

GIVES STAMP OF APPROVAL . . . Sean Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Smith, encounters Christmas rush.

With a price tag of 170 books, technicolor videos go out at the rate of one or two a month.

Among those who can't fill enough books to make the big time, the most popular single item is white sheets. Next comes rotisseries.

About toys: dolls walk off with the honors.

"Last year a lot of skate boards rolled out the door . . . but this season they don't go much further than the shelf. It depends on what's 'in' with the kids."

THINGS ARE equally as lively at S & H Green Stamps, says Mrs. Beth Lynch, manager.

But employees there have an added problem:

Last week a lesser-known green stamp company withdrew its application for a license renewal.

"Lots of readers just read as far as 'green stamps,'" moans Mrs. Lynch. "We've been averaging a hundred calls a day asking if we are closing this redemption store. We're so busy telling people we're not 'THAT' green stamp company, we hardly have time to take care of customers."

S & H, by the way, was first to start the stamp craze. They've been in business for 70 years.

They really made it stick!

FOSTER PARENTS OF MORE THAN 50 YOUNGSTERS ADMIT:

'There's always room for one more child'

By JUDY HAZLETT
Staff Writer

"People say we are nuts to want so many children . . . but, if we had one wish granted to us in life it would be: let us share our love and home with children."

For Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smail, their wish has come true.

They have opened their hearts and home to more than 50 emotional and medical problem children for the Long Beach branch of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions in the past four years.

"We find taking care of foster children the most rewarding feeling a person could ask for," Mrs. Smail said.

Foster children (they now have three, ages 5, 6 and 7) aren't the entire population of the Smail household, 6233 Turnergrove Drive, Lakewood. They also have three daughters of their own, Terry, 17, Phyllis, 13, and Barbara, 11, and an adopted son, Robie, 2.

"Our children take great pride in each child that comes to our home to see which one can pull them over the hump first. We could not take care of foster children if our own children did not have the love and outlook on life they do. We have so much to be grateful for."

THE FOSTER children blend into the homelife of the Smails so well, that if you were invited to their home, you'd never guess the youngsters were only under temporary care. They are members of the family group in every respect (school, church and household chores) until they are adopted and have a family of their own.

Mrs. Robert Smail will be presented an award for "Outstanding Service to Children" by the Parent's Adoption League at its dinner dance Saturday, Dec. 3, in the Regal Room of the Edgewater. The award, first one ever presented to a foster parent, will honor Mrs. Smail for her care of more than 50 foster children in the past four years. The event will begin at 7:30 pm.

What about discipline of these youngsters?

"We show no favoritism," Mrs. Smail said, but it depends on the child. First, we try taking away privileges. If that doesn't do the trick, we try a swat.

"For instance, we had one foster child that had been physically mistreated. So we used other means of discipline."

Organization is very prevalent in the Smail household, and a MUST.

The beds are made (even by the smallest children) before they leave for school; they help each other dress; and the older girls take the responsibility of one child's ironing.

The father image is important to a child, especially to the ones who have never known a "daddy."

In this respect, Mr. Smail more than fills the bill. He once told his wife: "I would like to be a millionaire for one reason . . . to buy a ranch and raise children."

THE LITTLE girls particularly tend to lean on him (probably because most of them have not had a father). When he comes home from his job as a welder, Mrs. Smail finds some excuse to leave the house (even if it's just to buy a pack of gum) to give him time alone with the children.

Mr. Smail explained in order to make room for the children they wanted their house had to be enlarged by two bedrooms, den, bath, dressing room and completely remodeled.

"In fact, we are in the process of adopting a baby boy and before we could get him we had to take out a new state license (which now says the Smail home is a boarding house for children). The Fire Department inspected the premises (we have fire drills once a month) and the Health Department had to give its stamp of approval. Our new license will refer to our home as an 'institution,' because we will then have more than six children under the age of 16 years."

Why did the Smails decide to become foster parents?

MRS. SMAIL had a simple answer: "It was too quiet and boring."

"Our daughters were growing up. One day I noticed how quiet it was, how boring. So we decided more children was the only answer."

Since their decision, the Smails have been interim parents to more than 50 children.

It is natural for parents to have a feeling of attachment and love for foster children. But the entire family (including the foster children) know someday a family will adopt the youngsters and they must leave.

"To see these children leave our home with a smile on their face for their adoption placement is a feeling we could never put into words," Mrs. Smail said. "I have to control myself when they walk out the door with their little suitcase and then, everyone in the family knows to leave me alone a couple of hours. This is when I cry."

Mrs. Smail does admit the memories of these children linger. Even six months later she finds herself wondering about them . . . have they accepted their new home? Are they happy?

But the Smail family grows and grows, giving these youngsters a chance to see what family life is all about . . . something many of them have never known before.

"If we could, we'd have 50 children at a time," Mrs. Smail said. "There's always room for one more."

Robert Murrays to live in Long Beach

A Nuptial Mass Saturday morning in St. Matthew's Catholic Church united in marriage Kathryn Fay Post and Robert Alan Murray.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Post, Glendive, Mont., was escorted to the altar by her great-uncle, Lloyd Pounds.

She was attired in a floor-length gown of crepe fashioned along empire lines and worn with a jacket of Chantilly lace. A rosette pill box hat secured her fingertip veil.

Miss Carol Haney and Mrs. Gary Jones were her attendants. Others in the entourage were Wallace Ward, Gary Jones, Larry Lennon and Paul McGillicuddy.

A church reception followed the ceremony.

The bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Murray, 831 Euclid Ave. He is an alumnus of St. Anthony High School and attended Long Beach City College. A first home will be made in Long Beach.

iodine, Mercurochrome and household bluing.

Another unique aspect of the newlyweds' household is they have two daughters, Felicia, 4, and Parris, 3.

"Felicia is Frank's daughter, Parris, mine, by previous marriages," Mrs. Rosolino said.

"Parris and I didn't meet Felicia until after Frank and I were married. He was doing some movie work last August, so Parris and I took the train to Michigan where Felicia lived with Frank's mother.

"She took to Parris and me immediately, was calling me Mommy after two days and we brought her home with us."

FAVORITE playtime of the lively moppets is when their Daddy drags out a miniature trombone and a small horn from his collection of 25 musical instruments and leads them in a few self-styled arrangements.

The array of instruments—including piano, bass and tuba—is housed in a den where Rosolino spends off-hours composing original jazz scores. Many of these are featured in his l.p. album, "Turn Me Loose," on the Reprise label.

The two-score instruments come in handy when Rosolino brings home professional musicians after engagements at nearby Disneyland.

"Word has spread about our sessions," Rosolino said. "Last week, one of the guys in Woody's band wrote from New York to say he'd heard the group had a ball at my place and he wanted to tell me they'd be out again soon."

DO NEIGHBORS complain about the nightlong jam session?

"Heck no," answered Rosolino.

"The day after the Ellington group played here—we set up the drums around the pool—the man next door came over and made me swear to tell him next time the Duke was going to be here."

Although he is taking a group of musicians to Donte's in North Hollywood for a run opening Dec. 16, the artist, who first gained fame with the early Stan Kenton band and the Light House All Stars in Hermosa Beach, has concentrated on studio work in recent years.

His film credits include solo performances in "Sweet Smell of Success" and "Man With the Golden Arm."

"It gives Frank more time to be at home," Mrs. Rosolino said. "We play tennis, he has time to compose and both of us can knock out walls to our hearts' content."

Expert thrives on deception

If you watch the average declarer follow suit he almost always plays his lowest card. Experts have a tendency to mix them up. Sometimes they have a reason, other times they are merely keeping in practice so as not to form a pattern.

All of this is part of declarer's strategy. He does not want to let his opponents know that he has played his lowest card. There is a lot more strategy possible in the play of high cards.

Here is another old timer from Fred Karpin's book on strategy.

South is declarer at three no-trump. His normal play is to win East's jack of spades with the queen. Then he goes over to dummy with a heart and tries the diamond finesse. If it works he makes a lot of tricks but this time it loses and West is likely to abandon spades and go after clubs. If he does this the defense will pick up four quick club tricks and South will be one down.

THE EXPERT in deception will win the first trick with the ace instead of the queen. Then he will lose the same diamond finesse but it is dollars to doughnuts that West will continue spades.

South will make his queen of spades after all and go about his business of winning the rubber.

South's false-card would have been a poor play in match point duplicate because it would cost him an overtrick if the diamond finesse won. In rubber bridge he could afford to give up this overtrick. Of course, if West shifted to a club anyway the false-card would really be expensive. East would cash five clubs and then give his partner four spade tricks.

In-law should let sleeping dogs lie

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Recently, my wife and I moved into one of those newfangled garden-type apartments. Among the new friends we acquired was a very attractive, middle-aged divorcee.

She gave a small party one evening where we sipped drinks and looked at old snapshots, getting a lot of laughs. Among them were many of my father-in-law, who obviously had been much more than a close friend of our hostess at one time.

The lady was totally unaware of the relationship between my wife and this man but my wife could hardly suppress her chagrin and soon excused herself with a headache and we went home, where she literally exploded! My father-in-law is a highly respected man in his community and dearly loved by his wife and children. Now my wife is so upset she wants to tell her mother the whole sordid mess. I've urged her to let sleeping dogs lie, explained that it all happened years ago, etc., but she isn't convinced.

To make matters worse, her parents will be visiting us one of these days and then the fat could REALLY be in the fire!

Shall we try to head them off, tell them about our "friend" or keep our mouths shut and cross our bridges when we come to them?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN THE MIDDLE:

Oh, me! You ARE in the middle! Your first hurdle is to get your wife calmed down so she thinks this thing out before doing irreparable harm. I can imagine how shocked she was!

For the sake of her mother, it would be best to "let sleeping dogs lie." Why upset her over something that happened years ago? It wouldn't do anyone any good—just make two or more people unhappy. Obviously, the father has outgrown his devious ways.

How you're going to handle the expected visit is a real problem! I imagine you will avoid the divorce as much as possible and if the two do meet, they may be able to handle it nonchalantly. Let's hope so anyway.

The important thing is not to allow this over-and-done-with romance to jeopardize a now happy marriage. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Mother has been divorced twice. She must work to support us so I'm alone all day, except during school.

Mom is 30 and has a boyfriend but this boyfriend comes to see me during the day (I'm 16) quite often. Some time ago, he said he was in love with me and since then we've done things we shouldn't have. Now I am two months pregnant and don't know how to tell Mom. I haven't told her boyfriend yet either. I just don't know what to do. Telling Mom is going to be horrible. She thinks he's true to her and she'll be stunned to find out he's been with me.—FRANTIC.

DEAR FRANTIC:

This boyfriend could land in jail—and it'd be a good thing, too!

By all means, tell your mother. It's a terrible way to find out what a skunk her boyfriend is but it's time she knew about him. Besides she can help you work out your pregnancy problem.

You'll be a terrific disappointment to your mother but mothers are amazing people—they can do what has to be done no matter what the cost.—M.M.

Gravity means nothing

Vladimir Golovko defies gravity as he performs a Cossack Spear Dance with the 100-member Ukrainian Dance Company.

Five artists garner praise in 'Four Media'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Four Media: Oil, Assemblage, Collage, and Drawing," is the title of a fine show at the Downey Museum of Art, 10419 S. Rives Ave.

The continuing excellence of exhibits at this gallery should be a source of pride to the community. In this instance, the purpose of the show is to demonstrate the meaninglessness of classifying art forms by the media in which they are executed.

However, the real point is the caliber of the participating artists. John Lincoln's drawings, free mixtures of pencil, conte, inks, etc., are spectacular. In one life-drawing series, he uncovers the childlike quality of a lady well into middle years; in another, he highlights the feminine flutter of a rather Junoesque lady.

His eight still lifes create from a few objects: a manikin, a turtle, wire lettuce rinser, and some shells. But what splendors and mysteries he conveys to the viewer with these!

PHIL VAN BRUNDT'S collages are a study in understatement in size, color, and materials. Emblems and small touches of objects in remnant state give indications of deep meaning. Here, "less is more."

Olga Higgins' collages are flat-pasted leather ovoids, unlike anything seen before. (She evidently salvages old purses and small leather goods.) The carefully ripped stitching is used as an artistic device. The leathers have great impact in their natural colors to which has been added, sometimes, touches of bright blue or yellow. Backgrounds are white or black. The craftsmanship is exquisite.

WILLIAM TAKAS'S paintings are gem-toned, melded forms, quite mysterious. George Csengeri works in thick or thin grainy impasto with subtle hints of color; his content is metaphysical.

Ukrainian dancers due in L.A.

Music Center audiences will receive a rousing glimpse of one of Eastern Europe's richest regions when the Ukrainian Dance Company of 100 arrives for 16 performances beginning Dec. 5.

In addition to evening performances, there will be matinees Dec. 10, 11 and 17 at 2:30 p.m. The troupe will not perform Dec. 8, 9 or 15.

Excitement accents the colorfully varied program, which includes the hair-raising gopak, one of the most popular dances of the Ukraine. This dance has found its way into the repertoire of ballet companies around the world. It entails wild leaps and inexhaustible knee-bendings. Dances of many different moods and styles also are programmed by the Ukrainians.

AMONG THEM are the beautiful "embroidery dances" from the villages. In these, the performers weave patterns like complicated needlework. Others are whaling dances, reflecting the strength of the sea, the famous dance of the four oxcart drivers shading a single pair of new boots, and the lovely wedding dances demonstrating the exuberance of young love.

The Ukraine is the land of the Cossacks, steeped in the tradition of the fearless warrior. This characteristic is fully captured in dance, as are humorous themes derived from the ancient Ukrainian puppet. Included also are competitive exhibitions of physical strength and skill in which the bounding Ukrainian male seems to excel over all others.

Akira Endo to conduct

Two guest soloists will appear with the Long Beach City College Orchestra in a scholarship-benefit concert at 8 p.m. Friday in the LBCC auditorium. Harvey Way near Clark Avenue. Akira Endo will conduct.

Soloists will be Henry Warner, soprano, and James Murdock, pianist. Miss Warner made her professional debut in Germany as a lieder singer. A resident of the United States since 1947, she has made concert appearances in many parts of the country. She will be heard in selected Mozart arias.

CSLB music units list December dates

The music department of California State College at Long Beach will present numerous public concerts during December.

Directed by Frank Pooler, associate professor of music, the 78-voice A Cappella Choir will open its season at the First Congregational United Church of Christ in Lemon Grove Friday at 7:30 p.m.

On Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. the Oratorio Chorus will participate in the Salvation Army's "Salute to Christmas" which will be held in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. The chorus director is Dr. Charles Neiswender, associate professor of music.

The second A Cappella

Choir concert will be given in the Little Theater on campus Dec. 11 at 4 p.m. and will feature Christmas music.

THE WIND ensemble, with H. Robert Reynolds, associate professor of music directing, will give a noon concert Dec. 12 in the Little Theater.

'WHY ALL THE DISSONANCE?'

Tells 'How Music Got Where It Is'

Like hors d'oeuvres which are best enjoyed just before a dinner, program notes are best read immediately before a concert, David Raksin believes.

Therefore, when he spoke Tuesday in Assistance League House to Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Association, he talked chiefly about "How Music Got Where It Is." He concluded with comments about the programmed works by Mozart, Hindemith and Musorgsky to be played Wednesday by Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at 8 p.m. in the Concert Hall.

Later that afternoon, auxiliary president Mrs. Walter Gray was notified by the symphony association that the entire program had been changed.

With Zubin Mehta conducting, the orchestra will play Weber's "Overture to Oberon," Debussy's "La Mer" and Berlioz' "Symphonie Fantastique."

It was a jubilant audience for the concert preview. The contract impasse that had prevented the orchestra from opening its season as scheduled Nov. 3 in The Music Center had been resolved and the Long Beach season will open as announced.

SEASON subscribers should receive tickets for the Wednesday concert not later than Monday. Tickets for the other four concerts will be mailed later.

Raksin, president of the Composer and Lyricists Guild of America, noted that as composer, lecturer, author and music faculty member at USC, he has found non-professional musicians expressing increasing anxiety about the state of music.

"Why all this dissonance, disturbance and uprooting of the traditional tonal music?" they ask.

"Music has many facets," explained Raksin, whose many film scores include the enduring "Laura." He is the first film composer to be asked to donate nine of his score manuscripts to the Library of Congress.

"SOME MUSIC is simply soporific," Raksin continued. "It's like taking a warm bath — if someone draws it for you. It's all around us, even used to drown out the sound of soup cans in the supermarket. But there is more to music than that. Musicians aren't composing and playing for the immortal future of food chains."

For 200 years, until the turn of the century, Western composers, within the design of tonal music, could express their feelings about their world.

"In fact," Raksin noted, "they worked themselves into a strait jacket of musical tradition. But in life and art there must be constant change if there is growth."

"CONTEMPORARY composers felt they had to find new methods to express what they felt. They broke the system wide open but the things that needed to be said demanded new ways. When Arnold Schoenberg developed his 12-tone theory, based on a chromatic scale of equidistant semitones, he led the way to a fantastic development in music. "Men began to stretch out in the world of music as they were doing in other fields."

Raksin made an optimistic prediction. "For a long time, composing music in the 12-tone system was an end in itself. Now, even the most untutored will agree that, in the right hands, the system can make music. It is part of the world like harmony and counterpoint.

"Tonal music is far from dead. In my opinion, things are looking up. All things newly available will be assimilated and there will be a remarkable flowering of music in the future."

LEARNING MILLINER'S TRADE THE FUN WAY

They have more than bees in their bonnets

By MARGARET McKEAN

Staff Writer

Don't tell Emelie Frojen you're not talented.

Her reply to that statement is: "If you think you're not, imagine how pleased you'll be with yourself when you turn out something beautiful."

Her things beautiful are hats.

Bretons, turbans, cages, straws, skimmers, derbies, cloches, sailors, flowered poufs—every shape, size and style develops magically under Emelie's fingers. Better yet, she can teach anybody to turn out reasonable facsimiles.

Women from Los Angeles to Long Beach to San Pedro attest to her tutorial skill and soon she'll be the talk of Van Nuys, where she'll teach at Everywoman's Village.

"Til then a group in Harbor City is creating chapeaux for the holidays.

NUCLEUS OF the millinery cell is Clara MacArthur (wife of retired Col. Harper Cowles, former C.O. at Fort MacArthur in San Pedro) and other officers' wives who met Emelie at Long Beach City College. They convinced her to teach a class on the post... Retirement, orders to Korea and Viet Nam, broke up the "mad about hats" group to a degree, except for Mrs. Cowles, now a Harbor City resident.

She invited civilian-type friends and her neighbors to become pupils. One morning a week homemakers on 246th Street aren't homemaking—they're at Clara's hat making.

They start with a buckram shape, or a pattern, or a hood body, and take it from there. Their teacher, perfect foil for the feminine things she designs, slips from one student to another, with quiet suggestions and deft assistance.

"A student is an artist, working with fabrics instead of oils. She won't hang her creation, she'll wear it. The wealth of fabric, texture, and color available is fabulous," Emelie enthuses.

"THE HAT she creates gives a $25 look to an expensive ensemble. That custom made look can be created for $2."

Mrs. F. isn't too thrilled over the hairstylists' campaign to eliminate hats.

"But we may be winning points. Our hats are made of lightweight materials which won't crush a hairdo. Since bouffant coiffures are out, hats have comeback with the acceptance they deserve."

She works often with the woman on a budget—which to varying degrees—is every woman. "She needs, especially the mothers of large families, hats she can't afford, one to wear to cocktails, one to wear to church. With some know-how, she can have an extensive hat wardrobe on very little money."

THE ETERNALLY feminine Emelie couldn't ignore purses and shoes. She teaches women to make purses, using readymade handles, a material called hymo (stiffer than buckram), a taffeta lining, and an outer fabric. She can show you how to cover an old pair of shoes with brocade for evening, with gray flannel for that afternoon dress.

"And in no uncertain terms, I remind women that gorgeous though the hat is, attractive as the purse is, and smart as the shoes are, never match three things!" she avers.

HAT BLOCKING is learned by Mrs. Arthur W. Peterson of Lomita as she practices milliner's skills at weekly class conducted by Emelie Frojen in Harbor City.

End Dry Skin

Wrinkles form in colder weather because skin contracts, making it difficult for the tiny oil ducts to feed the surface skin. Avoid winter-dry skin by smoothing oil of Olay over the face and neck daily before making-up. This oil, available from your druggist, gives the complexion a lovely peach-and-cream bloom and is the finest protection against wrinkle dryness.

DEAR ABBY

Trust eliminates need to tell all

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know stood right there and told me that she was happily married and she and her husband told each other EVERYTHING. Well, I've been married as long as she has, and I consider myself happily married, too, but I'm the first to admit that I don't tell my husband everything, and I'm pretty sure he doesn't tell me everything either.

I didn't want to start an argument with her, so I just kept still. But I want to know if you think, in order to have a happy marriage, a man and his wife must tell each other EVERYTHING? VOTES NO

DEAR VOTES NO: I also vote no. But don't jump to the conclusion that I am all for mutual distrust in marriage. Neither am I suggesting that a man and his wife should LIE to each other. I merely say that every marriage should have its proper restraints and privacies. There are certain things one should keep to himself, if only out of kindness and consideration for his mate. A wife should be on her husband's team — and he on hers. There must be confidence, trust, and loyalty, and to blurt out every thought or put into words every emotion can create hurt and needless complications.

DEAR ABBY: Someone told me that girls who wear glasses look more intelligent than girls who don't wear glasses. Do you think this is true?

bly. But it's only an optical illusion.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound trivial to you, but it has caused quite a few arguments at our house.

I have been raised to clean up after myself, and my husband hasn't. His mother did everything for him, including washing his hair. The big fight is over his leaving the bathtub dirty for me to clean. Abby, I find this revolting, but if he refuses to do it, then I have to, which is the way it's been lately. I did agree to wash out the tub after him until we heard from you.

He said he would go by your decision. He says if I loved him, I'd do it. I say if he loved ME, he wouldn't ask me to. Who is right?

ACHING BACK

DEAR ACHING: The word from here is that every man, woman, and child aole to bathe without assistance should clean out the tub after himself.

EVER HEAR TELL OF A RAMOS FIZZ?

New Orleans invented own thirst-quenchers

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

From her earliest days New Orleans has been famous for her haute cuisine. Understandably so, because this Louisiana metropolis has always been — among other things — a flourishing seaport into which came a variety of cultures to practice the rich culinary arts.

Hairy-bellied sailormen blowing in on sturdy windjammers, and the pirates like Jean LaFitte knew this and, upon landing, struck a straight course for their favorite eating emporiums.

No sooner had they gorged than they set sail for gay and often bawdy entertainment and libation, for which this stay-up-late city still admits to no peers.

The sailormen and pirates, without dreaming of such a thing and caring still less, set a pattern for today's swinging travelers.

NOT only did New Orleans offer the drinks common from Hong Kong to Halifax, but her barkeeps proceeded to invent new ones that became topics of nostalgic conversation on the old sailing ships.

The same is true today. Chat with a two-time visitor to New Orleans and he will ask you if you've sampled one of those frothy Ramos Gin Fizzes, or a Sazerac Cocktail, or a Hurricane Punch which is a knockout double version of the Squall.

All of these thirst-quenchers were invented in New Orleans. Swinging tourists insist on giving each a try. Some have been known to order another, and another, until they forget to ask the question which becomes a supreme compliment to the most fastidious man behind the bar: "Could I steal your recipe?"

IF YOU are among these negligent ones, never mourn. I gathered in these how-to's as I have on six continents, when an exotic drink struck my fancy. I give the New Orleans inventions to you now, at the beginning of what could be a hectic holiday season. With them, you can become famous in a crowd of knowledgeable tipplers.

I have been told that the Ramos Gin Fizz was first stirred up by a thinking mixologist at the Old St. Charles, now the Roosevelt Hotel. In the fine old hostelry's Sazerac Bar, I was told to do it this way to draw hearty cheers:

Fill a cocktail shaker one-third of ice cubes and put in these ingredients in order named: one bar spoon powdered sugar; three dashes (eight drops) orange flower water; one-half ounce of freshly squeezed lemon juice; one-quarter ounce of freshly squeezed lime juice; one-half ounce white of egg; one ounce of Old Tom gin; two and one-quarter ounces of milk. Put top on shaker and shake thoroughly to mix and blend all ingredients into a creamy and foamy smoothness.

NEXT COMES the Sazerac Cocktail, some of the ingredients for which may send you to your liquor supplier for consultation. Be that as it may, the same Roosevelt barkeep said to make it this way:

Frappe (cool) one glass with crushed ice; into second glass put one dot of sugar; add enough water to moisten and then add one dash of Angostura Bitters and two dashes of Sazerac Bitters. Crush sugar with a muddler. Add one large ice cube over which pour one and one-quarter ounces of Straight Rye Whiskey, 90 proof. Stir with bar spoon until mixed thoroughly and chilled. Take the first glass, empty the crushed ice, and put in four or five dashes of Herbsaint. Twirl the glass several times until inside is thoroughly coated. Strain the mixture into the chilled glass. Twist lemon peel over the drink, and sip.

THE SQUALL and Hurricane Punch were created at Pat O'Brien's, a now-famous bar on the site of the first Spanish theater in the United States, in the French Quarter. On one side of their green, clover-leaved napkins appears these recipes:

SQUALL: one ounce Jero's Green Passion Fruit Cocktail Mix; one ounce fresh lemon juice; two ounces good light rum (Carta Blanca); fill glass with crushed ice and decorate with Orange and cherry.

HURRICANE: two ounces Jero's Red Passion Fruit Cocktail Mix; two ounces fresh lemon juice; four ounces good dark rum (Amber); fill glass with

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

ST. CROIX, VIRGIN ISLANDS—Christiansted is the quiet, old-fashioned tropical town of the Virgin Islands. Much the same as when the Danes built it a couple of centuries ago. Traffic goes on the left, and it's a free port—no duty. Good shopping. Good golf.

Farther out are the British Virgins where tourists are a rare sight. There are a few modest hotels for big game fishermen. The plush resort is Lorraine Rockefeller's Little Dix Bay on Virgin Gorda. And there are usually a few young and adventurous Americans camped on some island. Digging for treasure and skin-diving for lobster in water so clear you can see 20 feet straight down.

"What is your opinion of the Outer Islands of Hawaii? Should we make the trip and which islands?"

I LIKE the other islands. But there's only hotel night life. If you are geared to big swinging evenings, stay at Waikiki. The tours are pretty much alike—Kauai for a night and day. The Big Island and then to Maui. About five days in all.

"My son and a friend plan to hitchhike through Europe next summer. Can you esti-

Please, don't pick those Peru posies

Not that you could even if you wanted to since these monumental Peruvian flowers reach a height of 30 to 36 feet and can only be found in high desolate Andes areas.

The gigantic blossoms, says Panagra (Pan American-Grace Airways), known as the Puya Raymond, consist of more than 8,000 yellow, red, orange, pink flowerlets clustered together.

The Peruvian government plans to create national parks for protecting the exotic blooms from wanton pickers.

Southland to mark Christmas in sun

Southern California will celebrate Christmas outdoors in the sunshine. The world's biggest poinsettia farm will be in bloom. There will be colorful parades of decorated yachts in a harbor. Nativity floats and 50 bands beneath 100,000 lights. Even horse riders will be lighted. The tallest of all Yule "ornaments" will flash lights 184 feet high.

Residents of the canal community of Naples at Long Beach celebrate on the water. They will decorate their yachts and cruisers and on the evenings of Dec. 17-18 they'll parade out of their canals onto Alamitos Bay. Costumed carolers ride barges, rubber-suited skin divers swim the route and Santa rides on easy chair aboard a cruiser.

Some 50 bands, each playing its own concert, will march in the All-Southland Band Review at Huntington Beach Friday evening.

NEXT NIGHT the west's biggest Christmas parade including 100 movie, radio and TV stars, will follow a light-spangled course through Huntington Park.

Nativity floats in the Bethlehem Star Parade next Sunday afternoon at Van Nuys were designed by set experts of movie studios located near this community in the San Fernando Valley. They also costume and make up the characters riding the floats, each depicting an episode in the Life of Christ.

More than $1 million in silver mountings will ride with the equestrians in the "Christmas is for Children" parade at Covina on Dec. 5.

ONE OF THE most unusual of Christmas ornaments will shine out at Calipatria in the Imperial Valley. Claiming to be the "Lowest Down City in the Western Hemisphere," this community has a flagpole reaching 184 feet to sea level. Decorated with strings of lights, it shows up for miles.

Princess Pat film available

Cinesound International, Inc. has produced a half hour, 16mm color and sound film for Princess Cruises. Titled "Once Upon a Princess Cruise to Mexico," it depicts the exciting cruise on the Princess Patricia to Mexico. Visits are made from Los Angeles to the popular ports of call on the west coast of Mexico — La Paz, Puerto Vallarta, Acapulco and Mazatlan, with a side trip to Mexico City and Tlaxco.

The film is being distributed through Modern Talking Pictures and can be obtained by contacting their libraries in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

mate how much it would cost?"

FROM LETTERS I've had, $5 a day each would be comfortable.

"How can I find out about driving down to Panama?"

THE AAA BOOK (for members) "Motoring in Mexico" has a section on this.

"Freighter companies tell me there are no longer such things as 'tramp freighters.' How do you get to really outlandish places in the South Pacific?"

LITTLE inter-island schooners run out to these places occasionally to pick up copra. You'll find them in the larger ports—Suva in Fiji, Tahiti, Samoa. Around these ports—and in U.S. ports—you run into young people who are sailing their own boats. And usually they're on short money. They'll take a passenger at a modest rate. You'd have to work a little, too.

"I want a real tropical unspoiled Mexican beach village. Any accommodation would do."

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Medic's a perfectionist in greenhouse or kitchen

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

Today's Chef of the Week, Vernon P. Brickey, M.D., earned his BS degree from Pittsburgh Teachers' College, Pittsburgh, Kan., attended University of Kansas Medical School at Lawrence, Kan., and completed his medicine at Bell Memorial Medical School, Kansas City, Kan.

He brought the harvest of those roots to California, where he completed both his internship and residency at San Bernardino County General Hospital.

Dr. Brickey came to Long Beach two weeks after Pearl Harbor and joined the late John Cottrell, M.D. Two years later he and his brother, B. Earl Brickey, also a doctor, opened offices together.

This year, he guides destinies of the Downtown Lions Club as president, is a member of the Virginia Country Club, the Scottish Rite and El Bokal Shrine. He also serves on the staffs of St. Mary's, Memorial and Community Hospitals. He and Mrs. B. (Eldred) belong to the Viennese Waltz group.

THEY HAVE a daughter, Sharyn, a sophomore at U.S.C., and a son, Vernon, Jr., a senior at Wilson High. Like dad, he's a golfer of note, and a member of the Wilson team. Dad, by the way, shoots to a seven handicap.

Brickey is a perfectionist—in the surgery room or in his orchid greenhouse. This applies to when he's shooting, whether it be at a deer or aiming his camera at a "victim."

Brickey's pride and joy, however, is "Freckles", his Brittany Hunter pup.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN BREASTS

Remove skin and wipe 8 chicken breasts with a moist cloth. Salt, pepper and roll each piece in flour. In a heavy frying pan, heat 1/4 cup of butter and 1/2 cup shortening. Carefully brown each piece of chicken, turning often.

Take the pieces of chicken from the skillet and drain excess oil on paper towel. Place in large baking pan in oven at 250° for one hour. Serve piping hot.

Robert Alban to wed

During a candlelight ceremony in Sigma Delta Tau Sorority House on the University of Arizona campus, Tucson, the engagement of Phyllis Jean Cohen and Robert Douglas Alban was revealed to the bride-elect's sorority sisters.

Parents of the affianced couple are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cohen, Elkhart, Ind., and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Alban, Lakewood.

A June wedding is planned.

Miss Cohen, a June candidate for her bachelor's degree in interior design, is a collegiate member of National Society of Interior Designers and a cheerleader.

Her fiancé is attending UA Law School and holds a bachelor's degree from the Tucson university. He is past president of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity.

Today's Chef of the Week, Vernon P. Brickey, M.D., earned his BS degree from Pittsburgh Teachers' College, Pittsburgh, Kan., attended University of Kansas Medical School at Lawrence, Kan., and completed his medicine at Bell Memorial Medical School, Kansas City, Kan.

He brought the harvest of those roots to California, where he completed both his internship and residency at San Bernardino County General Hospital.

Dr. Brickey came to Long Beach two weeks after Pearl Harbor and joined the late John Cottrell, M.D. Two years later he and his brother, B. Earl Brickey, also a doctor opened offices together.

This year, he guides destinies of the Downtown Lions Club as president, is a member of the Virginia Country Club, the Scottish Rite and El Bokal Shrine. He also serves on the staffs of St. Mary's, Memorial and Community Hospitals. He and Mrs. B. (Eldred) belong to the Viennese Waltz group.

THEY HAVE a daughter, Sharyn, a sophomore at U.S.C., and a son, Vernon, Jr. a senior at Wilson High. Like dad, he's a golfer of note, and a member of the Wilson team. Dad, by the way, shoots to a seven handicap.

Brickey is a perfectionist—in the surgery room or in his orchid greenhouse. This applies to when he's shooting, whether it be at a deer or aiming his camera at a "victim."

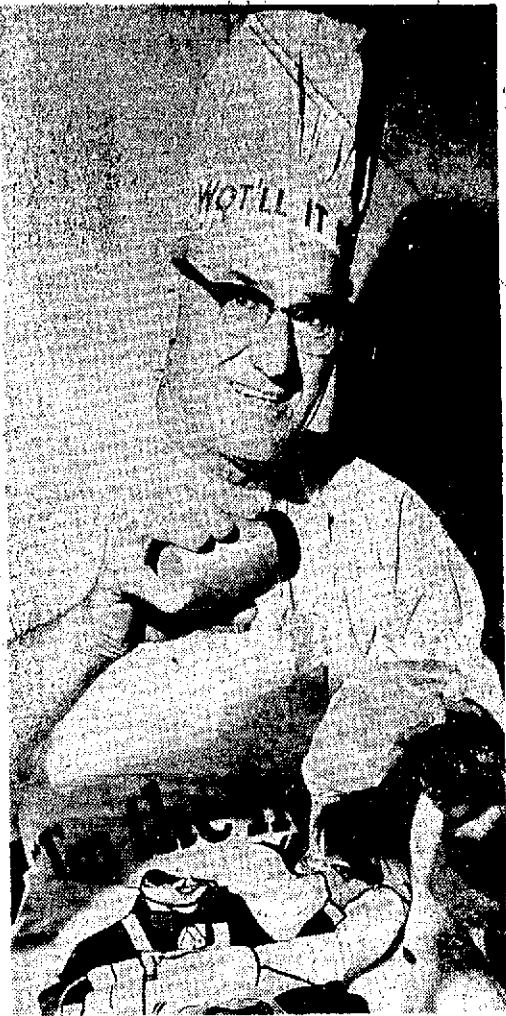

Brickey's pride and joy, however, is "Freckles", his Brittany Hunter pup.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN BREASTS

Remove skin and wipe 8 chicken breasts with a moist cloth. Salt, pepper and roll each piece in flour. In a heavy frying pan, heat 1/4 cup of butter and 1/2 cup shortening. Carefully brown each piece of chicken, turning often.

Take the pieces of chicken from the skillet and drain excess oil on paper towel. Place in large baking pan in oven at 250° for one hour. Serve piping hot.

Helman-Brignall vows exchanged in church

A champagne reception in Long Beach Yacht Club followed the 4 p.m. exchange of vows Saturday in All Saints Episcopal Church of Nancy Blair Brignall and Donald C. Helman.

An empire gown of crepe and reembroidered French lace was worn by the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Brignall, Huntington Beach.

Carolyn Brignall was her sister's maid of honor. Kathleen Sipes and Alexandra Atsales were bridesmaids.

Bruce Kraushaar stood as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Helman, Westminster. Kenneth Clark and Charles Davis ushered the more than 200 guests.

Upon their return Dec. 10 from Mammoth Mountain, the newlyweds will live in Rossmoor.

Towering redwoods make man in red shirt seem ant-size in this photo taken along the banks of Redwood Creek, near Orick, in the heart of Northern California's Redwood Empire. The tree in the center, measuring 367 feet into the sky, was the tallest of the tall trees until, last August, one was discovered that was taller by 1.7 feet. The new tallest tree is in Founders Grove, a state park. For a report on the torrid controversy over establishment of a redwood national park, see the story on page 6.

The Search for a Quiet Place

IN THE UNITED States there are 2,300,000,000 acres of land, but a burgeoning population has become concerned about the vanishing open spaces. Today there are 231 U.S. national park areas encompassing 27,000,000 acres, but a jammed-in population is increasingly having to search for somewhere to go on the weekend to get away from it all.

Those who live along the ocean's shore can hop in a boat and head to sea, but not all of us are boaters—or want to be. But all of us want to stare into an expanse of untrammelled meadow or gaze at a far hill where only the tickle of the wind against the branch is heard.

There are such places left in California, of course, but the age of mechanization and the era of the everyday-vacation is bringing into focus an important question: what is the future for our parks, our wildlife reserves, our refuge for the nature admirer and the solitude seeker.

This week Southland Magazine takes a look at two important facets of the question, the battle over land for a national park in the heart of California's redwoods and the battle over land for a ski region in the heart of Southern California.

—The Editor.

YOU PROBABLY haven't been to Essex lately, have you?

You've probably not visited the Mitchell Caverns.

The caverns, located on the rough flanks of the Providence Mountains, 23 miles north of Essex, a tiny hamlet near the mid-way point between Amboy and Needles on Highway 66, are a tourist attraction unspoiled by tourists.

This is California's Carlsbad.

Open to the public since early 1930's, Mitchell Caverns haven't enjoyed the burst of tourist traffic that have exploded elsewhere in you drive across the gentle plain toward them. The plain is actually a broad valley rimmed with buttes and low hills of a dozen different hues and shades.

IF WE ACCEPT the estimates of geologists, this entire valley was once part of a vast lake on whose bottom deep layers of limestone were deposited over a period of several million years. It was this limestone thrust into the air as mountains and hollowed out by underground rivers that created Mitchell Caverns tunnels, chambers and rooms.

When the waters receded Nature completed Her handiwork with moisture that dripped from the ceiling, carrying calcium carbonate in solution where part of the water evaporated leaving solid calcium carbonate which crystallized into calcite forming stalactites, stalagmites and other forms in the caverns.

None of the scientists who have studied the caverns are sure when man first found the caves and took up residence. Evidence found in the caverns seem to indicate that local bands of wandering Indians have used them for at least 500 years, though.

The first white man to attempt development and exploitation of the caverns' commercial possibilities was Jack Mitchell, for whom they are named. He arrived in 1929 and staked out several claims around the caverns and eventually gained title to the property.

AFTER HIS death the Mitchell heirs sold the land to the State of California in 1956. Since then a parking lot and campground, picnic area and water facilities have been installed. Overnight camping is encouraged by the state if an initial water supply is brought along.

A staff of full time rangers conducts tours through the only cave that is open to the public at the present time. It is approximately 400 feet long and contains a large room called "El Pakiva" or the "Devil's House" one of the most interesting parts of the tour.

A smaller cave that exists from one wall of "El Pak-Underground cavern protects stalactites and other forms that have been developing for uncounted centuries. State-owned reserve is near Needles.

San Gorgonio —Will It Remain a Wilderness?

By Ray Gise

ABOUT 90 MILES north and east of Long Beach stands Mt. San Gorgonio, a most misunderstood mountain.

It is the highest peak in California south of the Sierra and within a few minutes drive to some eight million people.

Yet all San Gorgonio wants to do is sit there, as she has for eons, protecting the geological remains of seven ice-age glaciers.

Oh, San G doesn't mind the little wild creatures that roam her face. Nor does she care that her crown is covered with snow most of the year. And she is delighted that the citizens from the valley beyond will come to visit, scampering across the ridges and gullies that stretch up to her crest, some 11,502 feet above sea level.

But please do not misunderstand Mt. San Gorgonio. She doesn't want to be modernized or motorized. She wants to remain old-fashioned. Sort of for the birds, some might say. She wants to remain the wilderness area that law has proclaimed her to be. A wilderness area in the midst of the most furious urbanization the history of man has ever known.

ONLY 34,718 ACRES make up the San Gorgonio Wild Area and this is small acreage indeed for the thousands of people who enjoy its solitude and wander its trails. It is the last high mountain country in Southern California to remain a Wild Area since Mt. San Jacinto (San Jac) now has its tram and Mt. San Antonio (Old Baldy) its ski resorts and other developments. All of this area is above 7,000 feet.

The use of San G by Scout groups, nature lovers, hikers, naturalists, fishermen, hunters and cross-country skiers is phenomenal. On the basis of man visits per acre it is about 20 times the national average for wilderness areas. A very large percentage are boys and girls. Long Beach has a vital interest in that its Boy Scout camp is located at nearby Barton Flats.

Leaving State Hwy. 38 at Jenks Lake turnoff a good surfaced road ends at the parking area at the foot of Poopout Hill, a distance of five miles. Here a good trail leads into South Fork Meadows (more commonly termed Slushy Meadows). A short hike brings one to the meadows through fine stands of fir and pine. The area abounds in bird and wildlife. On almost any given day during the hiking season hundreds of people will hike to the meadows, some to camp, many carrying picnic lunches and others just for the stroll. It is an ordinary thing to meet horse and mule pack trains as well as fathers carrying infants papoose style, for this bit of natural beauty is only minutes from freeways and smog.

From Slushy Meadows a trail will take the hiker to Dry Lake, a misnomer as it is seldom dry, and up into the North Fork. This is a spot favored by deer hunters familiar with the country.

MANY HIKING GROUPS utilize either Slushy Meadows or the higher Dollar Lake as an overnight camping site, then hike on to the summit and back down the following day. However, a good pair of legs can make the climb and back the same day.

Needless to say, this wild area is heavily overused and to more sophisticated mountain travelers who have experienced the back country of the Sierra, Cascades or other ranges, it may appear somewhat less than superlative. Sometimes portions are completely unattractive by comparison. But this is a new experience to many Southern Californians and since children make up a large percentage of the traffic they learn the attraction of the outdoors and later go on to bigger mountains.

However, for almost 20 years a storm cloud has hung over this peak and its wildlife. The north slopes of San Gorgonio and Dry Lake Basin furnish excellent skiing and with the first good snowfall cross-country skiers have a field day.

Commercial downhill skiing interests have tried every angle to set up shop in this potential gold mine. Over the years lobbyists have worked on legislators and various bills, either for special use permits or to declassify enough acreage, have been dumped into the legislative hoppers. The Far West Ski Association added its muscle and hearings have been held and rebeld.

THE MOST RECENT was held in San Bernardino in November, 1965. San Bernardino Congressman Ken Dyll had submitted a bill (HR 6891) which would take 3,500 acres, about 10 per cent of the Wild Area, to be developed for downhill skiing. In return, an additional 3,500 acres would be added or declared a part of the area so that on the face of it the Wild Area would contain its original acreage.

The only catch to this proposal was the 3,500 acres to be developed started at Poopout Hill and went up the watershed through Slushy Meadows and included the north slopes of San Gorgonio and Dry Lake Basin. This is the heart of the hiking and camping areas. A road would have to be built, parking facilities would be necessary and although not mentioned in the bill itself, it is certain that lodges and restaurants would have to accompany the ski lifts. To top it off the 3,500 acres to be replaced are inaccessible to hikers.

In the November, 1965, hearings emotions ran high. The downhill ski associations made impassioned pleas and stated flatly this development was mandatory. Why should a few "bird watchers" be allowed to deprive them of their sport? The Los Angeles Times editorially stated more or less the same thing. Both factions seemed to forget why National Parks and Wilderness Areas were established in the first place.

On the conservation side, S. Wesley Beake, a San Bernardino County supervisor, stated a development such as this would create a water pollution threat. Edward F. Dolder, deputy director of the State of California Department of Parks and Recreation, said his department opposed any change in the area's present status. Rep. Craig Hosmer, a hearing committee member, in questioning Dolder, asked if that represented the official attitude of the State of California. "Yes, it does," Dolder replied.

BARCLAY KEMP, a Cal Tech geophysicist, stated that with downhill ski development the wilderness would disappear. In addition, one of the most vital reasons for protecting San Gorgonio intact is that it contains the geological remains of seven ice-age glaciers which makes it invaluable and irreplaceable from a scientific viewpoint.

Rep. Hosmer noted that he felt public lands should be made available to the greatest number. He said that skiers as well as hikers have a right to the "psychological therapy" their sport offers them, the question being how to work out the problem.

It would seem the only problem existing is with the commercial ski interests and developers . . . how to get into San Gorgonio and really bring bulldozers and progress into this otherwise backward wild area.

In the meantime there is an unlimited supply of "psychological therapy" . . . the cross-country skiers use it all winter and the children and adult hikers use it the other seasons.

There are, however, no lifts.

Chances are that if you haven't been to the redwoods recently you will be going soon. There is no greater wonder of nature in all the world. The spire-like trees grow in the damp valleys along northern California's coastline, where they have stood for 2,000 years. This is an in-depth report on a furious battle for land in the heart of the Redwood Empire for a national park.

The Tall Tangle Over Redwoods

By Bob Young

AWESOME, EMOTIONAL, political and economic factors are being mounted for a furious battle over some of the most serene countryside in the nation. . . .

Temper is tauting for a major conflagration over timberlands along a slice of damp terrain along the far-north coastline of California.

The final battle over the creation of Redwood National Park is brewing. This is, as the saying goes, the lull before the storm.

Though old-fashioned town meetings of protest have been called, though irate citizens have peppered their legislators with protests, though conservation groups have been loudly outspoken in the strange struggle, though it will turn out to be the most expensive land reserve in history, the lone thing that is clear is that the Redwood National Park is going to be an expensive proposition in more ways than one. Though Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall repeats that the price tag is $54 million, testimony before congressional hearings has placed the price at at least $250 million and quite possibly double that and more.

EXACTLY WHOSE land the park will encompass and whether it will be a 45,000-acre reserve or a 90,000-acre park is the crux of the argument, though there are a great many residents in Humboldt and Del Norte Counties, where the redwoods grow so tall they blot out the sun, who are determined that not another square foot of their homeland shall be fenced off from private enterprise industry—the industry of reducing Sequoia sempervirens to 2x4s and 1x12s and 4x4s.

In recent months there was a flurry of heated conversation from all sides of the question as skilled strategists made demands they privately admitted were extreme, with the hope that the compromise agreement would be favorable to their position.

Today there seems to be no chance of any formal congressional action on the land acquisition and there probably will be no action for several months, so this is an appropriate time to clear away the web of arguments.

The preservation of the virgin redwoods within a national park of large dimension has been smoldering since 1911. After study by both the Sierra Club and the National Park Service, a government report was issued in September of 1964, which was the redwood stump from which Congressman Jerry Cohelan spoke on Oct. 21, 1965, and proposed that 90,000 acres of redwood forest be set aside in perpetuity.

HIS PLAN WAS to acquire land in both Del Norte and northern Humboldt Counties, centering on the Redwood Creek watershed. It was the Grandiose Sierra Club's proposal and brought anguished cries from residents and industry alike in its crushing effect on the economy of the two counties, especially Del Norte. This was negated, Cohelan insisted, by the National Park Service's assurances that a burgeoning of the recreational and tourist industry would more than offset any waning and transient benefits now being received from the century-old logging and mill industries now operating.

"Retrain me for a park job or any other kind?" questioned a grizzled, thong-strong chopper when told of the benefits of the new look. "What would they do? Give me a costume so I could play 'Smokey the Bear' for the tourists?"

The lumberjack's reaction is cynical but not unusual even though the Cohelan plan suggests a government subsidy in the form of direct payment to replace taxes until such time as the tourist industry is sufficient to boost the tax-assessed property to 125 per cent of pre-park level. "This is the land of the 'Last of the Redwoods'," the bureaucrats and conservationists shout in an emotional plea.

But even the most starry-eyed preservationist admits that the 90,000-acre plan is extreme; it is equally apparent the other extreme doesn't have much of a chance of being realized.

LUMBERING, MILLING, shipping and incidental industries point out that there are already 116,000 acres set aside in government-owned parklands, with another 6,000 acres being held until funds are provided to include these in the state park systems. Besides that, they also insist there are 358,000 acres of tax-paying, privately-owned forest lands which are providing recreation use for hunting, fishing, hiking and incidental outdoor activities. In essence, they say, "Don't 'park' our jobs," implying that there is enough park land available already. They don't want to keep the privately-owned land private, they say, they merely want to keep it privately owned.

The struggle takes on a most elementary glow when it is considered that this is a fight for survival by the lumbering business, residents and the lumberman-courting merchants of an area that has been devastated by natural disaster several times in recent years.

At the southernmost edge of Crescent City, 370 miles north of San Francisco, there's a billboard reading: "Comeback City, U. S. A." It's the town's way of reminding visitors it has survived two recent disasters.

The first was a six-foot tidal wave that hit in March, 1964. Triggered by the Alaskan earthquake, it wiped out 20 square blocks, including most of the downtown business section. Nine months later, the town's economy was rocked again by Christmas week floods that ravaged much of the outlying area.

TODAY, CRESCENT CITY residents point with pride to new stores and homes built on ground swept bare by the tidal wave. But they find it ironic that much of the recovery has been made possible by federal Small Business Administration loans and other federal assistance.

"They've poured millions of dollars in there to build us up. Now they're going to bankrupt us with parks," says chairman Harold Del Ponte of the Del Norte County board of supervisors.

It is pointed out that those federal business loans have pushed the merchants of Crescent City deep into debt. "To rebuild a city you need more than money, you need optimism," said one Crescent City official. "The optimism around here seems to be

In the 14 years from 1950 to 1964, the National Park Service had $60 million to purchase land. In the three-year period from 1964 to 1967 it will have nearly $52 million. Secretary of Interior Udall says the Redwood National Park will cost about $56 million. Congress has been told by other authorities that the price tag will be at least $250 million and maybe twice that much and more.

"The conservationists' claim that we're cutting the last redwoods is ridiculous. We're actually growing more redwoods than ever before."

—Edward M. Carpenter
President, Pacific Lumber Co.

"What the logging people just don't understand is that people won't walk across the street to see a 45-year-old tree, but they'll drive thousands of miles to see a 2,000-year-old redwood."

State Parks Commission

fading. It looks like this region will be another government-sponsored Appalachia... created by the government."

Even today business is off in Crescent City because, apparently, the people fear they'll soon be out of work. Lumbering accounts for 70 per cent of the area's economy.

A compromise is the only possible and fair solution in bringing both sides together in any plan which will serve the public interests, both from a scenic aspect and a financial standpoint, in the opinion of many neutralists.

Sen. Thomas Kuchel, California's senior senator, has introduced and co-authored a bill with the Johnson administration which calls for a park of approximately 45,000 acres, primarily in Del Norte County, along the Mill Creek watershed.

The senator's bill (S-2962) indicates a better understanding of the financing involved and envisions necessary tax support for Del Norte County on a long-range basis to soften the shock of the collapsed lumber industry in the area.

Kuchel's bill also provides for the purchase of a large section of watershed, like Sunday, Nov. 27, 1966 the Sierra Club plan, to control logging and erosion in already cut-over areas which adjoin the proposed park.

Kuchel admits that the plans of the Sierra Club, the Save-the-Redwoods League and other such groups have great esthetic values, but "... I, for one, cannot see how we can pay for the larger park proposal or how we can mitigate its negative economic impact on the County of Humboldt or the entire Northern California area.

"A half-loaf, in other words, is definitely better than none," Kuchel said.

BUT HIS CALM, measured remarks flared into something quite different in the light of later developments of that speech which was made July 29, 1966. While Kuchel's plan drew many adherents, there was no mention made of getting up with the money immediately to purchase land, nor provide for even options for land, easements or water rights.

Congressman Don Clausen, representative from the First District of California, comprising 620,000 people, and includes the affected area, has also taken a more moderate and realistic view of the park proposals. He is irrevocably committed to a bill which would tie the Jedediah Smith and Del Norte State Parks together, thus using much of the land already acquired and purchasing as little as possible of new lands.

Clausen also outlined a plan for economic assistance which would include intensive and long-range job retraining. Thirdly, Clausen said that there should be an immediate crash program for development of the park to provide jobs and speed the expansion of the tourist industry.

Congressman Clausen, a native of the redwood empire country, stoutly maintains the people of his district aren't against the preservation of reasonable amounts of redwoods, but they want a park plan "they can live with."

Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti, who represents Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino and Lake Counties, objected to a state senate resolution which endorsed the formation of a national redwoods park in both Del Norte and Humboldt Counties. Belotti called the proposal "... a misguided and unnecessary idea which could only do great damage to our economy."

Belotti added, "The growth and prosperity of our North Coast area depends on the health of our lumber industry, and tying up hundreds of thousands more acres of prime timber in a new national park, when we already have ample redwoods preserved in state parks, just doesn't make sense.

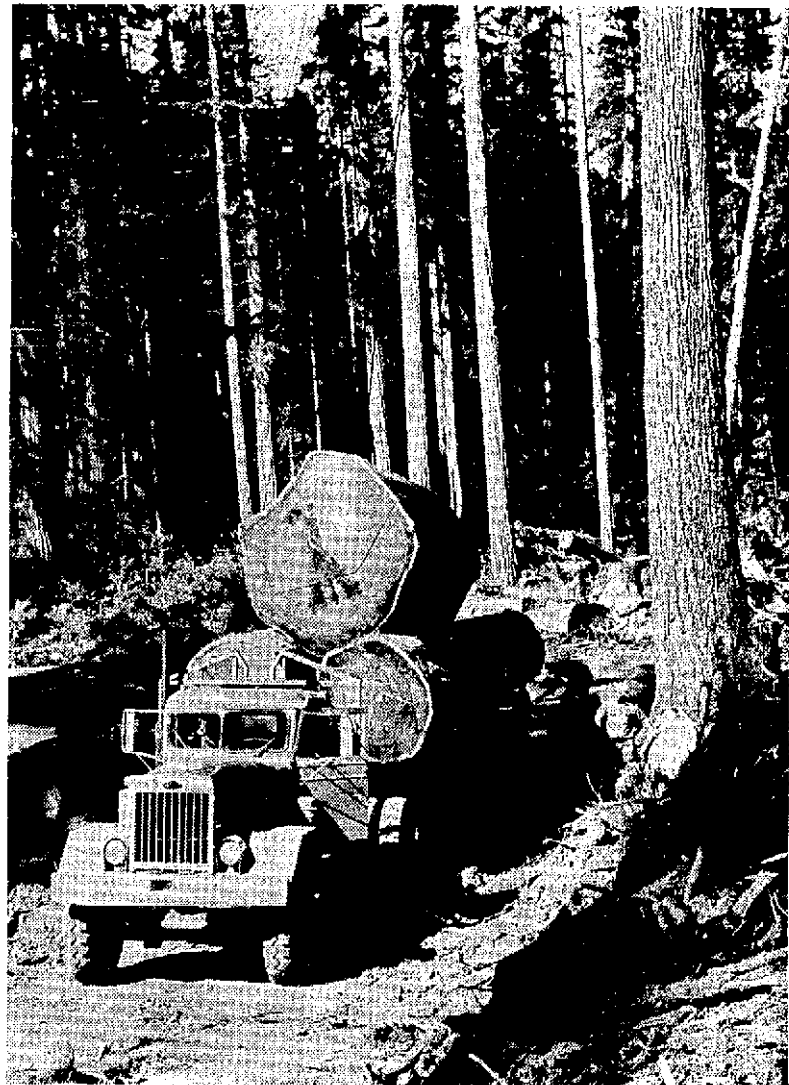

"THIS COMING immediately after the disastrous floods which have crippled our main industry could well be the last straw."

Belotti's contentions that too much land is already in the hands of the State Division of Beaches and Parks, and a shamefully small fraction has ever been developed, is an echoing complaint throughout the affected areas. "If it were true that a priceless state or national asset were in danger of disappearing forever, the situation might be different. ... Let the Division of Beaches and Parks develop more of what it already has before raising the false cry of 'more, ever more'," Belotti says.

Even while the matter is being debated from every forum possible, a number of the forest products companies are working to preserve many of the groves in the disputed areas of Northern California.

The Pacific Lumber Co., which operates from Scotia, Calif., gave outright to the state 300 acres of land which includes the astoundingly beautiful Fern Canyon, a veritable natural greenhouse of ferns and redwood country growth. The state, in furthering its own Redwood Park and Recreation Plan, bought an additional 1,800 acres in the Gold Bluff section to expand the Prairie Creek Park to 11,393 acres. (This is

"We have a stable economy here. The annual sales are $320 million. The companies' investment in land and equipment is more than that. It's been a stable economy for generations, logging these hills and replanting them and logging them again. Now the government wants to make it another Appalachia."

Come Away With Me to

And That Wild High Desert

IF YOU LIKE the mountains and you don't like the desert, you might find your perfect compromise in the high country of Joshua Tree National Monument. I have, at least once a year for the past seven years, and if it weren't for Joshua Tree I would probably desert the desert for good.

My family has been part of a coterie of families who every fall take off for Joshua Tree for a weekend of camping and social life. It started with two families and this year we had six, including 12 adults and 16 children, so there must be something to it.

The high country of the JTNM has an appeal that we, at least, don't find in the low country that many people think is the only desert around.

JOSHUA TREE National Monument ranges in altitude from 1,000 feet in the eastern section to almost 6,000 feet in the western. So, we go to the western section.

One of the advantages of high desert is the unpredictability of the weather. Although the fall usually is beautiful, it sometimes is cold with a whistling dry wind. It can of course be very hot. I've heard stories — heard, nuts, I've told some! — of people who ran into (or out of) four inches of snow in Joshua Tree but, of course, that is very "unusual weather."

The monument gets its name from the Joshua trees that grow in great abundance there and hardly any place else at all any more. The Joshua tree really is a yucca, which the folders say, makes it part of the lily family, but I never would have known if I hadn't read those folders. They grow as high as 40 feet and in March and April of some years produce a large cream-white blossom from 8 to 14 inches long. When in bloom they are a sight to see, the folders say. I've never seen them.

BUT THE REAL appeal of the country are the rocks. They stretch in long graceful rows between long flat valleys and are not only beautiful to look at, they are also great fun to climb. The rocks of Joshua Tree National Monument offer a great variety to climbers. There are places where top-flight rock climbers in the area scurry around with ropes and pitons and do all manner of strange gyrations. There also are many, many places where the rankiest amateur can scramble up and down without fear of hurling himself.

One of the real joys of family camping here is that if you pick your campsite right you can sit in front of your tent, enjoying a long cool one (remember what I said earlier about the social life) and watch your kids scrambling up and down big, well-rounded rocks where they can't hurt themselves unless they try. It's great.

AND, IF YOU like old rocks, some of the oldest are right here. The dark-colored ones, called by the scientists, Pinto gneiss (and pronounced correctly like "nice"), are 500 million years old. Even the light pinkish colored ones, which the scientists call quartz monzonite, are 150 million years old. I won't bore you with how those rocks got there but it's a very interesting story — if you're a scientist.

If you like to hike, there are trails all through the country. If you don't like trails, there are lots of places where there aren't any trails, just sand. If you would like to climb a mountain, there's Ryan Mountain, 5,461 feet. If you don't like to climb mountains, you can drive up to Salton View, which is 5,185 feet. From there you can look down on the Salton Sea, which is 241 feet below sea level, or up to Mt. San Jacinto, which is 10,821 feet, or Mt. San Geronimo, which is 11,485 feet and the highest point in Southern California. How's that for variety.

From Salton View you also can see Palm Springs, if you like that sort of thing.

If you're interested in animals you can always entice a kangaroo rat into camp with a handful of nuts. The kangaroo rat has the distinction of being one of the very few animals in the world who never takes a drink, not even of water (HE doesn't come out here for the social life). He manufactures water inside his body from the dry seeds he eats and it doesn't sound like much fun.

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Would like brief data on HAMMOND, HAMMONS.—L. E., Long Beach; L. H., Downey.

HAMMOND is from the ancient English given-name Heah-Mund, describing the ancestor as "Chief of all protectors." A remote forefather, Heahmund, Bishop of Sherburne in Dorset, England, was killed in battle in A.D. 871. Later members of this lineage include William, son of Hammond of Lincolnshire and Alan Hamund of Oxford, both living in 1273. HAMMONS is a condensed form of "Hammond-son." The beautiful Hammond shield is silver, crossed by a black chevron. On the chevron are engraved three gold seashells and three black spheres, each with a silver bird in the center. The patriotic Hammond motto "Pro rege et patria" means "For king and country." Descendants of the English Hammonds were early Connecticut settlers. Others were in Maryland and North Carolina, where William Hammond was born in 1796. Progeny of the North Carolina branch later formed a large group in Jefferson County, Tennessee.

MISS RULE: Please analyze KEMPIN.—A. K., Long Beach.

KEMPIN originated as a place-name in Breslau, Germany. The original east German Slavic source word "kepa" was enlarged as the family name Kempinski in Prussia, meaning "from the place of the wooded island." The Kempinski armorial shield is red, emblazoned with a silver lance head. Kempinski was shortened to Kempin by many descendants.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform me on LAWLOR.—C. M., Huntington Beach.

LAWLOR is Irish, taken from the Gaelic clan name O'Leathlabhra. This described "Sons of the mumbler" and was phonetically pronounced "O'Lawlor." The Lawlors originated in Leix, Ireland, where their ancestor was Leathlobhar, King of Ulidia in A.D. 871, a ruler who presumably rehearsed his speeches in a mumbling undertone prior to delivering them to his subjects. The Lawlor armorial shield is gold, centered with a red rampant lion.

MISS RULE: Have you the background on HEID, HEIDIG.—E. H., R. H., Long Beach.

HEID and HEIDIG both signify that the ancestor was known in medieval Germany as "fine mannered one." However, these names may also indicate "dweller on the heath." Heath was a term for wild, uncultivated brush land. No armorial shield is accessible for either family.

MISS RULE: Please explain FORSON, FORSTON.—C.F., Long Beach; S.F., Lexington, Ky.

FORSON from the old English "For-son," depicts the family founder as "Son of the traveler or voyager." Forson also indicates the "son of the dweller on the upper land." Another origin, the Scottish-English "Fothir-son" denotes "Son of the woodland dweller." FORSTON combines the above "For-" with the old English "-ton" meaning "farmstead or estate."

MODEL 935

TWO BEDROOMS — ONE BATH

BY 1970 CONSTRUCTION COSTS MAY BE 20% HIGHER THAN TODAY

Every buyer would like to see lower prices for a change. But will he? Check the record... Home prices in the Los Angeles area have gone up about 15% since 1958, says the U.S. Department of Labor. Now they're rising faster. Local authorities estimate that labor and materials costs are adding about $1,000 a year to the price of a $20,000 home. At this rate, the price level could easily be 20% higher than today by 1970. And what is to hold it down? Newcomers keep flocking to Southern California, bidding against each other for a spot in the sun. New suburbs, shopping centers, and business and industrial sites keep gobbling up the shrinking supply of available land. All this, plus the inflationary impact of the Viet Nam war, points to one conclusion: the longer you wait to build a home or income unit, the more you'll pay for it. The recent upward tilt in mortgage rates may worry you as much as prices. That's only natural. But what does higher interest really cost you? A typical 1/2% rise runs to 30¢ a month for each $1,000 you borrow on a 25-year loan. That's $6 a month on $20,000. It's no fun paying even this much more. Yet rates may go still higher, like everything else. Many experts predict they will. A reassuring note: by buying now, you're covered against further interest hikes. That could be important protection for you. The equity you build up as an owner certainly is important. In addition, mortgage interest and property taxes are deductible on your Federal income tax. And a home or income unit, especially in booming Southern California is a great hedge against inflation. In an area everybody else wants to move, home values historically rise faster than other prices.

No One Suffers
Like the Gridiron
Boss at Notre Dame

The Football Coach Who Has 10 Million Assistants

By Jerome Hall
Editor, Southland Magazine

HE SHIFTED NERVOUSLY from one foot to the other, reached down for a paper cupful of water (and tossed it) onto the grass without ever tasting it, pulled a handkerchief from his pocket to mop his brow and constantly gestured to the gold-helmeted players on the field.

When it was over he slumped in a heap in the steamy dressing room, an exhausted mess, soaked from the ordeal of the day of football watching.

That was Ara Parseghian, age 43, the guiding hand behind the resurgence of gridery at Notre Dame — the world's most hypertensive football coach.

Today the season is over for Notre Dame and there's a long winter ahead. This is the time that football coaches who are not faced with bowl games can sit back and breathe a long sigh in memory of what might have been. But not the football coach at Notre Dame.

Parseghian (Par-seeg'-yen), you see, has not been to bed since his team closed its season against the USC Trojans in the Coliseum yesterday. He may not get much sleep tonight, either, for it usually takes a couple of days for Parseghian to unwind after even an ordinary game, and yesterday's was not an ordinary game.

IN SPITE OF the huge buildup that preceded last weekend's so-called game of the century between Notre Dame and Michigan State (10-10), yesterday's was the most important contest of the season for the Notre Dame coach. It was a game that sent the blood racing a bit faster through the Armenian arteries of Ara Parseghian, the wonder worker who turned mediocrity into skyrocketry at South Bend the past three years.

It was two years ago that the Fighting Irish, undefeated and shooting for the national championship, stomped into the Coliseum to wind up the schedule against the Trojans. But things turned sour after the Irish built a 17-0 lead by halftime and USC scored a major upset with the winning touchdown coming in the closing seconds.

THERE ARE THOSE who contend that Parseghian still has not healed from the wound of that day.

This weekend the situation was most similar. The Irish entered the Coliseum ranked No. 1 in the nation in one of the two major polls and an impressive victory over Trojans doubtless would boost them to the top in both. And Parseghian would have his first undefeated season at Notre Dame. He'd be one up toward Knute Rockne, who registered five.

It is well known that football coaches suffer a living death before big games — USC's John McKay shuns all food on Fridays and Saturdays and UCLA's Tommy Prothro admitted that he upchucked everything before his team's finale this year — but Parseghian tops them all. "He has to choke back his tears," admits his wife, Katy. "He suffers quite a lot."

But this intensity is nothing new since taking over at Notre Dame three seasons ago following 10 years of backsliding at Notre Dame after the retirement of Frank Leahy. Parseghian was the same at Northwestern and before that when coaching at Miami of Ohio. In fact, he played his high school ball with such intensity that it was written by the yearbook editor "Some-day he'll be coach at Notre Dame."

PARSEGHIAN IS a dark-eyed, shiny-bright, easy-to-like young man who is called Ara by everybody—even his players. He is easy to like, that is, on Mondays and Tuesdays and Wednesdays when there isn't an important game in the offing. He has been described as Napoleonic and vitriolic by his players and this season he bawled out sportswriters — "Well, if somebody doesn't start asking the questions this is going to be a mighty short session"—and has locked the practice gates to the typewriter brigade because "You guys have been printing what the (assistant) coaches have been saying to the players."

It is impossible to even begin to understand Ara Parseghian until one learns something of his beginning in athletics. Born and raised on the rough edges of Akron, O., he became athletic by necessity. His parents wanted him to follow an artistic career; they insisted he wear a beret to school, for instance, which forced Ara into almost daily athletics.

But it developed that he was a good athlete and he tried out for his school team — secretly, because his mother forbid such non-artistic pursuits. Ara's brother helped devise fantastic explanations for the cuts and bruises that Ara began to sport, the rewards of football practice. ("Once," recalls his brother, Jerry, "we said Ara fell down the stairs taking the erasers out to be cleaned and another time we said he tripped over a music stand because we knew she'd like that.")

THE PLOT succeeded until Ara made the mistake of playing so well that he got his picture in the paper. "Mother was furious," remembers Ara. "She said absolutely no more playing for me. But my brother finally won her over by explaining that this was one of the ways to become a good American. She was born in France and my father was of Armenian blood born in Turkey. That did it. 'Good American' was the magic phrase."

Ara's athletics continued when he was hired to patrol the schoolyard on weekends, a guard against vandalism. It is recalled that the window-breaking and fence-ripping stopped almost immediately and the school officials were glad to pay Ara his $7 a week for services rendered.

His Mother Wanted Him to Follow An Artistic Career So He Had to Lie About All Those Bumps and Bruises

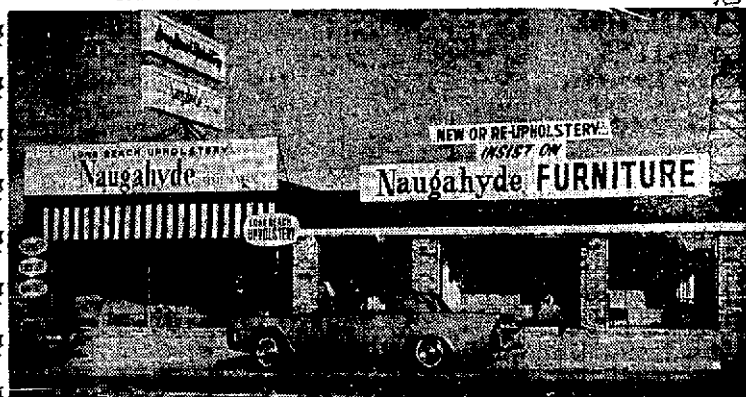

Parseghian played football in the service and then went to Miami of Ohio where he was a Little all-America halfback. He played briefly for the Cleveland Browns in professional ball but suffered a leg injury, so returned to Miami as an assistant coach under Woody Hayes, presently the Ohio State coach. He built Miami into a football power, winning the Mid-America Conference championship twice and finishing second three times during his five seasons there. At Northwestern he coached at the only private institution in the Big 10 and won 36 of 72 games in eight seasons in a match of the midget against giants.

Because of the manner of the successes at Northwestern, there are those who contend that Parseghian's tensions, his anxieties, his exhausting mental manipulations, are contagious and his players wind up the season in a state of near-collapse, too. They cite as evidence the several times his Northwestern teams roared off to fast starts only to tumble to mediocrity in the last half of the season. And they cite the fact that in '64, his first year at Notre Dame, a perfect season was within reach but got away with USC's victory in the finale. And last year the Irish won seven of their first eight but ended with a loss and a 0-0 tie.

THAT'S WHY Ara Parseghian was a little more tense than usual along the sidelines at the Coliseum yesterday. He knows he has critics—he found that out after he showed a willingness to settle for a tie against Michigan State a week ago. And he knew his critics were waiting for his team to wind up with a loss yesterday, because when you are the football coach at Notre Dame you have 10 million assistant coaches.

Tangle Over Redwoods

the home of the famed elk which may be seen as the motorist drives through.)

A state park in Del Norte County was expanded to more than 6,000 acres with the acquisition of an additional 470 acres from the Simpson Timber Co.

The Avenue of the Giants, immediately accessible from the 101 Freeway south of Eureka, will be 30 miles long in a short time with an additional nine miles of these redwood giants shrouded in centuries of shadow and shafts of cathedral-like sunlight. This will increase the Humboldt Redwood State Park to almost 40,000 acres.

Commercial foresters, lumber and mill men, along with others involved with the forest products industries, state that the bulk of the redwoods being logged are not park-type areas. They are on hills, interspersed with Douglas fir and are very much smaller and younger than many proponents of the park plans believe.

"THE FACT IS THAT the government doesn't need any more redwoods," says Hank Trobitt, forestry manager for the Simpson Timber Co., a major logging firm in the area. "The really fine trees are already in state parks."

It is often pointed out that the state has been negligent in making these fine big stands of redwoods accessible to the public.

Moreover, there are more redwoods than ever. The redwoods will not be gone in a few years, since they are growing as fast as they are being logged. Second growth redwoods cover the hills, and with careful re-seeding and other controls, most of the companies are on a perpetual harvest plan with no need or plan for destroying the basic beauty of the area. "Why," one asks, "should we log ourselves out of business? We have millions invested in mills, machinery and incidental plant investments, along with a not-inconsiderable responsibility to the communities within which we work."

It was that sense of responsibility which ripped the issue wide open again recently.

The Miller-Rellim Redwood Co. owns some of the key property in the Kuchel and other park plans. While the matter was under consideration, Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall and officials of the lumber company casually discussed what the disputed 18,000 acres of virgin redwood was worth. Miller-Rellim seem to believe their holdings are worth $90 million. Udall and the entire 45,000-acre tracts should be purchased for no more than $55 million! But the National Park officials estimated that even with the dramatic difference in opinion as to the purchase price of the key slice of the park, no one came up with option of recompense money.

NOW, DURING the off season for logging in the redwood groves, there is little if any redwood timber being cut. Crews have moved out of the groves to higher ground where winter drainage permits work.

Come springtime, it is believed the lumbering operations will switch back to the old-growth redwood areas and it is further expected that there will be loud protests from federal bureau spokesmen, legislators and conservationists.

The log buckers will answer with savage whacks with their axes against tree trunks. They are, in large part, descendants of men whose fathers logged the same region. For three generations these burly lumbermen have lived in an area whose economy, if not a booming one, has been remarkably stable.

Now they are meeting with a dire threat to that economy and, as they put it, "the boys in Washington" are learning that these big-tree people are every bit as sturdy and stout as the redwoods they harvest.

California's Splintered Tax Rebellion Is Gathering Strength; As Sure as You-Know-What, Changes Are Coming

Psst! It's Only 13 Days 'til Deadline!

MENTION PROPERTY TAX to any California property owner and he'll galvanize. No tax is so damned, so indestructible, so accessible, so exploitable, and so subject to chronic abuse. It is denounced by taxpayer and politician alike. Even the tax collector complains.

Sixty years ago at the first convention of the National Tax Association, delegates dismissed property taxes as a "dismal failure" and authorized a study commission to find a revenue replacement. Years later members of the same organization, having failed to find a substitute, issued a terse finding: "It is a fiscal tool as hard to use effectively as it is to supplant."

By Bill Duncan

Ten years ago, George Mitchell, the Federal Reserve System economist, predicted that by 1976 property taxes would be "an all but forgotten relic of an earlier fiscal age."

THE PROOF OF the tax pudding In Mitchell's prediction is 10 years away, but it appears as doomed as the National Tax Association's statement 60 years ago. Like death, property taxes are here to stay.

Nationally, there is a Boston Tea Party attitude toward property taxes. The situation is particularly rebellious in California where new organizations spring up daily to oppose tax increases and seek tax repeals. Bond issues are facing tougher opposition from tax-conscious homeowners. But so far, no organization has been able to dike the tax tidal wave.

Last year, $23.9 billion—almost as much as the corporation income tax—was collected in property taxes in the United States. About one-half of all local government revenue in the United States is from property taxes. Nine-tenths of the nation's 91,000 local governments have property taxing powers. The property tax levy brought in more than 20 per cent of all taxes, federal, state and local, levied in the nation last year.

NEXT TO THE federal income tax, the property tax in the United States and Canada is the most important revenue for government. The nation's school districts, cities and counties get virtually all their revenue from it. Fifty per cent of California's tax revenue came from property taxes last year—a staggering $3.5 billion, the largest in the nation.

In some way, taxation of property touches everyone—the renter and the landlord, the homeowner and the businessman, the farmer and the fisherman. In California, the situation is serious. Delinquent tax bills in April of this year exceeded records set in the depression years of the 1930s. A record number of petitioners protested assessed valuations of their property this year in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Little wonder. In Los Angeles County alone, assessed valuations were up 22 per cent in Long Beach, 18 per cent in Palos Verdes Estates, 27 per cent in Lomita, 28 per cent in Rolling Hills, 12 per cent in Torrance and a whopping 61 per cent in Avalon.

CLIMBING ASSESSED valuations in Orange County moved Santa Ana Mayor Harry Harvey to accuse County Tax Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw of using a "smokescreen" to get elected by promising to equalize taxes by reassessing the massive 93,000-acre Irvine Ranch. Harvey charged that Hinshaw upped assessments of homeowners from an average of 20.1 per cent of the market value to 25 per cent.

Hinshaw's 4.9 per cent increase is just a little ahead of a new law setting forth a statewide time table requiring him—and all California assessors—to bring assessments up to 25 per cent of the market value by 1971. The law will relieve the burden of Long Beach property owners where assessments are already 1 to 2 per cent above the 25 per cent ratio, but will hurt in Orange County where most areas are assessed below the 25 per cent ratio.

"It will mean that for the first time in California's property tax history all counties will be using the same ground rules," explained Richard Nevins, Southern California member of the State Board of Equalization. Nevins said the reform is aimed at preventing questionable practices like those that resulted in bribery convictions in San Diego, San Francisco and Alameda County assessors' offices last year.

THE NEW ASSESSMENT law is not a reform of the tax itself, however. Its authors, Assemblymen Nicholas Petris and John Knox, stated: "... the reform is intended to repair the machinery that produces the property tax." Both men agreed it is the first step toward a property tax reform.

Dr. Irene Hickman, a blonde osteopath who doubles as the Sacramento County assessor, has that county in a state of revolt with her plans to assess property at 100 per cent of the market value. Her plan, patterned after the 19th century Henry George economic philosophy, will place the entire tax burden on the land instead of buildings and improvements.

The George "site value" method is used in New Zealand, Australia and South Africa and in Pittsburgh, Pa. The so-called Pittsburgh plan taxes land at twice the rate of improvements. In San Francisco, the Arthur Little consulting firm, hired by the city planning commission to study property tax policies, reported that assessed valuation of land dropped from 30 to 25 per cent "... thus the burden of taxation has been falling more heavily on the improvements than on the land itself. With this trend and the threat of a growing tax rate, owners will be reluctant to improve their property lest the increase in taxes nullify the benefits of improvements."

NATIONALLY, VACANT land is assessed at 20.5 per cent of true value while improvements are assessed at 30.6 per cent.

Sacramento County Counsel John B. Heinrich said he expects to petition the California Supreme Court by Thursday for a writ to stop Dr. Hickman from assessing property at its full market value. The State Board of Equalization will join the county suit as a "friend of the court."

Dr. Hickman said other California assessors are ready to join her in enforcing a State Constitution section which reads: "All property subject to taxation shall be assessed for taxation at its full cash value." The section does exist, but court rulings have upheld the fractional assessments.

"I have no choice but to abide by the Constitution," Dr. Hickman said in an interview. "There is sufficient authority to allow me to assess fractionally. There is not sufficient authority to order me to do so."

Heinrich said Dr. Hickman's proposal would be a "fiscal disaster" for Sacramento County. "We would lose 30,000 veterans' exemptions, state aid to schools, state aid to crippled children and the county's share of assistance to the needy would quadruple," he stressed.

Dr. Hickman said she welcomed a judicial interpretation "because it might not only command 100 per cent property valuations for Sacramento County, but also for the other 57 counties."

And while Sacramento County is battling the 100 per cent plan, Los Angeles County Assessor Philip Watson is spearheading a campaign to limit property tax to 2 per cent of its market value. But there is even an organization going Watson 1 per cent better. The Organization of United California Homeowners, whose initials spell OUCH, is seeking 500,000 signatures to bring to a vote the 1 per cent of the market value limitation of assessments. OUCH's president, attorney-realtor Bill Ross, explained at the Hermosa Beach headquarters that if the measure were approved by voters it would go into effect July 1, 1969.

ASKED IF A 1 per cent limit could be destructive to local and county government, Ross answered:

"Absolutely not. Only the schools will be removed from the property tax."

When asked where the revenue for schools—now running more than half of the tax bill in most areas—would come from, Ross commented:

"The state already provides more than 30 per cent of the school revenue. The politicians would delight in having us (OUCH) take a position on where this tax money would come from. They know that this issue could divide and conquer us. While we

It's a new line of cookware called Corning Ware® Buffet Servers. And as you can see, the little blue Cornflower found on regular Corning Ware Cookware, is conspicuously absent on Corning Ware Buffet Servers.

This means that Corning Ware Buffet Servers will go with anything your friends go for; anything from Herman Miller modern to art nouveau tablecloths.

But even though Corning Ware Buffet Servers don't look anything like regular Corning Ware Cookware, they do everything regular Corning Ware Cookware does.

Each piece is more than just a serving dish. It's also a casserole and a saucepan, all rolled into one. And each piece is easy to clean.

All of which is nice. Because no matter how fancy your friends are, occasionally they do have to cook.

DAWN'S EARLY BLIGHT

Oh, How We Hate to Get Up in the Morning!

By Frank L. Remington

WHEN YOU AWOKE this morning you were bright-eyed and eager for the challenge of another day, weren't you? Ready to tackle the weeds in the garden, straighten up workshop or pantry.

There was no sign of dawn's early blight, was there?

And tomorrow morning you'll roll out of bed a moment or two before the usual time — you'll have no need for an alarm clock—and you will dive gaily into your daily duties.

Of course you will. But there are a good many citizens who'll encounter a bit of trouble come the morning. Some will oversleep, some will grouch and grouse when the alarm goes off, for the daily project of self-starting is one that has plagued man (and woman) ever past.

Here are a few examples of the methods that have been used to awaken the oversleeper through the years:

ALWAYS A heavy sleeper, a woman recently purchased a rooster with the forlorn hope that its crowing would awaken her. Unfortunately, her apartment window opened on a court. Because the rooster couldn't see the sun rise, it didn't crow.

A man with chronic Rip-Van-Winklitis rigged up a clock mechanism which turned on a powerful searchlight placed to shine on his face at a set hour each morning. Although it blinded him for several minutes afterward, he stayed awake.

Inventor Thomas Edison would lie on a couch with his arm dropping over the side, his hand clasping a ping pong ball. When his fingers relaxed enough to drop the ball, the bounce awakened him and he was ready to go back to work.

Through the years, man has devised a diversity of gadgets, routines and regimens in an attempt to solve the pressing and provoking problem of how to get up in the morning. The ancient Chinese concocted one of the first "waker-uppers." Actually this device was an Oriental version of the modern hotfoot. When a Chinese traveler napped by the roadside, he slipped a burning joss or "punk" stick between his toes. When the stick burned down to his flesh, the sleeper jounced up like a jumping jack.

THE CHINESE also dreamed up an ingenious Rube Goldberg gimcrack to jolt a sleeper. This precursor of the modern alarm clock consisted of a sun dial and a movable magnifying glass. Set to focus the sun on a small load of gunpowder at a set time, the gadget gathered sun rays and concentrated their heat on the charge. The subsequent explosion shattered the sleeper's slumber — and probably transformed him into a trembling hulk as well.

In the ruins of ancient Pompeii archaeologists excavated a morning rouser resembling a huge hourglass. When enough sand sifted through, the added weight caused the lower half of the device to detach itself. It dropped onto a sheet of tin with a thunderlike roar that roused the soundest sleeper.

In 1850, an inventor demonstrated his "alarm" bed at the Leipzig Fair. Motivated by clockwork, springs and levers, this preposterous pad set off two successive alarms. At the second warning, a sign popped before the sleeper: TIME TO GET UP. If these proddings failed to pull the slumberer from the arms of Morpheus, he became fair game for the master stroke. With grinding gears, one side of the bed rose to a 45-degree angle and the occupant tumbled to the floor. At this point the baleful bunk demonstrated its only saving grace — it automatically lit an alcohol stove for the debedded sleeper's morning coffee.

MOST MODERN methods of rousing sleepers depend on mechanical means. However, one highly effective way relies purely on manpower. In fact, a London man conducts a bizarre business as a professional waker-upper. On a recent morning one of his clients turned uneasily in his bed as his sleep-laden senses detected a tapping on his second story bedroom window. He wearily forced open his eyes, yawned, and then dozed off again.

Tap! Tap! Tap! Impatiently the fellow threw back the sheets and glanced at the clock. Five A.M.! Switching on a lamp, he shuffled to the window. "Righto, Luke," he shouted to the dimly-outlined figure below who had been tapping the window with a long stick. "You can move on now. I'm awake."

Milkmen, mill workers, and others who report to work very early rely on the window tapper's services. If they depended on an alarm clock they could switch it off and go back to sleep. The window tapper continues rapping until his tormented customer lights a lamp and waves to him, proving he is awake and on his feet.

For quite a while now psychologists and psychiatrists have been investigating the mental factors fostering oversleep and the fondness for roosting beyond the normal rising hour.

They conjecture that those who practice these habits probably harbor a great unhappiness or fear either con-

A Battle Hymn of Waterloo

ON THE BATTLEFIELD of Waterloo that June 15, 1815, there were many Kennedys and quite a few Fitzgeralds. Irishmen fought on both sides. There were Lees and Grants, too.

"A great number of well-known Americans had ancestors in the battle," John Sutherland writes in his Men of Waterloo, Prentice-Hall, $7.95.

Helped by the fact that many a veteran of Waterloo immigrated to the Infant American Republic, Waterloo and the legend of Napoleon infatuated the American people. "Along a five-mile stretch of road in Missouri one can travel through the towns of Wellington, Waterloo and Napoleon."

Missourians, commemorating Napoleon's places of exile, also have named towns after St. Helena, Longwood and Elba, while Arcola and Lodi in that state celebrate two of Napoleon's great victories.

There are St. Helens in six other states; there are 10 Longwoods, 12 Elbas, 13 Wellingtons, 15 Lodis and no less than two dozen Waterloos.

Waterloo, that minuscule dot on the map of Flanders in Belgium, has never ceased to excite the battle buff, and its political echoes were endless.

John Sutherland relives the great battle, into which Napoleon so blithely led his 125,000 men across the Franco-Belgian border frontier to the most famous defeat in history. While the story has been told a hundred times more than the hundred days in which Napoleon prepared for his downfall, starting with his escape from Elba, it never palls—provided it is well-told, as it is here.

The intrigue around the Elba escape; the landing in the south of France; the march of triumph to Paris—and then the battle against the Allied armies led by Wellington and Blücher—all are told in detail. But this book is mainly about people who fought, and not only about them, but about their women folk. It examines the attitudes of the men and women in and behind both armies.

It deals with what the soldiers ate and drank, what weapons they used, how the medical men and their aides functioned on the battlefield, and a thousand other things that really matter.

It tells what happened to the marshals and the generals who survived the battle—and most interestingly, the "lesser" men.

Captain Hill was the fattest man in the British Army, and as such a huge target; all his friends were sure he would be the first to die at Waterloo. He died a lieutenant general 45 years after. A score of Wellington's officers were still on the British Army's official list as late as 1886—71 years later. A drummer boy, Private Haughton, was reported in good health in 1892.

A young girl's curiosity drove her close to the battlefield that fateful Sunday. In 1895, she was still alive, as Madame Givron. Two of the last eyewitnesses at Waterloo died in 1903—Mrs. Barbara Moon, who as a four-year-old girl, rode over the battlefield on June 18, 1815, and Elizabeth Watkins, who as a little girl helped prepare bandages.

And a member of Napoleon's Polish Light Horse, a Lt. Markiewicz, born in 1794, was still living in 1903.

THE BATTLE OF THE LITTLE BIGHORN, by Mari Sandoz. Lippincott, $4.50.

The late Mari Sandoz gave new glory to Indians and white pioneers of the West alike in many fine books, like "Crazy Horse," "The Buffalo Hunters," "The Cattleman." When she was a girl in northwest Nebraska, Indians who had surrounded Little Bighorn, camped near her home, and what she learned from them give substance to this account of the battle in which Custer met his demise. The writing is beautiful, the personal knowledge and the research obviously great. The Sioux character, the feelings of Custer's men are conveyed so well that the reader feels himself back at the actual scene.

THREE FLAGS AT THE STRAITS: THE FORTS OF MACKINAC, by Walter Havighurst. Prentice-Hall, $6.95.

WHEN A YOUNG nation starts sprawling out of its confines, its history has a habit of centering around particular geographical areas. The Straits of Mackinac were such a keystone.

Around them focused the constant tumult that was the Northwest Territories, from the pioneering mission efforts of Father Marquette to the naval fights of Oliver Hazard Perry on the Great Lakes in the War of 1812.

In this new volume of Prentice-Hall's American Forts Series, a project so ably planned by Stewart H. Holbrook, the never-quiet chronicle of the Mackinac forts is excitingly told by Walter Havighurst.

The Straits of Mackinac are at the juncture of Lakes Michigan and Huron, and nature must have intended them as the site of forts—or at any rate, the French thought so.

The French were the first Europeans to set eyes on the Straits—Jean Nicolet in 1634. Jacques Marquette and a handful of fugitive Huron Indians established a small station, St. Ignace, there in 1671.

The settlement flourished until 1701, when Cadillac abandoned it for Detroit.

Mary Lee Settle (above) back in 1942, was a lone American girl in a barracks full of Englishwomen. She had joined the RAF's auxiliary, the WAAF. In "All the Brave Promises," Delacorte Press, $4, she tells the dark and light side of war.

Frank Lloyd Wright: A New Reevaluation

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT: A STUDY IN ARCHITECTURAL CONTENT, by Norris Kelly Smith. Prentice-Hall, $5.95 (Spectrum paperback, $2.95).

ART HISTORIAN Norris Kelly Smith looks at Frank Lloyd Wright somewhat differently than has been wont among art critics. Far from being a "modern" architect, Wright was a conservative, Prof. Smith thinks, and it was Wright's conservatism that was the source of his power.

Wright was a defender of civilization's oldest ideas; his artistry proclaimed the biblical and Romantic faith in man's dignity, Smith finds. As between the functional and the symbolic, Wright chose the former.

In Wright's design for the private home man's longing for freedom in harmony with nature was expressed; his design of the office building expressed man's desire for the creative collectivity of organized society.

Photographs of some of Wright's masterpieces enhance the book: Wright's one home, Taliesin I in Spring Green, Wis. (set afire and destroyed by a paranoid servant with the deaths of seven persons); the famed Edgar J. Kaufmann house at Bear Run, Pa.; the Winslow house; the Robie house; Price Tower; the Johnson Wax Co. building and others.—N.H.

BOOKS IN BRIEF

A DIARY OF PRAYER, by Elizabeth Goudge. Coward-McCann, $6.95.

To all who receive inspiration and strength through prayer, this day-to-day guide will be of great value. The prayers for each day come from many lands and religions and from many ages. The prayers and meditations in this book are related to all phases of daily living. There are 12 fine woodcuts by Fritz Kredel.

MAMBAS AND MAN-EATERS, by C. J. P. Ionides. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $5.95.

Turning from biography to autobiography, H. R. & W. has just brought out this hunter's story by the famous nimrod and naturalist, Ionides, a crusty individualist who often gets along with deadly mammals and reptiles better than he does people, tells how he learned to live neck-deep in danger and love it.

An ivory poacher-turned-conservationist, Ionides spent many years as a game ranger, saving his money for leave periods when he could turn from his vocation to his avocation—hunting rare species in almost inaccessible far corners of Africa.

In later years a bad leg forced him to give up hunting and he turned to collecting reptiles and became one of the foremost authorities on poisonous snakes. This book is shot through with excitement and humor and its main fault is that the final page comes too soon.—F.J.

Terror in Viet Nam as Told by Cong

TERROR IN VIET NAM, by Jay Mallin. Van Nostrand, $3.95.

A VIET CONG defector talked frankly of the killings his side had committed for the sake of sheer terror: "The VC pinned an accusation on the chests of the victims they executed. They did that to scare the people, because actually the victims had committed no crimes."

The Viet Cong, said the defector, killed first and invented crimes to match the killings.

Another defector told of killing 40 villagers who would not pay taxes to the National Liberation Front. A 20-year-old hard-core VC who had defected in Phuoc Tuy still showed the effects of Communist brainwashing, even explaining away the beheading of his father.

JAY MALLIN tells of these barbarities and many others in Terror in Viet Nam. Mallin, once an editor of the English language Havana Herald, became an expert on Communist methods in his coverage of the 1956-58 Castro revolution. He went to Viet Nam and talked with many village chiefs who were targets of Viet Cong terror, dazed mothers holding children, women blood-spattered from indiscriminately planted VC mines and bombs.

Some in the Communist forces question silently. On the body of a North Vietnamese soldier killed at Duc Co a poem was found, addressed to his mother, Mrs. Tran Thi Phan. It read:

A Touch of Wisconsin

By Ellen Krec

THEY BOUGHT the house at night—but not in the dark.

The house in Los Cerritos so closely resembled their former home in Wisconsin that Dr. and Mrs. George Gehring wanted it by the time they reached the kitchen. The owners suggested they return by daylight for a closer inspection, but nothing could change their minds then—and after three years they still are delighted.

Hub of the home is the family room-kitchen and dining room. Mrs. Gehring says:

"Heaven is when the boys are in their pajamas, a roast is in the oven, a fire is in the fireplace and we are just family!"

The rear approach is as simple as automatic garage doors can make it. The Gehrings step out of the car and directly into the 36-by-14-foot family room. A large red brick complex includes a fan-shaped fireplace in the center with a built-in rotisserie on one side and a music cabinet on the other.

A COMPLETE service area on one wall is equipped with maple-toned formica work spaces and ash cabinets above and below the sink. Windows open on a close-in blank fence so the Gehrings put a potted Podocarpus under each window, giving a green lacy effect.

Furnishings are comfortable and practical with two sofas and matching green leather chairs on tweed carpeting. The pink-and-gray tweed underfoot almost is identical to pink-and-gray vinyl floors in the upper kitchen and dining area.

Lighting comes from two wagon wheels set into the ceiling, each with individual lamps mounted on the spokes.

A ceramic tile walk-in pantry may be used as a cooling room as well as storage space.

A pink-and-white bath was designed for children, with all equipment installed three inches lower than usual.

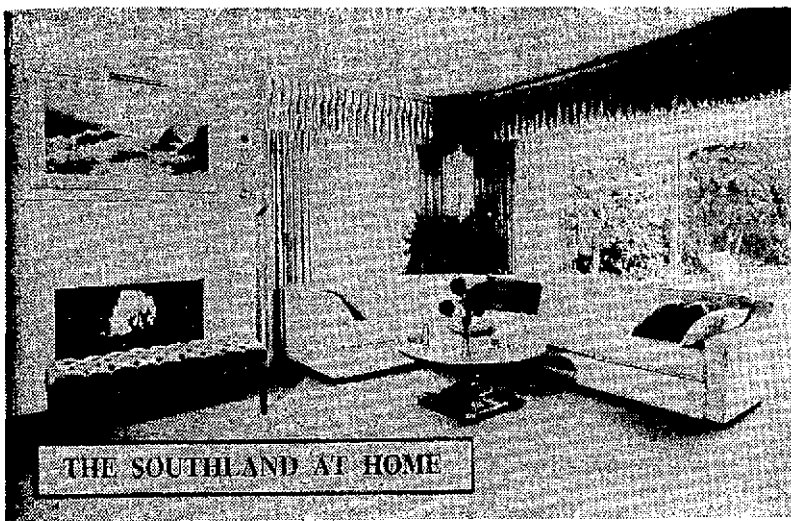

Two steps up from the sunken family room is an L-shaped kitchen. A pink formica serve-through between the rooms matches the pink-topped, built-in buffet in the dining area. Louvered windows line two walls and the balance of the room is ash paneled with matching cabinets. A practical circular table is maple with an almost-perfect-match formica top. Captains chairs give an informal warm look to the room, pink draperies and a dropped copper lamp over the table complete its finishings.

"Midwest Colonial" is the way the Gehrings describe the architectural styling of their home (top). The dinette (above) is paneled in ash with a pink-and-gray vinyl floor. Living room (left) overlooks long patio.

THE SOUTHLAND AT HOME

A PINK utility room and a gold-and-white bath create a walk-through to the study-guest room. This room is ideal for short-stay guests with its comfortable green leather sofa bed and two black leather barrel chairs. Ash wainscoting with beige-and-white wallpaper and Indian silk draperies lend a monochromatic background.

The living room is in beige with touches of gold. Its look is formal although the Gehrings insisted on a piano because they "just wanted one"—despite frowns from a decorator.

The long living room is surrounded on three sides by windows draped with pleated beige silk. A circular sofa backed by a triangular planter table and dual gold velvet chairs may be moved easily on casters for intimate conversation groupings. The Gehrings felt the room was too large for two separate groupings and a bit small for three, so they settled for the movable chairs.

A wide, white wood mantel over a half-white brick fireplace holds a gold rose in a matching gold vase balanced by a favorite marine painting by Italian artist Rossi. A tufted velvet bench is useful for additional seating. A blue-green Venetian lamp stands on a long walnut buffet with an intricately carved front. On each side of the buffet is an arm chair in seafoam brocade. The same chairs may be used in the small, formal dining room.

Rooms flow subtly one to another through the use of blending or matching colors and compatible furniture. The dining room is simply but elegantly furnished in Italian provincial fruitwood with an excellent background of beige flocked paper.

The foyer makes an easy transition from the living room upstairs. The upper half of the walls are covered with pale green flocked wallpaper while the bottom half is paneled in ash. Under the change staircase is a low storage closet, the railing is wrought iron, in white, and is simple on the side of the wall and decorative on the other. This continues to the upper landing, closed off with a wrought iron gate. A low area next to the carpeted stairs has been painted the same beige, giving a spacious sweep and an interesting break between paneling and stairs.

The upper level of the Gehring home contains a master bedroom suite. A private arrangement of rooms, it includes a pink-and-white bedroom furnished in contemporary blonde wood, and a former nursery turned hide-a-way. The hidden room is the answer to a quiet evening at home.

Complete with television, his and hers adjustable leather chairs, and walls lined with books, it's the only room in the house without a telephone or an intercom!

The bathroom is decorated in the same shades as the bedroom and the quiet room and is cornered conveniently to make it easily reached from both rooms. A floor-to-ceiling mirror hangs at the end of the hall.

The upper landing leading to the boys' bedrooms is lined with large photographs of each boy and protected from the stairs by a white, wrought iron railing.

THE GEHRINGS call the exterior "Midwest Colonial." The facade is white stucco with slate gray shutters. The entry is recessed with a red brick landing and steps faced with white stucco. A bay window prevents the simple exterior from having a flat appearance.

Cool(ed) Cats Are Comely

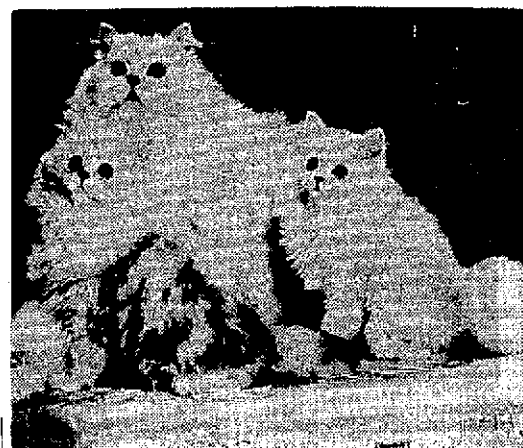

By Eleanor Avery Price

COOLER MONTHS find cats usually at their best coatwise. (Dogs, too!) Persians, such as Beauty of Dream Harbor and two of her daughters pictured today, owned by Jeanne Ramsdale of 279 Argonne Ave.,

Long Beach, are particularly beautiful — providing they are groomed.

A kitten should become used to a comb and brush at an early age. Use a comb with rounded ends to the long thin teeth. A good comb is one with wide-set teeth to work out tangles, and fine-set teeth to remove small knots and get ride of loose fur. Use an extra-small-toothed comb on the face to remove dirt and fleas if there are any.

A light-coated longhair can have baby talcum powder

Noted Persian fancier Jeanne Ramsdale of Long Beach owns these well-groomed cats and kittens.

There's a plant of some kind blooming in Southern California every season of the year. Grow your own. The garden columns of Southland Magazine will help you.

der shaken into his fur, or try cornstarch. When these are brushed out, the coat appears fluffier.

It usually takes two people to give a cat a bath. You will need lots of towels and a dryer. Put eye ointment or mineral oil in the eyes, lower the cat into his bath, or use a spray throughout.
Lather him well, working a ring of suds around the neck first. Thoroughly rinse, and before coat is dry, lift the hairs with a comb or brush.
Don't let the cat become chilled.

FOR SHOW and for general comfort, cats also need the tips of their nails clipped slightly. This may be a job for your veterinarian. But you can make a squeeze box of door screening, pop the cat in it, close the lid, and stand the box on end. Kitty will hang onto the screen with his nails, and you can then trim them. This method is used on most big circus cats.

Be sure the cat is full bodied, with no thinness caused by worms. His ears, teeth and skin should appear healthy.

When you transport a cat, use a carrier and guard him well if you transfer him to such a thing as a show cage.
It is extremely disconcerting when a cat escapes. You can buy very nice cat carriers, but one of heavy-duty paper is better than none.

For show, you do not want to take along chipped cups and saucers for water and food, nor a cardboard box for a pan. Purchase inexpensive dishes and a plastic litter pan. For show, the litter pan should be small. You'll also want a small rug or at least decent towel for the bottom of a show cage. You probably will even want to decorate the cage. Most are 27 inches high, 36 long, and 24 deep.
At shows, litter is usually provided and food at least once a day. If your cat needs more, take it along. Also take certificates of inocula-tions for kittens that are allowed at age four months and up.

TODAY: Jewel City Cat
Show, 220 E. Colorado St.,

lope Valley Kennel Club will ter Fairgrounds.

Weight Loss by Yakking

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

IN THE TREATMENT of obesity, group discussion appears to be of greater benefit than use of appetite-reducing drugs, a new study shows.

Tests conducted at the Army's weight-control clinic at Fort Dix, N. J., show that discussion groups proved twice as effective as pill-taking in weight reduction.

More important, patients involved in discussion groups adopted new eating habits, which is the primary objective in any long-term weight-reduction program.

The report is in Annals of Internal Medicine.

DERMATOGLYPHICS, the study of handprints and footprints, now is being used in modern medicine to detect heart disease and other birth defects in newborn infants.

Two University of Minnesota investigators say there is good evidence that many infants damaged by German measles infection can be identified at birth by palmprint examination.

Palmprints of most normal, healthy babies are similar, the researchers say. So variations from normal patterns may give clues to disease.

The report is in the AMA Journal. In the same Journal issue is another report, this by two Japanese physicians who say palmprints can be used to determine the general cause of heart disease. The Japanese doctors found that some cases of congenital heart disease are manifested by abnormal palm patterns.

PREGNANT WOMEN who work at a job have a 12 per cent greater incidence of premature delivery than housewives, a study of 13,000 women discloses.

Some of the higher prematurity rate among working women is attributable to fatigue, says Dr. Bosilka Milochevich of Belgrade.

EXTRAORDINARY progress has been made in the development of a vaccine against German measles, reports Dr. Dorothy M. Horstmann, professor of pediatrics at Yale University.

There is reason to believe, she says, that German measles may soon join the growing group of preventable diseases.

PERSISTENT OR recurrent respiratory symptoms in patients younger than 3 years old may be due to an unsuspected foreign body in the esophagus (food tube), two New York researchers report.

Most common symptoms caused by such a situation are persistent cough, wheezing and recurrent croup-like infections.

In a report in The Laryngoscope, the doctors found nine patients ranging from 7 months to 3 years old who had symptoms caused by an unsuspected foreign body for three weeks to one year. Eight of the youngsters had swallowed a coin. A clothespin spring was responsible for distress in the other patient.

IN THE LEEWARD islands of The Netherlands Antilles they call it Can-dela Pa Den ("the fire within").

In Southern India they call it Adda Poga.

In plain English it's "reverse smoking"—placing the lit end of a cigarette or cigar inside the mouth.

A report in Central African Journal of Medicine says Rhodesian factory workers who are forbidden to smoke at work get around the ban by reverse smoking.

In India, there's a high incidence of cancer of the palate among those persons who smoke Chutta cigars with the burning end in the mouth.

In one study dealing with reverse smoking of cigarettes, hard white patches appeared in mouth tissue, but no malignant changes occurred.

A Yard's Not All That Untouchable

By Ted Krec

I MAY BE a public relations man, but I sure can't public relate with kids! They just don't dig Ol' Ted.

Back of my house (and ridiculous wall) is an open space greatly favored by the younger set as a playground. I don't know what they play but part of the game consists of hurling empty soft drink cans over my fence. The result is pandemonium.

Not only do they bang and clang on the patio, but Clyde the beagle gets in the act baying at the cans and fighting them to a standstill.

The last time this happened, I stood up on a bench and peered over the wall. Here were kids of all description, mostly about two and one-half feet tall.

"ALL RIGHT, you men!" I thundered, "Line up over here!" The only result was that the kids howled with laughter and I was knocked off the bench with a well-thrown soft drink can—not empty but open!

I retreated into the house and Ellen told me I should be ashamed of myself. She went out with a bag of candy, had them all pacified and promising to behave in a matter of minutes.

Even the dog has better rapport than I with kids. I was sitting in the study one day when I heard a great shuffling and stomping in the front yard. Here was a group of young denizens who hurled themselves up on my redwood gate and screamed: "Hi, there, Clyde, ol' boy!"

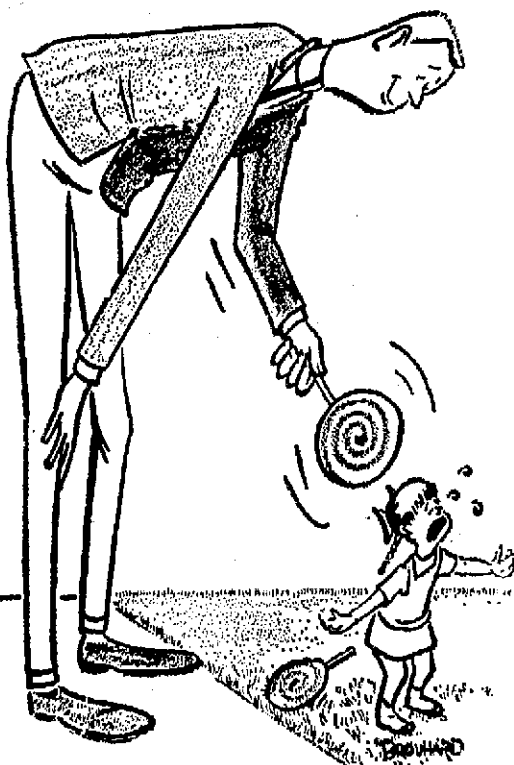

Naturally, he responded to the greeting and my neighbors were talking about calling the police, blaming me for the pandemonium.

THE POINT I am making is that walls will not defeat kids. This is sheer nonsense.

When I was a boy, a wall between neighbors' property was unheard of. If you misbehaved in a neighbor's yard, the old man would give you a fanning or a kick in the keister and send you home, where you promptly got a duplicate of the same treatment. But nobody walled you out—you were welcome everywhere.

Somehow the neighbor kids just don't dig ol' Ted

Try it today. Let a kid stick a hose in your mail slot and turn it on. If you raise your voice, the juvenile officers come and YOU are pinched!

But this is not the fault of the kids—the nice thing about them is that they haven't changed since the beginning of time. The parents are the mental cases.

Kids are always welcome at our house—and nothing in our yard is so untouchable that kids can't enjoy it. I remember a year ago last Fourth of July. We had 30 people at the house for a picnic — and the kids behaved a lot better than the adults.

ping stones—and the kids won't veer off them—I can recall that when you stepped on a crack you broke your back! This was a game we played while walking along a sidewalk.

I really love kids—it's just that I'm so big, ugly and loud that they despair of me. I recall once when I was living in Indiana—that's Dullsville on the Wabash—I was coming home for lunch. Two tiny little girls were roller skating, and as I passed by they stood mute. When I had gone on by, one said to the other: "Eech! How would you like to be married to THAT?"

IF YOUR YARD is beautiful, share it with the kids. They really love pretty things and will love you for sharing it.

I can remember when we lived in Rossmore — ours was the only front yard with a big area of grass. It was dichondra and grass mixed. Every day it was full of kids, lying out there and staring at the sky.

And do you know what? Never once did we chase them, because one of my fondest memories is lying in a grassy field and watching fairland in the blue as giant cumulus clouds assumed a variety of personalized shapes miles above me.

Be nice to the little people—they may grow up to be mighty big people one of these days. It's worth a camellia or a rose now and then. Besides, when you're as awkward as I am in a yard, you can't justifiably criticize lightfooted kids!

THERE ARE a variety of animals that live here. You can see the desert bighorn, which is a sheep, but you have to look awfully quick because he usually hides. There are, of course, all sorts of lizards, and some snakes (remember the social life). There are also deer, coyotes and bobcats.

If you like birds, more than 230 species have been sighted in the monument.

In addition to the Joshua Trees, there are some junipers and a few pinon pine.

If you're interested in history the rangers can tell you about ancient man who lived in this area, and the Indians who came long after him, and the gold seekers who didn't find any, and the cattlemen who built the dams that are still there and the rustlers who hid their stolen cattle in Hidden Valley.

The names of many of the places, like Squaw Tank, Pleasant Valley, Lost Horse Canyon, Juniper Flat, Lost Palms and Arch Rock, sound right out of Bret Harte and the Old West. They are.

So, this is Joshua Tree National Monument.

If you've never been there, you should go. It's great. And now's the season.

State's Carlsbad

Iva" has been partially excavated and stone tools, small animal bones, and human relics found. These are on display in the reserve headquarters office. The smaller cave is known as "The Annex" but is off limits to the public.

The last Indian chief in the region, Tecopi, is shown in a contemporary photograph dressed in a railroad conductor's uniform. According to the rangers this was a gift of the railroad which needed Tecopi's permission to cross his land with its tracks.

THE GROUNDS of the reserve are decorated with petroglyphs, Indian grinders, and mining relics Mitchell and the present rangers gathered from the surrounding countryside. Situated on the brow of a hill, the reserve office with its cool veranda and multi-colored stone work is a delightful spot from which to see the desert country. It is also the starting point for trips to the caverns.

A smooth gravel trail notched into the hillside designated as "The Mary Beal Nature Trail" by Mitchell after a friend, leads to the entrance of Mitchell Caverns. Along the way, stone markers have been set up next to important native plants that are explained by a free pamphlet and the rangers as you walk along.

A round trip tour of the caves takes an hour and a half of leisurely walking. A second trail, lower on the hillside, provides an alternate route to return to the campgrounds. Some of Mitchell's mine shafts can be seen along this path.

Inside the caverns, it is awesome. Some of the romance of stumbling along behind Mitchell with his gasoline lantern over the uneven floor is lost in the presence of electric lights and stairways—but the beauty and majesty of the caverns is undisturbed.

A rainbow of color is reflected from the walls and ceiling and the eerie shapes of the cavern formations urge the use of plenty of color film and flash bulbs. Generally speaking, most any camera fitted with a flash attachment will produce sparkling color pictures in the caverns.

The single cavern that visitors are permitted to see is only a fraction of the vast complex of caves, passages and chambers to be found in the region.

IT PROBABLY will be many years before all of the Mitchell Caverns and others in the area have been explored and mapped—or before funds become available to develop other cavern sites. At present the reserve covers slightly less than 80 acres. The state is hoping to acquire other caves in the vicinity from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Only one tour is offered weekdays, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday when three tours are offered, 10:30 a.m., 1:30 and 3 p.m., would be the best bet for a one-day visit.

The admission charge to Mitchell Caverns is 25 cents.

BELLFLOWER

For Taller, Spikier Tulips

By Joe Littlefield

TULIPS SHOW UP well in a group planting by themselves. For a delightful splash of varied colored flowers set out pansies at the same time you plant tulips. The pansies will bloom earlier, yet will continue flowering beautifully when the tulips burgeon forth in the spring with their glorious array of colors.

You may plant tulips in half shade and, yes, even in heavy moist clay soil if you cushion the bulb on top of a heaping handful of clean washed builder's sand. Add another heaping handful of sand covering the bulbs before you fill up the rest of the hole with the soil. You'll have taller spikes of spring tulip flowers.

Spring blooming annuals are a colors-come-alive show during that season of the year. But you cannot sit on your hands and wait till nearly spring, then suddenly bestir yourself to set out spring blooming annuals.

You must plant them out but very soon. Plant delphiniums, stocks, snapdragons, calendulas, Iceland poppies, pansies and violas in the sunny flower bed areas.

Cinerarias, fairy primroses and obconica primroses are annuals for shady garden sectors, the English primroses for same areas are perennials. These shade plants help brighten the areas where azaleas, fuchsias, gold dust plants and camellias grow.

Camellia blossoms may be cut one of two ways. Flowers on branches that need to be cut should be pruned at the time the blooms are cut. This means the gardener cuts the branch back to where he thinks it helps to shape that part of the plant. It is important the pruning cut be made either just above a leaf or above a bud (node) or just above a remainder side branch. The flower or flowers then are cut to desirable length from the large already pruned off branch.

The other way to cut flowers off camellias not needing pruning is to cut the blossom two leaves above the last current season growth. You can determine that area by noticing the color of the small branch. It is a brown color, whereas just below the older branch color is more gray than brown. Additionally, there is a slight circular swelling all around that area somewhat like the knuckle on a finger.

LAST MONTH I had the honor of being the featured speaker during the Hi-Desert Beautification, a seven communities meeting hosted by Yucca Valley Garden Club in Yucca Valley. Joe Sabol, the "fireball," dedicated, hard worker chairman in charge of this very civic-minded program, had me prepare a lecture on plants, trees and flowers for the High Desert. They have crisp, smog-free, clear, wonderful weather, with changes to heavy winds, considerable frost and heat during the summer.

After researching on plants that take variable weather conditions and frosts, I recommended the following robust growing shrubs that also do exceptionally well in milder areas as well as along the coast:

Abelia grandiflora was my first shrub recommendation because it blooms throughout the summer season. The white bell-shaped flowers appear a pinkish color in among the bronze color foliage. This hardy shrub, growing to around 5 feet, stands considerable dryness. Its small leaves withstand wind conditions, love the sun and take cold weather from 5 above zero to 5 below.

Raphiolepis, "Indian Hawthorne," leathery-leaved shrub available in two sizes, one a rather low grower, other to around 4 feet, provide masses of attractive pink color, coral bell-like blossoms in the spring into summer season, followed by black berries. It takes cold from 10 degrees above to 5 degrees below, grows in sun or part shade. Ours, a white variety, is about 50 years old and still growing well, thank you! This means, if the raphiolepis is planted properly, gets normal amount of care and pruning, will grow as long as you or your grandchildren and present a neat, happy appearance.

Prostrate Rosemary spread out 3 feet or more but eventually decides it likes to grow moundly to around 3 feet as well, is another rugged ground cover type of shrub. The blue flowers are attractive and bees favor them during the winter season perhaps because there is a lack of choice selection of blossoms available for them during that season of the year.

(If you, dear reader, like the shrubs mentioned and would like to know about more of them, just drop me a postal card care of this newspaper.)

sciously or unconsciously. Rather than a housewife facing a dirty kitchen, a husband going off to spend the day with a grouchy boss, or a teen-ager going off to school, they let their subconscious minds keep them anesthetized in bed.

ON THE other hand, many persons—the ones psychologists doubtless would term well adjusted — bounce out of their pads each morning at a set time without any artificial aids. These fortunate rouse themselves with their own built-in psychological alarm clocks. They set these brain alarms for the desired hour and invariably awaken on schedule, or at most a minute or two late.

Some musicians, incidentally, awaken promptly from deep sleep when an off-key chord drifts within their hearing range. Anton Rubinstein, the famed Russian composer and pianist, frequently overslept and missed morning appointments. When wake-up time rolled around, Rubinstein's wife often played an unresolved chord. Without fail, Rubinstein bolted from bed and dashed for the piano to resolve the chord. In the interim, Mme. Rubinstein made the bed, precluding any attempt of her husband to return to slumber.

Another wife bought a grandfather clock with an extremely loud tick. At wake-up time, she'd stop the clock. As sleep does not affect hearing the silence always awakened him. Another wife became tired of attempting to get her spouse up and ready for work. She finally sprinkled him with itching powder. It did the trick.

Some of the patented wake-up devices of the last half century or so reflect the vast amount of creative thought devoted to the problem of rousing sleepers. One timepiece tickled the sleeper's forehead with threads dangling from a horizontal pole, which lowered into position for the dastardly deed upon being triggered by the alarm. An equally tormenting timepiece came equipped with a long rod which ingeniously tossed the blankets from the bed at the wake-up hour.

FOR PURE devilishness, perhaps the clock triggering a hinged bed that collapsed on the floor at the appointed hour takes first prize. Maybe even more diabolical was the patented clock with a rubber hose attachment that fit snugly around the sleeper's neck. When the alarm sounded, it started a flow of cold water to douse the hapless victim into wakefulness.

Stay-in-bedders can also be jostled into wakefulness by the gyrations of a galloping mattress that violently vibrates the victim like a bucking bronco. Less forcible but equally effective is the mattress that thwoops the sleeper into a sitting position at awakening time.

A more gentle awakener patented more than half-a-century ago started to boil water at the get-up hour and poured it into a coffee brewer. When the coffee was ready, it siphoned into a cup resting in a pan at one end of a lever. The full coffee cup tipped down the lever, shutting off the flow of java and simultaneously switched on a bright light, clanged a gong, and swung the coffee under the sleeper's chin. Presumably the sleeper came to life and sipped the coffee to further arouse him.

One heavy sleeper dreamed up a Rube Goldberg chain-reaction device to force him to pile out of his pad. At a set time a clock triggered a phonograph, which in turn dropped a large hammer into a tin basin balanced on the sill of a partly-open window. The basin fell to the floor, allowing the window to come down with a bang and hit a board resting on the ledge; the board caused a drum to tip over, sounding a number of giant cymbals. When the drum went over, it tightened a rope which by a pulley arrangement snatched the blankets from the sleeper. The device worked splendidly — except it required most of the night to set it up.

THE ALARM clock's role in American life came forcibly to light during World War II. Clamping down on the production of water-uppers, the Government diverted critical materials used in their manufacture to more important purposes. Before long, though, war production began to fall off simply because workers couldn't stir their bones without alarm clocks. When the government hastily authorized the manufacture of alarm clocks with substitute materials, it solved the problem of lagging war production.

In the interim, during the ban on clock production, sleepers resorted to all types of outlandish methods to awaken. Manufacturers received thousands of letters begging for alarms to replace makeshift substitutes. Deeply stirred by a letter written by an Arizona woman, one company promptly shipped her one of the few alarm clocks still in inventory.

Her plea: "Right now we are using a rather irregular system to awaken us. My husband drinks three glasses of water at bedtime, and nature wakes him up sometime around six A.M. The only drawback is that we don't know how long his kidneys will hold out."

Most people could escape dawn's early blight by sleeping more. Anyone can test himself to see whether he's getting enough sleep. If he wakes up just before the alarm clock rings, he's slept his quota. But if he's dog-tired and droopy-eyed when the alarm goes off, he should go to bed earlier and escape dawn's early blight.

were arguing about whether it should be more sales tax, income tax, cigarette tax, liquor tax, or a state lottery, we'd lose the war against unjust and oppressive taxes on our homes."

School taxes are taking the big bite in the tax dollar. New York voters approved a statewide lottery with proceeds going toward schools, but the state legislature still must establish the lottery. New Hampshire established a revenue-raising state lottery two years ago and voters this month reaffirmed the lottery method. Pittsburgh has a "use tax" under which non-property-owning parents who have children enrolled in public schools must pay a tuition-type tax.

In Pikeville, Ky., four magistrates went to jail rather than approve a school budget which would have upped taxes 20 per cent. Last year Kentucky ordered all property assessed at 100 per cent of its fair cash value and then stipulated that taxes could not be raised more than 10 per cent in each of the next two years. The judges balked at the increase and were ordered jailed in contempt of court for refusing to sign the budget.

In Miami, Fla., the courts ordered that all real property be assessed at its "full just valuation" after hotels filed a suit claiming "unjust taxation and discrimination against commercial property owners," because of Florida's $5,000 homestead exemption law. The 100 per cent market value assessments wiped out the exemptions and for the first time 40,000 Florida homeowners were faced with property tax bills.

PROPERTY TAX reform is a national problem. The key lies in the assessor's office—a political plum tree that generally operates under antiquated and unfair laws and methods. Reforms—such as California's has started with its statewide equal assessment practice—must begin in the assessor's office.

At a conference in 1965 at Claremont College in Pomona, the nation's top specialists on taxation found "... the critical need in the United States is for reform in the method of selecting assessors, the rules and laws under which they operate and the qualifications for chiefs and their staffs."

The conference suggested that assessors should be appointed by a bi-partisan board and that they have high qualifications for the job of assessing land and property.

California, a state with a runaway tax rate, may be forced to set the example for the nation. The tax rebellion, as weak and disorganized as it is now, might hurry the reforms if it threatens the state's fiscal strength.

Conflict in North

But a second fort was built in 1715, on the south shore, and the French and Indian War stemmed from this bastion. It was the fort from which De Langlade and his war parties of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians ravaged the Ohio Valley and precipitated the war.

That brought new masters to the forts of the Straits. The French surrendered at Montreal; the British entered the Northwest Territories. The great uprising led by Pontiac dealt the British a blow that might have discouraged another breed; all outposts in the Western territories were wiped out. But the British were back at Mackinac in a year.

At the end of the Revolutionary War Mackinac became American, but the British outflanked and captured it in a surprise landing in the War of 1812. In that war Commodore Perry found the forts impregnable from the water; sieges and blockades failed. The Americans retook Mackinac in 1815 and in truth, turned the sword into, if not a plowshare, at least a quill pen. The post became the capital of the fur trade. Walter Havighurst again brings into play the historical depth and ability to thrill by "calm excitement" that marked such previous works of his on the American West — "George Rogers Clark: Soldier of the West"; "Annie Oakley of the Wild West"; "Wilderness for Sale," and "The Long Ships Passing," his superlative story of the Great Lakes cargo ships. JOSE (PEPPY) PIELAGO
Big Increase in Traffic

AT REGULAR intervals, state officials in Sacramento report increases in traffic crossing the beautiful, green Vincent Thomas Bridge which arches between Terminal Island and San Pedro. Last June, for example, traffic rose rather spectacularly to an average of 11,234 vehicles a day, compared to 9,876 a year ago.

That 26.4 per cent increase left toll authorities scratching their heads and asking: "Good gosh, why is the bridge so popular all of a sudden? Where's everybody going?"

Well, gentlemen. I can answer those questions for you. The bridge's popularity is related to the popularity of a certain restaurant in San Pedro. Word has been getting around that Peppy's, 584 W. Ninth St., has been increased in size to accommodate larger crowds. As a result people from Long Beach have been streaming across the bridge in ever increasing numbers.

Peppy's, open every day, is one of the finest, friendliest restaurants I've ever visited. It has a mystique—meaning there is something about the place which makes it irresistible to restaurant-goers. Its charm stems directly from its proprietor, Jose (Peppy) Pielago, a quiet, soft-spoken man who is short in physical stature but tall in the genius of knowing how to chat with strangers and cater to their dining whims and wishes. The restaurant—which can now accommodate 158 persons in its enlarged downstairs dining room and new upstairs Captain's Deck dining room—offers steaks, sea foods and poultry dishes prepared to a king's taste.

The luncheon specialty is a fabulous steak sandwich at $1.75. One of the dinner delights is a top ball tip sirloin steak, $2.95, served with hot au jus gravy, a unique specialty which accompanies all entrees. Among the others: halibut and swordfish, both $2.65, and delectable choice prime rib, $2.95—all with relish bowl, wonderful soup, gigantic salad, baked potato, garlic toast and beverage.

SUNDAY TREATS—And here's another place which always does a great job of taking care of friends and strangers alike—Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach. Strikingly attractive, it offers appetizingly fresh dinners in the moderate price range, such as roast duckling with bigarade sauce and roast beef, both $2.65 every Sunday, plus excellent chicken-fried steak, $2.40 and broiled halibut, $2.55. All are with imaginative complete dinners.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

No Cover-Up

for Burrud's

Travel Films

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

It was late 1961 and Michael Rockefeller, 23, son of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was the subject of an intense search in New Guinea.

Bill Burrud, whose travel-adventure films are syndicated in major cities throughout the United States, acquired some footage on New Guinea from the Dutch government.

It was an excellent film and showed the conditions with which the searchers and young Rockefeller, if he had made it to shore from his capsized boat, would have to contend.

There was one questionable element in the film. The New Guinea tribesmen were nude.

"These men are just as primitive as Stone Age man," said Burrud. "They don't wear clothes."

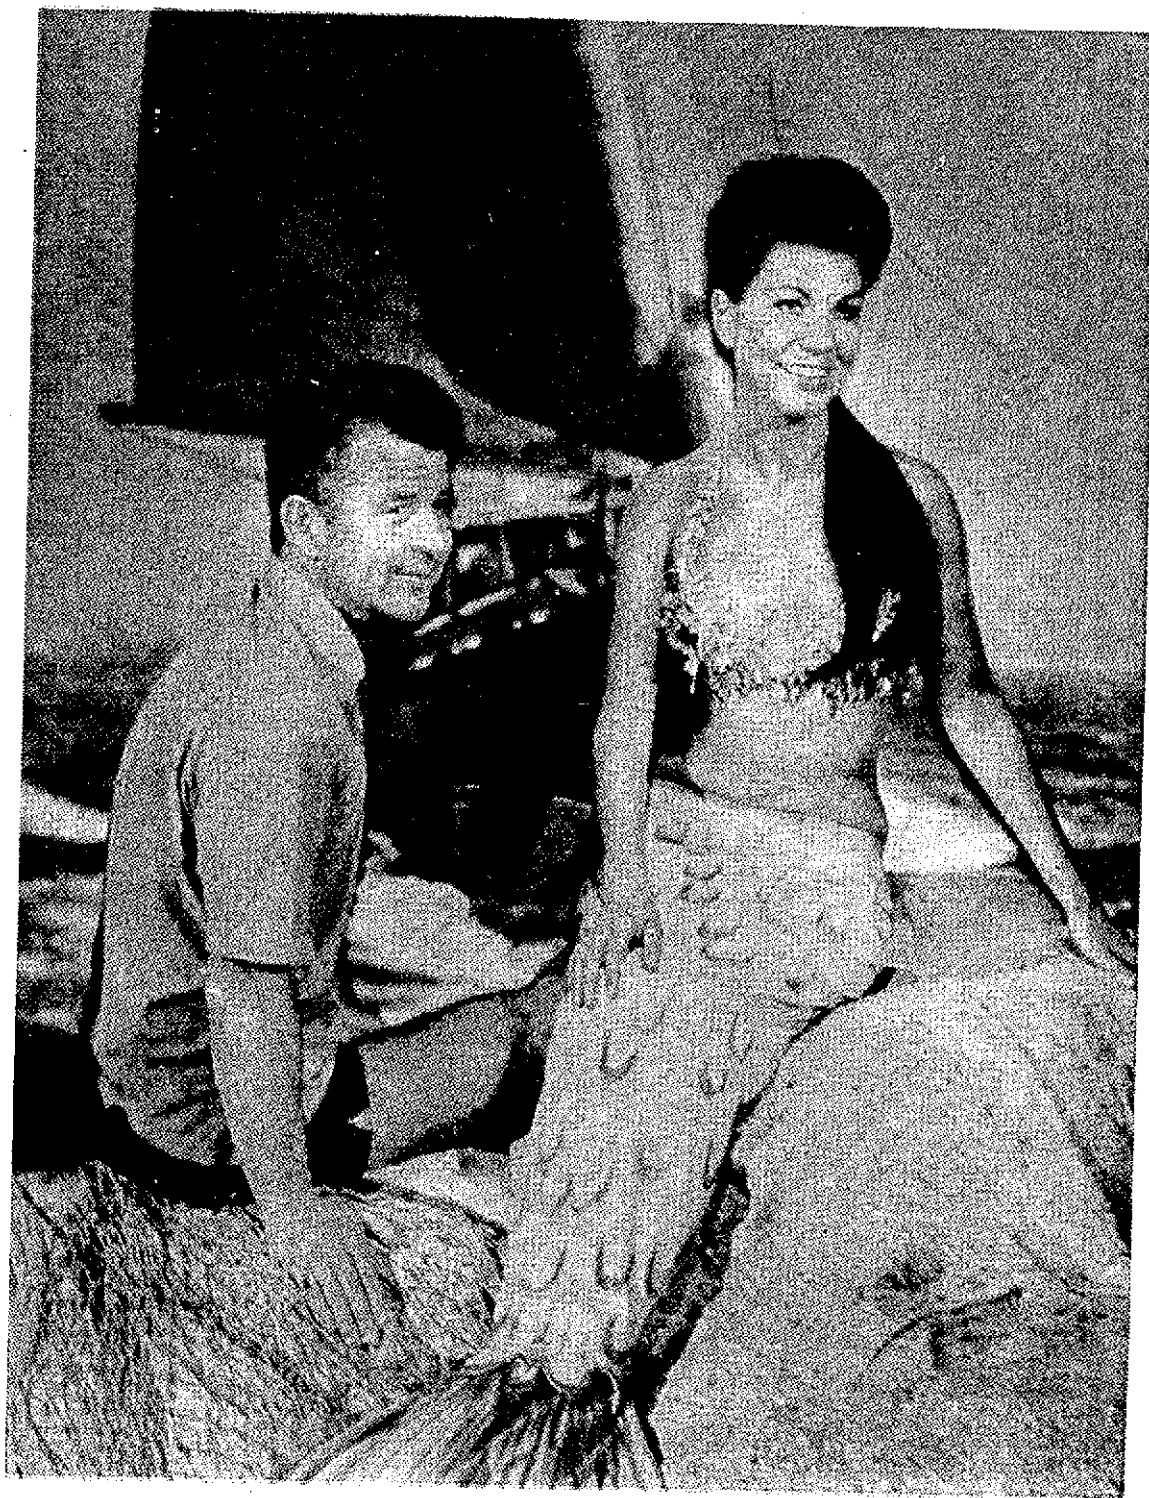

BECAUSE of the timeliness and excellence of the film, Burrud decided to go with it and so did the television stations who ran "True Adventure," the series upon which it appeared.

"Reaction was almost unanimously good," said Burrud. "Generally speaking, the viewer is a lot more enlightened than most of us give him or her credit for."

He wasn't overly surprised. For he had reasoned that the tribesmen were in their natural setting, the film was done in good taste and there obviously was no intent to exploit nakedness.

In a comparable category, semi-nakedness, Burrud had previous film experience. For he had run many films of native women with bare bosoms.

THE LOS ANGELES police commission might keep the belles of Les Ballets Africains from appearing topless at the Huntington Hartford Theater, but no one protested the Burrud films.

BILL BURRUD AND MERMAID MIRIAM BIRCH

The difference, once again, was that the Burrud footage had the beauties in their native settings.

"The 'Occult Dance of the Moon Goddess' might be fine in Yap," said Burrud, "but not films of it taken in a nightclub."

Most dissenting letters received by Burrud have nothing to do with nudity and he has never had any organized group file a protest.

But he does get a certain amount of "hate" mail and he can tell you in advance when he's going to receive it.

"If I do a show that has a cathedral in the background," he said, "I'm going to get mail from the anti-Catholics."

"If I have footage on

MARILYN MONROE

'Marilyn' Documentary
Wednesday

John Huston, the man who directed Marilyn Monroe in her first major movie as well as the last, introduces the documentary special on the late actress airing at 10 p.m. Wednesday on channel 7.

The hour program, an "ABC Stage 67" presentation, is entitled "The Legend of Marilyn Monroe."

Huston directed her in "The Asphalt Jungle" in 1949 and her last film, "The Misfits," in 1960.

In "The Asphalt Jungle," Huston recalled, Marilyn was "still one step from oblivion."

"THEN SHE played the kept girl and a spark jumped between her and the audience."

"I remember she impressed me more off screen than she did on. There was something very touching and appealing about her."

"And this, of course, is what people finally saw on the screen, what moved them."

The director recalled how Marilyn was cast as the "dumb blonde" in 16 movies. She felt she had become prisoner of an idiot sex symbol.

When he directed her in "The Misfits," Huston found that the star, while retaining a childlike quality, had nevertheless done herself a considerable amount of damage.

"She took so many sleeping pills to rest, that in the morning she had to take stimulants to wake her up—and this ravaged the girl."

PARADE OF MISS AMERICAS

First Jack Benny Special 'Beautiful'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jack Benny splayed his right hand out in a fan, waved it in the air, and flat out predicted his first television show of the year would be a hit.

The old tightwad hasn't been seen on the air with his own show for a year.

But Thursday (8:30 p.m., channel 4 in color), Jack will be back with an hour-long special on NBC-TV.

Usually Benny is conservative about his shows, as-

JACK BENNY

BENNY IS chipper and fit. And while he does seem somewhat older than his 39 years, the difference is slight.

After more than a decade of a weekly video series, Jack has occupied his year of television inactivity with personal appearances, occasional guests shots on television, and a four-week stand at Las Vegas' new glamor parlor, Caesar's Palace.

He also took an eight-week tour of the East and Mid-West playing theaters in the round.

"The trip was tiring and I hated it," he sighed. "I won't try that again. But I noticed business was a lot better this year than when I was on the tube every week."

"People were more anxious to come out and see me because that was the only opportunity they had."

"DOING A special like this isn't any easier than the weekly show, but it's much more important. It really becomes a special event for me and the people who tune in."

There may be more specials in the offing—and then again there may not.

"It all depends on whether this show is a hit. If it is then I may do another," he said.

"I only book one thing at a time. If the audience and the network like it, and if I like it, I may do another one. If not, the neck with it."

"When I'm through at Las Vegas, I'm taking a five-week vacation in Palm Springs. Then I have a date in Phoenix next January."

Benny at 72 is not thinking about retiring. Like many another of the truly great stars he continues to work because he enjoys it.

Besides, how else can a guy his age surround himself with Miss Americas without becoming another Bert Parks?

Introducing DICK WILSON

Dick has lived in the Southland area for 30 years and he operated his own business for ten years. Dick is the calibre of man that builds professionalism into automobile selling. He knows his product and understands the buyer's specific requirements.

According to Motor Registration News, Ford outsells EVERY make of automobile in the Long Beach metropolitan area. With a "winning" product like FORD and a "winning" sales representative like Dick Wilson, why not join the winners and buy your new Ford at suming a wait-and-see attitude. But this time he is brimming with confidence.

"I know this one is a great hour," he said. "I've seen it in black and white—and it is in color, you know—and I never came out this sure of a program before."

"It leads up to a parade of Miss Americas. The format is a revue, and I'm surrounded by beautiful girls."

Top Performance

Linda Kaye, Lori Saunders, Meredith MacRae and Mike Minor, all cast regulars on "Petticoat Junction," Tuesday-night comedy series on CBS-TV, have formed a night-club musical act that is destined to reach the heights immediately. It will be introduced at the Top of the World, a cabaret atop 10,831-foot Mt. San Jacinto near Palm Springs, Calif.

- PEARL HARBOR — What the U.S. has done in the quarter century since the infamous Japanese attack on Dec. 7, 1941, to prevent a recurrence of the disaster will be documented during an hour-long special at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Noting that Japan and Germany now are our friends, while our then-allies Russia and China are in enemy camps, the hour also reviews the shift in alliances, with Frank McGee in Hawaii and Brockton, Mass., Elie Abel from London, Edwin Newman from France, John Rich in Tokyo and Howard Tuckner in Viet Nam.

THE FBI — Efrem Zimbalist Jr., guest Joseph Campanella and 40 extras wore special plastic identification bracelets, equipment was inventoried twice (in and out) and six off-duty guards kept the company isolated during an 8-hour filming session Aug. 29 in the recreation yard of the Federal Correctional Institution at Terminal Island. Results screen at 8 p.m., ch. 7, in color, as Erskine poses as a hardcase convict to share a cell with the suspected mastermind of an impending prison break, but the latter orders his fellow conspirators to kill the new arrival, who's cornered in a shower room. Also guesting are James Broderick, Carol Rossen, William Reynolds, Martin Brooks and Patricia Donahue.

S.O.S. RHINO — The 3-ton rhinoceros, ugly beast that he is, is in danger of extinction—from starvation and poachers. The work of emergency rescue teams to save the mammoth beasts from wholesale slaughter is studied at 10:30 p.m., ch. 5, as men use trucks and lassoes to round up the huge animals for transfer to safe grounds in Africa.

PAMELA RODGERS

Bikini Wardrobe for Pamela

Bikinis have been good to Pamela Rodgers, one of the stars of NBC-TV's (channel 4's) Sunday "Hey Landlord" series.

And Pamela, a former Miss Texas, has been good for bikinis.

"I have a whole wardrobe of bikinis—25 of them," she said. "I think they are the most flattering thing a woman can wear."

While wearing one of the 25 on a beach in Hawaii, a talent scout from Columbia Studios took in the scenery and suggested that she should go to Hollywood.

She followed his advice and subsequently landed roles in such movies as "The Silencers," "Three on a Couch," "Dr. Goldfoot and the Bikini Machine," "Out of Sight," "The Oscar" and "Doomsday Flight."

ON TELEVISION, prior to being signed for her present series she had guest roles on "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," "The Donna Reed Show" and the Les Crane late-nighter.

She plays a weather-girl in the "Hey Landlord" series, but Pamela doesn't really know much about forecasting.

If she did, she would have evaded two hurricanes she was caught in while still living in Texas a few years back.

There is, however, one thing she does know about weather.

"It's just right in Southern California."

Especially for bikinis.

MONARCH BUILDERS

419 E. SIXTH ST.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.

Pan and Fan Mail

Several years ago there was a spy series on the air, possibly called "I Was a Communist Spy."

Who played the part of Philbrick, and the name of the man who played the part of Dressler of the FBI. He is currently playing on a favorite, "Time Tunnel."

Dorothy M. Roth, Long Beach

The series was "I Led Three Lives" and Richard Carlson had the lead. The man who played Dressler is John Zaremba and he currently has the role of Prof. Swain in "Time Tunnel."

Is the actress who portrays the wife of a man mowing grass on the Nes-Tea commercial Lenore Kingston, who plays Mrs. Jan Weeks, Eddie's Mom on "General Hospital," channel 7.

Mrs. E. F. Glaze and Group, Garden Grove.

Yes, Glaze Group. Incidentally, she was delighted that you noticed. She also said to tell you she received added pleasure when the commercials used to air just before "General Hospital."

Robert Fuller, who played Capt. Stone on Nov. 16, used to be a star in another program, a western, a year or two ago. Could you please name this program?

Andalene Fredericks, Lakewood

He spent four seasons as a star of "Laramie" and another one in "Wagon Train."

Is Jack Oakie still alive? E. F. Johnson, Long Beach

Very much so. How do they fix those pointed ears on "Mr. Spock" of Star Trek? Are his natural eyebrows shaved off or simply coated with heavy makeup? Lastly, what planet is he supposed to be native to?

Mrs. C. Shallcross, Long Beach

Pointing the ears of-

Leonard Nimoy, who has the Mr. Spock role, is a putty tough job and requires 1½ hours in makeup artistry. His eyebrows are partially shaven, mostly made up. He is supposed to be a native to the planet Vulcan and when the makeup man finishes with him, he sure feels vulcanized.

Our family has long wondered who is the voice of the Continental Air Lines commercial on TV. Is it Ben Gazzara?

Mrs. R. C. Bornaise, Lakewood

Nope, it's Barry Sullivan.

Could you please tell me who it is that sings that song about the Sego girl advertising Sega?

Mint E. Miller, Long Beach. It is Jerry Wright.

Could you please tell me if the people on "Divorce Court" are professional actors or the actual people during an actual case at time of the divorce?

Jeneva Gillard, Long Beach.

They are actors and the cases, although taken from actual proceedings, are dramatized.

SPECIAL

LOVE SEEKERS — How single adults in the Southland go about meeting potential partners, for companionship or marriage, is examined by Ruth Ashton during a color special at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Automated computer match making is probed, as are escort bureaus and social clubs — as well as the plush apartments that cater to "singles" only, with sauna baths, tennis courts and weekend parties.

THE GEMINI-8 — Exciting moments, with both successes and failures, were part of last spring's space flight of astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott. Official NASA films, including docking maneuvers and the recollections of the two men, make up a color hour at 10 p.m., ch. 13.

NEW FACE in the Senate — A conversation with Senator-elect Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, Republican victor in one of the most significant of the recent political races and the only Negro senator of the new Congress, airs at 10:30 p.m., ch. 2, in color, with Eric Sevareid as reporter.

Burrud's Travel Films Adventurous

Israel, I'm going to get hate mail from anti-Semites."

He regards this type of mail with the degree of importance it's worth—zero.

For in 14 years of producing travel-adventure series, Burrud now is happily aware that he's king of the hill in his realm.

It is, by his interpretation, not merely a travelogue realm, but a show-business world.

"I live by the same ratings numbers that Red Skelton does," he said.

And the ratings numbers have been good for the Bill Burrud Productions series, "Vagabond," "Wanderlust," "Holiday," "Treasure," "True Adventure," "Islands in the Sun," "American West," "This Exciting World" and his latest, "The Wonderful World of Women."

THE RATINGS numbers have been good even when the programs are spotted in varying timeslots.

For example, a Sacramento to independent television station last season decided to air Burrud film between 5:30 and 6 p.m., normally considered part of the children's hour.

The ratings were go good, the station this season has expanded the Burrud programming another half hour from 5 to 6 p.m.

In Houston, Tex., a television station put a half-hour Burrud program in competition with Johnny Carson and the late movie. It did so well that the station expanded to an hour this season.

In Southern California, KCOP (channel 13) fared so well with the Burrud Productions, it slated them against the network's primetime competition between 8:30 and 9:30 p.m.

BURRUD, a former child actor, served as a Navy officer during World War II. After the war, he lived for four years in Sunset Beach where his mother, Mrs. June Burrud, still resides. Prior to starting his travel-adventure films, he worked as a radio disc jockey in Santa Ana.

He is emphatic that his films are "show-business." "If they weren't, nobody would look at them," he said.

He has other elements going for him. His shows are the only true-adventure ones produced for first-run syndication on the independent television stations. Although they are based on the truth, they still provide an escape for the viewer.

"If I go to Tahiti," he said, "the woman viewer says, 'I wish I was with him.'"

"And the man says, 'I wish I was him.'"

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program: "Noon Wine," an "ABC Stage 67" presentation aired Wednesday night on channel 7.

Jason Robards Jr. may well receive an Emmy nomination for this one as could Sweden's Per Oscarsson, a winner of a "best actor" award in his homeland and a newcomer to American TV.

Robards played a talkative, lazy farmer who, despite his aversion to work, nevertheless is a likeable, humorous human being with a strong love for his former school-teacher wife, Olivia de Havilland.

When Robards kills a bounty hunter, he is transformed into a conscience-stricken, guilt-crazed fanatic who, although he has been acquitted by a jury, feels he must personally vindicate himself with each of his neighbors.

It was in the transformation, from a lovable fraud to the tormented slayer, that Robards excelled.

Oscarsson, as a close-mouthed hired hand with an obsession for harmonicas, played the role with just the proper tautness and it was a part that could have been lost in overacting.

Theodore Bikel, the bounty hunter, projected instant hate, the objective of his role.

If there was a flaw in the hour, it was in a scene where the hired hand is hunted down by the sheriff and his deputies, then killed rather than overpowered.

All in all, though, an excellent production. "ABC Stage 67," despite poor ratings, has fulfilled its promise of bringing something new to television this year.

The cancellation axe should not be swung too quickly. For the public, never to be underestimated, will catch up with this programming if given a little time.

Program: "High Button Shoes," a presentation of "The Garry Moore Show" aired last Sunday on channel 2.
Hacked to ribbons to fit into the relatively brief television slot, and demolished further by time-consuming and mood-destroying commercials, the fragile old-fashioned piece found the going rough on video despite some catchy popular tunes.

NBC NEGOTIATING 'Annie Get Your Gun' for TV?

By VAL ADAMS
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Negotiations have been reopened for a 90-minute television production of "Annie Get Your Gun," starring Ethel Merman. The Irving Berlin musical probably will be televised early next year by the National Broadcasting Co.

Miss Merman said that she had been informed the show would be taped the latter part of next month and go on the air in March.

Henry A. Guettel, general manager of the music theater of Lincoln Center, which revived the musical last May, confirmed that television negotiations had been reopened and that a deal was "likely." A contract, he added, was yet to be signed.

HOW SCIENCE HAS WON THE FIGHT AGAINST BALDNESS

LONG BEACH IS HEADQUARTERS FOR WORLD-FAMOUS HAIR SPECIALISTS by "Al" Johnson

1. FREE EXAMINATION by a Turoff trained specialist establishes your individual causes of hair loss.

2. HI-FREQUENCY THERAPY provides short rays to kill bacteria, increases scalp metabolism.

3. EXCLUSIVE ELECTRIC THERAPY developed by Turoff technicians after years of research, results are FAST!

4. EXCLUSIVE MEDICATION. Turoff formulas, laboratory produced, another step on the road to a strong, healthy hairline.

5. PROFESSIONAL MASSAGE. A skilled and trained assistant rejuvenates, tones and loosens scalp so tissues can grow.

What causes baldness? Is it inherited? What can be done to stop baldness and regrow hair? My assignment was to find the answer to questions like these because so many people want to know the real truth about baldness. I began by calling on Mr. Munson, Staff Director "Long Beach office" of the Turoff Scalp Specialists. I was told he would be glad to talk to me, but suggested that first I should interview Mr. S. I. Turoff himself at the San Francisco office, one of the men who has contributed so much to man's fight against baldness.

I found Mr. Turoff friendly and interested. "I'm happy to hear you're doing an article," he said, "because so few people know what causes baldness—nor do they realize that baldness is not inherited and that the majority of cases of baldness can be stopped and new hair regrown." I was surprised to hear that, so I asked Mr. Turoff to explain what causes baldness and what can be done about it.

WHAT IS HAIR?

He began by telling me a lot about hair. For instance a moderate amount of falling hair is normal. Each hair has a regular life span, then it falls out and is replaced by another—if the hair-growing mechanism is in good working order. If it isn't, you gradually become bald. Mr. Turoff compared each hair to an iceberg because there's a good deal of it that you can't see. And he said the part you can't see, the part in the scalp, is the most important part as far as keeping a healthy head of hair is concerned. For in the scalp there is a papilla adjoining each hair root which furnishes the nourishment for healthy hair growth. If this papilla becomes inactive the hair stops growing, the hair shaft falls out without a replacement coming in and you become bald.

CAUSE OF BALDNESS

Obviously the direct cause of baldness is inactive papilla. But what makes the papilla inactive? Externally any bacterial infection or fungi; such as the one responsible for dandruff will do it. Internally, there are many causes, such as vitamin or mineral deficiency, which cut off or seriously reduce the food supply to the papilla so that it cannot keep the hair root alive.

WHAT SCIENCE HAS DONE

The first important modern scientific discovery about hair was made by Dr. Franz Nagelschmitt of Berlin and Dr. Arnold Lorand of Vienna. These scientists discovered that baldness is often caused by lack of certain vitamins, minerals and hormones in the blood, and that microbes working on the hair roots often cause excessive falling hair. Using high frequency rays they devised a method about 95% successful in growing hair. Meanwhile, Mr. Turoff, working independently in this country, made significant discoveries of his own. Combining his efforts and those of the European discoverers, he perfected a method nearly 100% effective. The Exclusive Turoff Method. Since that time new discoveries have made it possible for Mr. Turoff to further improve and perfect his method. Mr. Turoff was very modest about his contributions to fight against baldness, but when I returned to interview Mr. Munson he more than verified everything Mr. Turoff said. I asked Mr. Munson if he would show me just what each Turoff Method treatment included.

WHAT ARE TREATMENTS LIKE?

You can see the actual steps followed in each treatment at the top of this page, but I would like to add some of the impressions I had when I went to the office—Long Beach, 110 Pine Ave., Suite 824. Hours: Daily 11 to 8, Saturday 10 to 2, Thursday 4 to 8. First of all I noticed the attitude of Mr. Munson and his trained assistants. They understood perfectly what they were doing, why they were doing it, and they were confident of the results they could get. Then there was the excellent equipment—obviously modern, scientific instruments designed for the job. There was also the care Mr. Munson took in studying my hair so that he could apply the correct, exclusive Turoff formula. And lastly, I was impressed by the cleanliness and orderliness of everything about the office.

After my treatment I noticed immediately that my hair and scalp had a pleasant alive, refreshed feeling that I had not felt before. I thanked Mr. Munson and, as I left the office in Long Beach, I remembered what Mr. Turoff had said about the effectiveness of his method. The success of his offices in many major cities, with more being planned, has certainly proved the value of his exclusive techniques.

If you are totally bald, there is nothing Turoff can do for you. Turoff and no other treatment known is of benefit to excessive hair loss due to male pattern baldness.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Who said of conductor Leonard Bernstein: "He uses music as an accompaniment to his conducting?" — Jan Hirsch, Darien, Conn.
A. Pianist and wit Oscar Levant.

Q. What is the true story of President Kennedy's assassination? Is it true that one of the death bullets went through the front of Kennedy's neck? — Mrs. Russell Brown, Lubbock, Tex.

A. All three bullets fired by Lee Harvey Oswald were fired from behind and above the President. The autopsy X-rays show that conclusively. There is no evidence that there was more than one assassin. Handprints taken from the stock of the rifle found in the Texas School Depository show that Oswald fired the rifle. No knowledgeable doctors at any time said Kennedy had been shot through the front of the neck. The book Rush to Judgment, by Mark Lane, which contends otherwise, is in error. The author represents the mother of Lee Harvey Oswald. Members of the Warren Commission differed strongly, at times almost violently, on how the report should be prepared, written and released. But never at any time did the commission suppress any evidence. The conclusions of the Warren Commission report, based on the evidence, are valid and will stand the test of history.

Q. Who is the model fooling around with David McCallum? — Georgina Fowler, Memphis, Tenn.

A. Cathy Carpenter, a dropout from Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y.

Q. I would like to know why President Johnson is keeping his new press secretary, George Christian, such a mystery. Is Christian a member of the Texas Mafia, too? — G. R. R., Bethesda, Md.

A. George Christian, born Austin, Tex., 1927, educated at the University of Texas, majored in journalism, is a former press secretary for two Texas governors, Price Daniel and John Connally. He is married to the former Jo Anne Martin. She is an attorney. They have five children. George Christian is listed as a presidential assistant. When and if Bill Moyers is moved upstairs or to some other spot in the Johnson administration, Mr. Christian undoubtedly will become the new press secretary.

Q. The stars of Bonanza: Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker, Michael Landon—how much do they earn each year? — Chuck Levitt, Miami, Fla.

A. Approximately $1 million.

Q. Is it really true that Cass Elliot, a singer in the Mamas and the Papas, is really dead? — Marcia McCabe, Wallingford, Pa.

A. No, she is alive.

Q. I hear that while Bing Crosby was in Europe he had his face lifted and his ears operated on so that they now stick back. Will you run the latest picture of him and tell if that's true. — Bernice Dansch, Wilmington, N.C.

A. Not true.

Q. How come there is no marker, stone, plate, shrine or urn with the remains of Albert Einstein, one of the world's greatest scientists? — Dee Evans, Princeton, N.J.

A. Dr. Einstein requested that he be remembered only by his work.

Q. Marshal Ky of South Vietnam—was his first wife French or Vietnamese? Did he ever say what South Vietnam needed was "someone like Hitler" to solve its problems? — Harold Willems, Holland, Mich.

A. Ky's first wife was French. When his first marriage broke up (divorce was forbidden by Madame Nhu's morality laws), Ky sowed his wild oats until divorce became possible. He then married his second wife, former Air Vietnam stewardess Dang Tuyet Mai. Ky admits the quotation about Hitler but explains, "I was only endorsing Hitler's leadership and sense of discipline, not his inhuman methods."

One of 700 high-salaried U.S. construction workers building $50 million Vietnam airbase.

$20,000 A YEAR... FOR OBEYING 13 COMMANDMENTS

*H*ow would you like to earn about $20,000 a year, plus a bonus of $1000 for behaving yourself?

That's what the Walter Kidde Construction Company, charged with Project Turnkey, building a $50 million airbase 225 miles north of Saigon, is offering 700 American construction workers. But only if the worker promises to demonstrate good conduct in "difficult and dangerous work in a sensitive area of the world, with delicate social and economic conditions."

The worker is told that he will be given only 5 percent of his pay in Vietnam—just enough for cigarettes, shaving cream, soap, etc. The remaining 95 percent is to be banked in the U.S. as a nest egg. In addition, he will be flown out of Vietnam to Taiwan for rest and relaxation periods.

WHAT'S THE GIMMICK?

It is no deal, however, unless the worker agrees to obey the 13 commandments the Kidde company has incorporated in a code of conduct.

EMPLOYEES OF PROJECT TURNKEY MUST NOT:

- (1) Participate in the religious or political affairs of Vietnam or discuss them with Vietnamese citizens.
- (2) Threaten or use physical violence against any Vietnamese or third-country nationals except in bona fide self-defense.
- (3) Exchange scrip, money orders or other forms of money or dollar instruments.
- (4) Fail upon arrival in Vietnam to declare the amount of U.S. and foreign currency and dollar instruments held, nor fail to deposit all U.S. currency and dollar instruments in the project manager's office upon arrival at the job site.

- (5) Sell merchandise, personal property or commissary goods.

- (6) Engage in any unauthorized or illegal business activity.

- (7) Carry or have weapons.

- (8) Leave the job site without specific approval.

- (9) Attempt to bring dependents into Vietnam.

- (10) Obtain or use water or food from any source other than job site facilities.

- (11) Use narcotics, or take alcohol excessively.

- (12) Import into Vietnam narcotics, marijuana, explosives, ammunition or fireworks, privately owned firearms, Vietnamese currency in excess of 500 piastres, gold or silver bullion, obscene or pornographic literature, printed matter advocating treason or insurrection against the U.S. or any country with which the U.S. has entered into mutual defense or assistance programs.
- (13) Engage in any activity which will degrade the image of the U.S. or which could have an undue inflationary effect upon the economy of Vietnam.

The Air Force expects the Kidde company to finish the Tuy Hoa Airport in about a year. The company expects its $20,000-a-year men to work seven days a week for five consecutive weeks, then fly to Taipei for a week of whoopee or rest.

When and if the U.S. armed forces leave Vietnam, that little Asian country will be equipped with the best, most modern air and seaports the money, mind and brawn of America is able to provide.

*Two Teenage Boys... One Will Be Drafted, the Other Not. Why?
One Is Canadian, the Other American*

Canadian Ron Smith, ardent hockey player, dons pads for game with Quebec town team.

Two boys, two countries—border post separates Ron Smith in Canada (left) from U.S. pal Doug Buck. The public library (in back), too, is split by line.

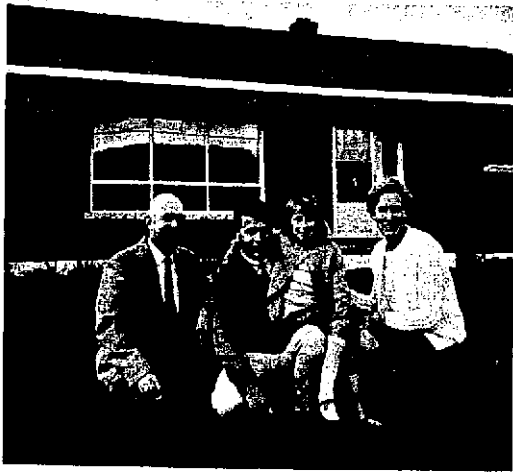

HOW THE BORDER CUTS THROUGH THEIR LIVES

by JOHN G. ROGERS • Photos by Ben Ross

American Doug Buck, captain of basketball team, grins and spins ball on fingertip.

Ron, his parents and sister Bonnie, in yard of Smith home in border town of Rock Island, Quebec. Two sisters are married.

Ron's freedom from military draft seems symbolized by airy rides over hills and into the valleys near home on Notre Dame Boulevard.

Douglas Buck and Ronald Smith, both nearly 18 years old, are high school friends who live in the same community, read the same newspapers, gyrate at the same dances and have near-identical tastes in everything from chocolate milkshakes to James Bond movies.

At first glance you'd call them two of a kind.

That would be wrong. History has drawn a sharp line between Doug and Ron—one that may send their destinies far afield.

The line is the U.S.-Canadian border. Doug Buck, a lanky American, lives in Derby Line, Vt., a couple of hard baseball throws south of the border. Ron Smith, a stocky Canadian, lives in Rock Island, Quebec, a couple of hard hockey shots to the north.

Their hometowns in the rolling hills east of the Green Mountains flow into each other at the border. They're little places, less than 3000 population combined, and you can't tell where one stops and the other starts except for that manmade line and the American and Canadian customs booths on either side. The boys have crossed the line hundreds of times, scarcely aware of it, and neither thinks of the other side as "foreign."

In history and fiction, international borders cause wars, split kingdoms, thwart lovers and trap smugglers. How does such a dividing line affect the lives of two very similar teenagers in the 20th century on the peaceful continent of North America?

THAT DRAFT!

In search of the answer, PARADE spent a few days with Doug Buck and Ron Smith—a pair of blue-eyed 6-footers—in their lovely countryside of firs and maples, ski slopes and dairy farms.

The most dramatic difference imposed by the border is the military draft. Canada has none, and in that respect Ron's mind is free and easy. He can make plans. Not so simple for American Doug. When he turns 18 in a few weeks, part of his birthday party will be a seven-mile drive in the family car down to Newport, the Orleans County seat. There he'll go to the third floor of the old red-brick Customs House on Main Street and sign up with Selective Service Board No. 10—a procedure that eventually could place him, rifle in hand, on some Vietnam battlefield he's never heard of.

"If it happens, I hope it'll be after college," says Doug, an honor student who wants to be an electrical engineer. "That is, if I go to college. I have to admit that the possibility of being taken for the Army is always on my mind."

Rosy-checked Ron, whose ambition is to be an Ontario provincial trooper, is well aware that he faces no foreseeable Army service: "Naturally I'm glad we don't have the draft. It can't be a very pleasant thing to worry about, when you're trying to figure out your future."

And what about the need for the draft? How does it look from each side of the border?

Says American Doug: "Sure we need it for Vietnam, and I think it was right for us to go in there and take a stand for the protection of democracy. But I think we may have gone too far. I'm not so sure we've let the people over there choose exactly what they want next."

Is Canadian Ron concerned over Vietnam?

"No," he says. "It's not a Canadian problem. If the Americans want to go in there and stop communism, it's their problem. Canada doesn't have that kind of power."

Well, couldn't Canada help with a few troops, as, for example, have Australia and New Zealand?

"It's not our government's policy," replies Ron.

By "our government," Ron means independent Canada. Only vaguely does he link Canada to the British Commonwealth. He's heard his parents speak of ceremonial singing of "God Save the King" when they were younger, but on similar occasions today, he would sing "O Canada!" an unofficial national anthem.

Doug and Ron see the same movies and read many of the same magazines. Ron, speaking from north of the border, resents that just about all of them could be labeled "Made in America."

"Why does the United States have to be so dominant?" he asks. "I think the Americans should keep more of what they call their 'culture' to themselves."

THE U.S. SHOULDN'T CROWD US

"I suppose both sides are partly to blame. The United States shouldn't crowd its stuff on us so hard, and we shouldn't accept it so easily. I know that American money invested in Canada makes more jobs for Canadians, but in the end it also means that more profits made in Canada are going back to the Americans. I just wish we had more money so the Americans couldn't always be telling us what to do."

"And we ought to talk back harder, too. What about that time when some Canadians wanted to send medical supplies to North Vietnam, and the Americans objected? Don't they understand they should keep quiet, and let us run our own country?"

American Doug shrugs off Ron's complaints rather airily: "Yes, I know this kind of problem exists, but it doesn't directly concern me. Ron, maybe you're just jealous."

Both Doug and Ron are so occupied with studies and sports that during the week they're pretty much on the straight and narrow between their homes and public high schools.

American Doug rises early, has a fast breakfast, dashes past the living room picture window that looks westward to Doug, his parents and two brothers, in front of family home in Derby Line, Vt. Like Ron, Doug has two married sisters.

Laughter-loving Doug is serious as military posters remind him that soon he'll sign up with draft board for possible Army service.

"French-Canadian girls are more fun on a date" the mountains and catches an 8 a.m. yellow schoolbus for the four-mile ride to modern Derby Academy. There he's absorbed in a streamlined course of physics, advanced math, English and problems in American democracy. He lugs as many as a dozen textbooks and pores over homework four hours a day.

Schoolwork would seem to dominate Doug's life, but he crams in a lot more. He was soccer-team co-captain and played regularly until injuring his ankle. "One of my own men stepped on me," Doug explains. "That's getting hurt the hard way."

Doug also is basketball captain, a sprinter on the track team and, as an extrovert who loves laughter, is currently playing "Mountjoy" in The Mouse That Roared, the senior class play.

"Doug really likes to ham it up," confides one of his friends.

Canadian Ron's routine is much like that of Doug's, except that he uses his dad's Italian-made motorbike to zip back and forth between Sunnyside School and the Smith's three-bedroom brick home on Notre Dame Boulevard. His school load is far more diversified than Doug's, taking in French, algebra, English literature, geometry, physics, chemistry, geography and history.

Ron's school is conducted in English, and he has little association with the local French-Canadian community, whose children attend French-language public schools. It irritates Ron a bit that in school he is taught pure Parisian French, whereas the French Canadians speak a patois that defeats him.

"I can't talk French to them," he confesses. "Luckily they all speak English."

One association Ron does have with the French is social. "French girls," he says, "are more fun on a date than English-Canadian or American girls. They're livelier."

Typically Canadian, Ron plays basketball, but the big love of his life is hockey. He's on two town teams, coaches a little boys' team and referees. He even seems to cherish the bruises he brings home as badges of honor.

"I think I could skate as soon as I could walk," says Ron. "Just give me hockey, and you can have all the rest. I see the American kids watching the World Series on television, and I can't see why they're so excited."

"And then they see me watching the Stanley Cup playoffs in professional hockey, and they can't understand why I'm so excited."

Ron's father is with the Canadian Customs, and Doug's is a machinist. Each has a vivacious mother and two older married sisters. Ron has a younger sister; Doug has two younger brothers.

Amidst the sameness, the differences keep appearing.

Canadian Ron's dancing is strictly modern—each "partner" puts on an individual exhibition—while Doug's is a throwback: "I sort of like that old-fashioned dancing—you know, when you put one arm around the girl."

"I call it MON-tree-all, but you say MUN-tree-all," Doug tells Ron.

"That's all right," Ron counters. "Half of your people can't even pronounce Canada. They say KAY-na-da and sort of drag it out."

"Oh, that's just that New England accent at work," Doug explains.

SHARPER DRESSERS

It's generally agreed that Canadian kids are sharper dressers, Americans far more casual, and Ron and Doug seem to reflect this. In speech, though, the Canadians are more conservative, use little slang.

"You Canadian guys talk more like our adults do," says Doug to Ron.

"How can the border cause a thing like that?" Ron asks.

"There has to be some explanation," Doug replies.

Another difference—American Doug goes steady while Canadian Ron enthusiastically plays the field. Both agree this generally reflects dating patterns in the two countries.

Neither boy is currently interested in drinking, but for the record, Ron can do it legally in Quebec when he reaches 20, while Doug must be 21 in Vermont. Ron could drive alone at 16, Doug at 17.

Ron couldn't go to the movies in Quebec—even with his parents—until he was 16. The law stems from a disastrous theater fire in which many children died. But Ron will be able to vote in Quebec provincial elections at 18—three years before Doug has any franchise.

For an after-school rendezvous on days free of athletic drill, Doug and Ron and their girl friends cross the border either way with just a cheery wave to customs and immigration officials—old friends.

You might find them over soft drinks at Happy's, on Ron's side of the border, perhaps doing a Canadian caper to the jukebox. On the American side it might be Joe's place. From there, they often climb the hill, cross the bridge over the tumbling Tomifobia River and visit the Haskell Free Library, a venerable institution straddling the border. There, they sometimes research term papers and watch the world's busiest border crosser.

She is Mrs. Howard Wilding, head librarian. The border runs right through her main desk, and she estimates that in her ten years' service she's hopped over it at least 1000 times a week.

From the library the other day, I sauntered under the maples with the young Canadian-American foursome just as afternoon was waning. Off to the west a magnificent sunset was on display, back of Jav Peak, the highest one in northern Vermont.

The spectacle attracted the attention of all, and suddenly Canadian Ron saw a chance to put a wry, humorous cap on one of his earlier arguments.

"Look at that," he said. "Even the sunset is American."

Ron, Doug and their girl friends take over the soft-drink counter after school at Happy's place, on the Canadian side of the border. Neither couple thinks of the other as "foreign."

IS CHRISTMAS WORTH SAVING?

Christmas. Time of family and friends, of gifts exchanged in love, of laughter and rejoicing.

Worth saving? Yes, if only because the glitter and warmth of that facet of Christmas can offer temporary release from tensions of today's world—of Vietnam, worldly and personal strife, anxieties, problems.

But the true celebration of Christmas promises more than fleeting relief, by giving you the greatest Gift of all.

"Be not afraid . . . A Saviour is born . . . to all people." This promise of Bethlehem, made to all men, in all times, gives purpose and courage to our daily lives. For Christ lives today, reborn in our hearts.

He is the greatest Gift of all . . . the Gift of God to all men. His birthday is worth saving, worth celebrating in joy.

This year, make your Christmas more meaningful. This booklet, "The Two Faces of Christmas," can help you celebrate it from a more satisfying perspective. Share it with your family. Send for it; it's free.

Parade contest winner, a tenor, gets rave review for apple pie.

Norman Kelley, today's winner in PARADE's recipe contest for men, is a Maine Yankee by birth, an operatic tenor by profession and a cook by avocation. His delicious recipe for apple pie is based on one his grandmother made on cold winter nights "down East."

Kelley has made and served this delight dozens of times, both as a civilian and while in the armed forces as club officer at Camp Miles Standish, Taunton, Mass., during World War II. It's easy to make, attractive to look at and lower in calories than a traditional double-crust pie.

Mr. Kelley's interest in food dates back to his childhood, when he quickly discovered that sugar maples produced a magic substance called maple sugar. Although his tastes in food have become more sophisticated since then, Kelley still gets as big a kick out of preparing fancy relishes for his friends as he does making large and lavish dinners. One of his biggest gastronomical thrills came in 1953, while he was on a tour of France. "I was singing Gian Carlo Menotti's opera The Consul in every large city in the country. In each place, I ordered the specialty of the province. That way I discovered many things about foods, combinations of flavors and sauces," explained Mr. Kelley. "Today, I take pride in the fact that there are few things I can't cook, given the right conditions, the proper ingredients and the utensils."

If Norman Kelley can cook almost anything, he can also sing almost anything. He has sung demanding roles with the Metropolitan Opera Company, in Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and he created the role of "Schweik" in the comic opera, The Good Soldier Schweik, by Robert Kurka. Last month he completed an engagement in that opera with the touring U.C.L.A. Opera Company of California.

Yankee Doodle Apple Dessert

1/2 cup sifted cake flour	Dash of cinnamon
3/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar	1 egg
1 teaspoon baking powder	1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt	1 cup chopped tart apples
Dash of mace	1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Mix and sift first 6 ingredients. Stir in unbeaten egg and vanilla. Fold in apples and walnuts. Turn into well-greased 8-inch pie pan. Bake at 350° for 25 to 30 minutes or until brown and crusty. Garnish with whipped cream sprinkled with cinnamon or top with small scoops of vanilla ice cream.

My Favorite Jokes

by Roy Awbrey

EDITOR'S NOTE: Roy Awbrey of Manteca, Calif., is a comic-musician who learned his trade in World War II by practicing on a captive audience in the Navy for almost five years. He played his accordion for the crew, sandwiched comedy routines in between. The response was so excellent that Awbrey decided to become a professional entertainer. Discharged from the Navy, he made the rounds of theatrical agencies. One of them booked him into a small club, and Roy has worked steadily ever since as a one-man act. He's played the New Frontier in Las Vegas, the Saddle & Sirolo in Tucson, the Adolphus in Dallas, other top spots. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

"Janine," Mrs. Prescott said to her upstairs maid. "I'm afraid my husband is having an affair with his secretary."

"I don't believe it," replied Janine. "You're just saying that to make me jealous."

Happiness is getting called out of town on business the day your mother-in-law arrives.

I'm the number-one accordionist in the nation. As you know there is nothing lower than number one.

I have a girl in Alaska. She models for totem poles.

One drunk said to another drunk, "How dare you burp in front of my wife?"

The second drunk replied, "Oh, was it her turn?"

I know a Texan who is so rich that he just bought his dog a boy. Last Sunday his 50-foot yacht sank and clogged up the drain of his swimming pool.

anecdote of the week

Jean Catlin, an old Frenchman who sells chestnuts each autumn in front of the American Express Company in Paris, was asked by a tourist: "Do they allow you to stay here?"

"Yes," answered Catlin. "I have a special deal with the management. I don't sell travelers' checks, and they don't sell chestnuts."

Who is this 6-year-old ale man? His name is King, and he's the only soccer player in the world with a chance to wind up in front of a milk wagon. King is a palomino stallion. His owner, soccer buff Bill Foyle, taught him the game and introduced him to the soccer player's favorite post-game refreshment. Now he has a major problem trying to keep King out of a draught.

China doll: Irene Tsu, 22, is the most eye-filling new import in Hollywood. She's getting $2500 a week.

IRENE TSU:

Can An Oriental Girl Become A Full-Fledged Screen Star?

HOLLYWOOD.

by LLOYD SHEARER

From now on, whenever a Hollywood studio films a production which calls for a bevy of beautiful girls, you will find at least one Negro and one Oriental in the group.

The objective, of course, is to prove to the world that where race is concerned, Hollywood is colorblind and prejudice-free.

Take the latest Doris Day starrer, Caprice, which deals with sophisticated industrial spying. For that one, 20th Century-Fox not only hired a colored beauty, Consuelo Neal, but it signed Irene Tsu, 22, a Chinese lovely, to play the second lead.

Irene is so good in the film as a free-swinging Americanized secretary who lives a triple life that the studio wants her for other roles. "She is the sexiest, most photogenic Oriental girl we've had on this lot," declares publicity director Jim Denton, "in at least ten years."

This brings us to a pair of vital and ticklish questions: Can an Oriental—or a Negro, for that matter—play a part which the author has not particularized as a Negro or Oriental role? Has Hollywood reached the point where it is now willing to cast Negro and Oriental actresses as leading ladies?

36-23-35

In Caprice, the second feminine lead was originally written for a Caucasian actress, but when Irene Tsu entered the picture with her stimulating, provocative figure—5 feet 5, 114 pounds, 36-23-35—the producers quickly let loose with a wolf whistle, and the secretary in the film was immediately transferred into an Americanized Oriental.

Irene Tsu says hopefully, "I think I can be the first Oriental star to develop into a full-fledged screen star. I think the time is ripe for that development."

Her agent, Fred Ishimoto, echoes her sentiments: "Irene is so hot right now that I'm asking and getting $2500 and up for her a week. Tony Curtis wants her to go to Rome to play opposite him in The Secret Key. It's a comedy concerning a chastity belt. M.G.M. wants Irene for a top role as a Hawaiian college coed in The Anthropologist. Universal wants her to play a Turkish princess. I think her chances of becoming a star are very great."

One veteran Hollywood executive believes Irene and her agent are kidding themselves. "The public is not yet ready," he states, "to accept minority actresses as leading ladies except where a script calls for it, and these are few and far between. Irene can become a well-known feature player but not a star."

"There are still antimiscegenation laws in this country," he points out. "In practically all scripts the hero ends up winning the girl. What the hell do you think would happen if we had John Wayne winding up with Lena Horne instead of Julie Andrews? They'd rip the seats out of the theater."

Irene Tsu claims, however, that she has never experienced any prejudice in America. "People have been wonderful to me, and I don't see why my luck can't hold in Hollywood and my career."

Irene was born in Shanghai, the daughter of a textile designer, Dulcie Lynn Tsu, and a banker, Z. M. Tsu. In 1948, when the Communists took over, she and her parents fled to Taiwan, where Chiang Kai-shek appointed her father to a government post in Taipei.

Irene's mother didn't like Taipei, soon took her two daughters and headed for Hong Kong, where the trio spent seven years waiting for permission to enter the United States.

In Hong Kong, Irene attended school, learned English, majored in ballet, was offered a scholarship to the Royal Ballet in London, when word arrived that the U.S. would grant entry. The Tsu ladies sailed for New York, settled in Larchmont, N.Y., with Irene's aunt. Irene attended Mamaroneck High School, then George Washington High, all the time determined to become a ballerina.

ON BROADWAY AT 15

In the summer of 1959, when she was 15, the Chinese girl auditioned for a dancing job on Broadway in Flower Drum Song. A lookout from producer David Merrick's office caught the tryout, auditioned her for The World of Suzie Wong, signed her on the spot. Irene played Broadway for four months, spent nine months on the road with Suzie, then returned to New York to finish high school.

Choreographer Hermes Pan then brought her out to Hollywood as a dancer in the film version of Flower Drum Song. Struck by her beauty and her un-Oriental figure, other producers offered film and TV work: Perry Mason, I Spy, Take Her, She's Mine, How to Stuff a Wild Bikini. In Hollywood casting offices Irene Tsu became known as "the Chinese sexpot."

Says Irene: "It was good for me. It gave me a chance to get speaking parts instead of dancing roles. I proved I could act. Now I'm considered an actress instead of a dancer."

Never having been in love, Irene at this point is more interested in her career than marriage. "I have a nice apartment here," she says. "I drive a Corvair. I have enough money to live on. My social life is as extensive as I want it to be. Most of the men I date are Caucasian."

"Eventually I'd like to marry and have kids and enjoy the whole domestic bit. But not now. Careerwise, things for me are 'coming up roses.'"

A spicy dish of chow mein, this Irene Tsu. The producers keep reordering.

ARTHRITIS. More than one-third of American adults suffer from osteoarthritis, about 37 of every 100 adult civilians. About 23% of these cases are moderate or severe. The figures come from the National Center for Health Statistics, are based on examinations of 6872 noninstitutionalized adults, whose hands and feet were X-rayed to determine the degenerative changes in the joints.

Under age 45, most cases of osteoarthritis are mild. From 45 up, the rates for moderate and severe cases increase steadily. The disease attacks both men and women equally, although under age 45 the prevalence among men is greater. After age 55, women are more frequently affected. There are no racial, regional or urban-rural differences in the incidence of the disease. As yet no cure for arthritis has been discovered.

How to GROW SLIM With

Martinis & Whipped Cream:

The New Carbo-Cal Way to Lose Weight and Stay Slim

YOURS TO EXAMINE FREE—FOR 10 DAYS

News about a revolutionary reducing plan, based on a remarkable biochemical discovery, and now available in a new book which we invite you to read for 10 days at our risk.

INCREDIBLE BUT TRUE! You may eat and drink foods like martinis and whipped cream and grow slim, says Sidney Petrie, the man who reduces people who can't reduce or stay reduced by any other method—people referred to him by doctors!

What's more, Petrie says you may eat more than you ever thought possible... at TV time, between meals, at fancy restaurants... and never gain an ounce!

It isn't the fact that you consume calories that matters, says Petrie. What matters is the kind of calories you consume. All foods contain just three kinds of calories. To lose weight you need eliminate only one of them! This is the CARBO-CAL... the calorie that piles on pounds... the unsuspected calorie, found even in such so-called "diet foods" as skimmed milk, carrot sticks, and—of all things—melba toast!

Now, in the most thrilling book you've ever seen—a fascinating, down-to-earth, easy-to-read book—Sidney Petrie explains this amazing fact about your body's chemistry, and shows you immediately:

• How to eat three good, full meals a day and STILL lose weight safely, comfortably, steadily —without having to count calories, go to bed hungry, measure food helpings—without doing anything except cutting out a few Carbo-Cal foods you're probably not fond of anyway!

• How, having once attained the weight you want, you can keep it and still eat hearty meals—even frankfurters and fried eggs, whipped cream, butter, etc.—without putting back the weight you've lost!

• How you can eat every kind of fried food except one, every kind of appetizer except certain soups, actually eat custard desserts, ice cream, drink cocktails, enjoy steaks, and much more—and stay slim!

• Why it doesn't matter how you prepare food, and why you don't have to follow any special recipes—so long as you follow one simple rule!

• How to walk into any restaurant—and be limited in your food choice ONLY by price!

• All the things you CAN eat, as opposed to other methods that tell you only what you CAN'T eat!

• How to recognize foods that have the Carbo-Cal, avoid them, and keep eating the "good" calorie foods.

• Why foods that contain the Carbo-Cal don't really satisfy you even though they leave pounds of fat on you—while good calorie foods make you feel like you've had a good, satisfying meal, even though the body quickly consumes them!

• Why doctors may recommend this diet to people with various glandular troubles who could otherwise eat practically nothing on a "regular diet"—and why this diet system may be used by those with low blood sugar counts—and by vegetarians!

• How this revolutionary reducing plan is linked to a low cholesterol count, better skin condition, resistance to colds, freedom from minor aches and pains, increased virility, and a 15 to 25% longer life span!

• Why many sauces, gravies and dressings—taboo by other methods—are perfectly acceptable by this one (and this includes one of the greatest, pleasantest surprises of all, if you've ever suffered through a starvation diet!)

Makes Weight-Reduction Easy, Pleasant, Effortless

The new Carbo-Cal method is backed by case histories of lost weight totaling 20,000 pounds. The author of this book, Sidney Petrie, perfected this remarkable method after 8 years of private practice involving difficult obesity cases referred to him by physicians and other specialists.

During that time, his method melted away the pounds like magic, helping people even the reducing "experts" couldn't assist! What's more, close observation by physicians found no ill effects. (In fact, many difficulties being treated lessened or even disappeared with the new flood of vitality that accompanied loss of weight.)

That's why we urge you to read and use this book at our risk for ten days. It will really open your eyes to a breath-takingly effective reducing system that helps you reduce without drugs or pills, fatiguing exercises, starvation meals, or even straining the will-power. And, perhaps best of all, weight loss may be yours permanently.

That's right! After you've reached the slimmest you want, Sidney Petrie promises you this—

"You can enjoy a hearty breakfast, a mid-morning coffee break, a Madison Avenue lunch, an afternoon cocktail hour, a gourmet dinner, and a TV snack—and still remain slender!"

CASE HISTORIES OF CARBO-CAL IN ACTION

CASE HISTORY OF HELEN G. Typist. Weight: 141. Diagnosis: 20 lbs. overweight, severe migrating and high blood pressure. Use of standard thousand-calorie-a-day diet brought no weight loss. Treatment with Carbo-Cal system: 20 lbs. lost in 2 months; migraine vanishes; blood pressure down.

CASE HISTORY OF JEAN J. housewife. Problem: developed serious weight condition after birth of second child. Treatment: various diet systems involving pills, exercise, even hospitalization. Result: No weight loss. Treatment with Carbo-Cal system: all excess weight lost in only 9 weeks. Later check-backs showed loss permanent, no weight having been added after end of treatment.

CASE HISTORY OF FRANK ST. J. accountant. Weight: 275. Active life, although tied down to desk job. Although careful about calories, remained overweight. Doctor switched him to treatment with Carbo-Cal system: 105 pounds lost in just under 5 months. Loss of weight seems permanently retained.

Jame's Paul McCartney is traced back through a line of fishmongers, boilermakers and plumbers, although his great-great-grandfather was a coroner.

George Harrison boasts a lamplighter and a stonemason among his antecedents, while Richard Starkey (alias Ringo Starr) is a descendant of sailors.

Of the four Beatles, the two most interested in their family history are Ringo and Paul. Each has paid researchers $500 to search the records as far back as possible.

JAPAN'S CAR BOOM. The Japanese auto industry is coming on strong. At the end of World War II, only 25,000 automobiles were left in Japan. Restrictions forbade further car manufacture until 1960. Then the auto boom got underway. This year 750,000 cars will be manufactured in Japan. By 1970 the number will jump to 2 million.

Leading car manufacturers in Nippon are Nissan (Datsun), Toyota, Fuji, Mitsubishi and Honda. Leading exporters to the U.S. are Nissan and Toyota, which operate their own ocean-going car carriers from Tokyo to California.

Japan's auto industry employs 1 million people. The average worker earns $100 a month plus many fringe benefits. At present Japan exports only 8% of her cars, insists that they be of high quality. Says Kamiya Shotaro, president of Toyota Motor Sales, "In a year or two the Japanese automobile will be as well-known in world markets as Japanese ships, transistor radios and textiles."

Datsun and Toyota are convinced they can cut sharply into the Volkswagen market in the U.S., eventually take over foreign-car sales leadership by offering more car for less money.

NEED TEACHERS. Children in Great Britain can now quit school at age 15. By 1970 the school-leaving age will be 16. Where will Britain obtain the schoolteachers it will need to instruct more students? The government wants young married women to continue their education now by enrolling in colleges for teacher training and is promising them $250 a year in aid.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS. The latest haven for conscientious objectors fleeing the U.S.

draft is Canada. There are about 300 of them, including draft dodgers, in Toronto, mostly in the Bohemian quarter of Yorkville. In Montreal many of them can be found in Le Bistro, a hangout for local beatniks. By evading military service these men are subject to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000 on their return to the U.S. But they don't feel they are risking much compared to service in Vietnam. They figure that when the war in Vietnam is over, no one will bother them. Meanwhile, they are being supported by handouts from friends, relatives, several pacifist organizations.

NASSER IN TROUBLE. Egypt has a mess on its hands. Nasser's domestic policies have brought his country to economic ruin. His foreign policies have only succeeded in isolating him. Egypt owes $1.25 billion to the East and $1.75 billion to the West. Credit is at a new low, and the government has scarcely enough money to pay its debts.

The people aren't much better off than they were 14 years ago, when Nasser and the army staged their coup d'etat. Gigantic projects like the Aswan Dam are costing millions without yet paying off. Any industrial progress is immediately nullified by the population growth rate, 4% a year, one of the world's highest.

Last year the cost of living rose 27%, this year 35%. Even in the large cities water and electric power are notoriously inefficient and unreliable.

Troubles in his own country, however, do not deter Nasser from interfering with other nations. His troops have been involved in the Yemen civil war for four years now without making any headway. More than 60,000 Egyptian soldiers are poised to invade Arabia at a cost of $1 million a day. Nasser's Pan-Arabian nationalism and his meddling in the affairs of his neighbors have given rise to an anti-Nasser alliance. Currently King Faisal of Saudi Arabia is planning an all-Islamic meeting in Mecca in January. So far, Iran, Kuwait, Jordan, Morocco and Tunisia have accepted. Turkey, Pakistan, the Sudan, Libya and Lebanon are also expected to join, leaving Egypt with only two allies, Iraq and Syria.

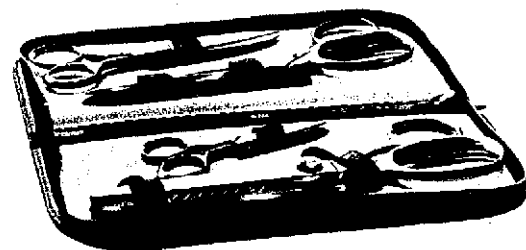

The basic trouble with Nasser is that he is more interested in the image of Nasser than in the welfare of Egypt.

MAYBE, THAT HEAT CAME FROM SOMETHING MORE THAN A TRIBESMAN'S COOK FIRE, BUT I CAN'T IMAGINE HIM CHOPPERING IN A SEARCH PARTY BECAUSE OF ONE GUESS, SIR.

THAT'S UP TO THE ARMY... GOOD NIGHT, MAJOR.

BETTER GO RACK UP SOME SACK TIME, TERRY.

EXECS WORK FROM SUN TO SUN, BUT A SQUADRON C.O.'S IS NEVER DONE. I'M STILL MISSING ONE FLY-BOY, COOP.

GUESS WE'LL HAVE TO TELL THE AIR POLICE THAT BUSTER BLUE IS LONG OVERDUE FROM HIS LEAVE, SIR.

WHAT?! AND DEPRIVE ME OF THE PLEASURE OF PERSONALLY POINTING OUT TO THAT IDIOT WHAT A SPOT HE'S GOTTEN HIMSELF INTO?!

AND A SHORT TIME LATER, TERRY ANGRILY POUNDS ON THE DOOR OF COCKATOO'S JUNGLE VILLA.

TELL YOUR MISTRESS I WANT TO SEE HER, CHOP CHOP!

COLONEL LEE! YOU SURPRISE ME, THIS EARLY HOUR...

DON'T TRY TO PUT ME ON, MA'M. TELL CAPTAIN BLUE I WANT HIM—RIGHT NOW!

MY BUSTER?! I DO NOT UNDERSTAND... HE WAS HERE, MY HOUSE GUEST...

I DIDN'T HAVE TO BE VERY BRIGHT TO FIGURE THAT OUT MYSELF... GET HIM!

PLEASE, COLONEL! YOU DO NOT UNDERSTAND. BUSTER LEFT TWO DAYS AGO TO RETURN TO DUTY!

HA! EVEN WITH BLUE'S DEVIOUS ROUTE, IT WOULDN'T HAVE TAKEN HIM AN HOUR TO GET TO THE BASE.

BUSTER! WHAT HAS HAPPENED?! SOMETHING HAS HAPPENED TO BUSTER!

I apply for Accumulative Accident Insurance to become effective day policy is issued and dated. I understand that it takes about 10 days to issue a policy and agree (1) to pay the premium of 65¢ per month; (2) designate person who collects for my newspaper as my messenger to deliver premium to above office; (3) that policy will automatically expire if I fail to pay premium when due. Insurance does not cover persons who have lost both hands and feet, or the sight of both eyes.
